D. A. R. Says Its Anderson Ban Obeyed D. C. Customs

Mrs. Robert Denies Race Prejudice Influenced Refusal To Permit Concert

The D. A. R. Sessions

Ban Explained

When Daughters of the American Revolution refused to schedule a Constitution Hall concert by Marian Anderson they were acting in accordance with social practices well established in Washington, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president general, declared yesterday.

"This is not a question for the D. A. R. alone to solve," she declared in the society's first explanation of its stand in the controversy.

Delegates to the Forty-eighth Continental Congress, now in session in Constitution Hall, warmly applauded her report.

She did not mention the colored contralto by name, nor refer to the resignation of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt from the society as a result of the incident.

"When the community at large has worked out its problem, the Daughters of the American Revolution will be willing, at all times, to adapt its policies to practices and customs in accordance with the highest standards of the community," she declared.

Prejudice Denied

Denying that the D. A. R. decision involved the question of "prejudice, personality and discrimination," Mrs. Robert asserted the society for nearly 50 years has been a friend of, and worked for, many minority groups.

"It will continue to do so," she said.

Reports which were circulated in regard to the controversy she termed "incorrect and not based upon facts," asserting that by the time the national board of the D. A. R. had a chance to consider the application the issue had become so involved the real issue could no longer be seen alone.

"Information and letters received during this period before the national board could act," she said, "clearly indicated that the question was not one regarding a single artist but involved far-reaching and changing social forces."

Issue Not Clear Cut

The board might have been willing, she hinted, to make an exception to its rules in regard to use of the hall by colored artists if the issue had been clear cut.

"To have changed a rule while it was entangled with so many factors having nothing to do with the rule would have been to surrender the society to influences inimical to its purposes and efforts. When independence of action is threatened and when fog beclouds real issues, there can be no surrender," she declared.

"The membership should distinctly understand," she continued, "that to have made an exception would not only have been in violation of signed agreements and customs for all similar properties in Washington, but would have meant the society retreated under fire of widely scattered groups and organizations—many of whom knew nothing of the facts, and whose interest had nothing to do with the real question."

Legal Question Involved

The "legal question" involved in making the decision, she pointed out, was that of breaking faith with "existing agreements with concert bureaus who have regularly used the hall for some years and whose

Medicine's Status Sought In AMA Trial

Judge Asks If It Is Trade or Profession In Group Health Case

Justice Proctor called for authorities bearing on whether the healing art is a trade or profession as the second day of argument over indictment of "organized medicine" for criminal conspiracy under the Sherman antitrust act closed yesterday.

On Justice Proctor's finding of "trade" or "profession" may turn the first decision in a legal campaign expected to take to the Supreme Court for settlement a long-fought dispute over the extent and degree of social control to which the practice of medicine may be subjected under the law.

Defines Trade

The American Medical Association, District Medical Society, Harris County (Texas) Medical Society, Washington Academy of Surgery and 21 prominent doctors stand indicted for criminal conspiracy for their campaign against Group Health Association, Inc.

Their counsel asserted that they should go free without trial, because the Sherman act denounced combinations in restraint of trade and the law does not regard medicince as a trade. Even if the defendants did everything of which they are charged, argued Seth K. Richardson, for the medical groups, there would be no crime under the law.

Laskey Argues Case

John E. Laskey, representing Dr. Prentiss Wilson, told the court that if the medical indictment were allowed to stand, the American and District bar associations could be indicted and punished under the same law for having brought about higher educational standards for applicants for admission to the bar.

The medical and legal associations stand on the same ground, said Laskey. Both establish standards and

G. O. P. Coup Delays D. C. Tax Bill

Randolph Asks Five Democrats at Once On Committee to Overpower Minority

By James D. Secrest.

An intra-party fight developed yesterday in the House District Committee as the local revenue bill was returned to the su' committee on fiscal affairs with the sales tax marked for deletion by implication rather than instruction.

After the minority members of the committee under the leadership of Representative Dirksen, of Illinois, threatened to take control, Chairman Randolph took steps to have five Democratic vacancies on the committee filled at once.

Speaker Bankhead agreed to make the appointments after Randolph had drawn up a list of recommendations. The normal two to one ratio will be restored by the action. There are now seven Republicans and nine Democrats.

Randolph's move was precipitated by the unheralded addition of a Republican member to the committee upon recommendation of Representative Dirksen. The member, Representative Sandager, of Rhode Island, appeared unexpectedly at the committee session yesterday, having been named on Monday, and was prepared to vote with the other six Republicans to eliminate the sales tax.

No Test Vote

The test vote was never called, however, and Chairman Nichols, of the Fiscal Affairs sub-committee, himself asked that the revenue bill be returned "for further study" when it became apparent that Dirksen had a majority of the votes.

Privately, members of the committee admitted that the sales tax has been killed for this session although observers saw in Randolph's move to strengthen the majority membership a possible renewal of the sales tax proposal.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, declined to comment on the local sales tax issue in response to a question at his press conference yesterday afternoon.

While Dirksen expressed confidence that the sub-committee will now write in a graduated personal income tax starting at $2,500 and $1,000, District officials hinted that the business privilege levy may be renewed.

Faces Opposition

That this action will encounter as much or more opposition than the sales tax, however, is apparent. Dirksen said he had notified the sub-committee that he will fight the business privilege tax "with every parliamentary maneuver known."

Representative Bates (Republican), Massachusetts, a member of the sub-committee, issued a statistical statement to show that the 1940 District budget could be more than met by continuing the $1.75 real estate rate and enacting all the proposed taxes in the revenue bill except the sales levy.

Both the business privilege tax and intangible personal property levy, he said, could be repealed under such a plan, and the District would end the next fiscal year with a $665,498 surplus on the basis of House appropriations.

No Pigeon-Holing

Nichols did not set a date for the next meeting of the sub-committee but said it probably will be held this week.

Both Nichols and Dirksen insisted that the sub-committee has no intention of pigeonholing the tax bill, which would compel the District Commissioners to meet the 1940 deficit by hiking the real estate and personal property tax rate. Both hold that a broader tax base is needed.

As Representative Bates (Democrat), of Kentucky, called a meeting today of the sub-committee on public health to map a program for the milk investigation, it was indicated that the filling of the Democratic vacancies on the full committee is designated to offset a repetition of the chairman's experience with the tax bill.

Let Labor Act Alone, Says Madden

Tells Senate Inquiry Burke Amendments Would Wreck Law; Hits A.F.L. Proposals

By Robert C. Albright.

J. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, yesterday blamed the split in labor's ranks for Wagner act difficulties and charged that efforts were being made by "extremists" to destroy collective bargaining rights.

In an entire day on the Senate Labor Committee stand, Madden lashed furiously at amendments by Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, as "obviously intended to emasculate the act" and declared changes proposed by the American Federation of Labor were prompted by labor rift "irritations."

Madden, who carefully distinguished between the Burke and federation proposals, said the former were designed to make union groups "legal pariahs and untouchables" while the latter were influenced by federation hopes to "benefit" in the present labor hostilities.

Attacks A. F. L. Proposal

Denying federation charges of pro-C. I. O. "favoritism," Madden attacked the A. F. L. proposal to repeal employer "interference" prohibitions in the law and declared "it is plain that the American Federation of Labor expects that it and its member unions will benefit from the proposed change."

The Labor Relations Board chairman said the A. F. L. highly approved administration of the act prior to the labor split and declared there was nothing in the federation amendments "that it (the board) would not vigorously oppose, if there had not been the division in the labor movement. But there is the division, for the time being, and the board has had to face, and the committee now faces, the problems which it creates."

Later, in a spirited exchange with Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, Madden accused the A. F. L. of "bringing the most outrageous pressure" on the board to order an election at the Westwood (Calif.) plant of the Red River Lumber Co.

Says Delay Not Unusual

Madden testified the company agreed to cease "assisting or encouraging the organization of vigilante or other groups" after C. I. O. members were "driven out of town" last summer and charged that an A. F. L. group was responsible for later outbreaks in Westwood in which the "C. I. O. was on the victim's end."

Ellender asked if the election was being held up "because the other faction isn't ready."

"The community hasn't returned to the necessary state of lawfulness," replied Madden.

"The C. I. O. is opposing the election?" asked Ellender.

"Yes," replied Madden. "They suppose and I suppose that under present conditions a worker in that factory wouldn't dare vote for the C. I. O."

Madden said it was not unusual for one labor faction to attempt to delay an election and the other side seek one. He told Ellender that

International Developments

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH was called to active Army service to survey American aviation research as a House committee recommended construction of a third set of locks for the Panama Canal.

REICHSFUEHRER HITLER dispatched Diplomatic "Trouble Shooter" Franz Von Papen to Turkey to win back Germany's former ally from the British alliance toward which she is wavering.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI called out another class of reserves, massed 40,000 troops to reinforce 100,000 already in Albania, and let it be understood he would send a formal rejection of President Roosevelt's non-aggression appeal.

PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN warned that Britain might defend Denmark, the Netherlands and Switzerland, as efforts continued to win Soviet Russia, Turkey and Bulgaria to the British-French system of alliances.

FRANCE WATCHED apprehensively as the German fleet moved through the North Sea heading for "spring maneuvers" in Spanish waters, although Nationalist Spain sent assurances that troop movements near Gibraltar were not aimed at either France or Britain.

ITALO-GERMAN EFFORTS to counteract the growing Anglo-French coalition were directed at Rumania in Berlin, at Hungary in Rome, with expectations that within a few days diplomatic pressure would be exerted on Yugoslavia.

THE HOUSE FOREIGN AFFAIRS Committee was told by Upton Close, writer, that the best way to stop aggression was to stop Japan by cutting off her supplies.

UNITED STATES OFFICIALS expressed belief war in Europe would cause no general collapse of securities markets here.

Reich's Veteran Trouble-Shooter Chosen to Counter Encirclement

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 18.—Adolf Hitler returned suddenly tonight to a capital preoccupied with plans for his mammoth birthday celebration Thursday and immediately named a veteran "trouble shooter," Franz von Papen, as German Ambassador to Turkey.

At the same time more than 25 warcraft of the German navy were steaming toward Spanish waters for naval maneuvers.

Hitler showed clearly by the unexpected appointment of Von Papen his deep interest in southeastern Europe and the near east as well as his determination not to stand by passively watching British-French efforts to build an alliance athwart the Rome-Berlin axis.

Von Papen's aptitude for Nazi spadework has been well tested. He was Hitler's special ambassador to Vienna until Germany absorbed Austria in March, 1938.

Britain has been attempting to bring Turkey, one of Germany's very good customers, into the French-British alliance. Such negotiations are still under way in London and Ankara, where Von Papen shortly will begin his work.

Fleets Gathering

Von Papen, former chancellor of Germany and holder of Nazidom's highest decoration for preparing the absorption of Austria, had a talk with Hitler prior to his appointment which brought him from semiretirement at the suggestion of Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop.

The German warships left Kiel and Wilhelmshaven for the area near the Strait of Gibraltar.

French warships now are patroling the Strait while the British Mediterranean fleet is concentrated near the strategic British base of Malta.

Hitler's chief lieutenant, Marshal Goering, also returned to Berlin tonight. The chancellor had spent ten days in his Bavarian Mountain home in Munich, where he conferred about President Roosevelt's appeal, and in Austria.

Gafencu Sees Ribbentrop

Goering had been in Italy since March 22, when he resumed a vacation, and was understood to have discussed Rome-Berlin replies to Mr. Roosevelt's message. Goering is expected to report to Hitler as soon as possible on his Rome conversations. Hitler has summoned the Reichstag for April 28 to hear his reply to Roosevelt.

Foreign Minister Gafencu of Rumania talked with Von Ribbentrop about Great Britain's offer of help to Rumania should her independence be threatened, and discussed the practical application of a new German-Rumanian trade agreement giving Germany far-reaching op-

Stop Japan To Halt Hitler, Inquiry Told

Writer Charges Arms Sales to Tokyo Keep China War Alive

By the Associated Press.

Upton Close, writer and lecturer on Far Eastern affairs, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday that the "best way to get at Germany and Italy" was by stopping Japan in China. The best way to stop Japan, he said, was a "policy" law shutting off the flow of American arms and war materials to Japan, as proposed in a bill by Representative Coffee (Democrat), of Washington.

Such action, he predicted, would result in the overthrow of the Japanese government and military party, with the wealthy party taking control and conferring with the United States on "how to save something in North China and turn the rest back."

Borah Hits Economic Sanctions

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, asserted, meanwhile, that imposition of economic sanctions against violators of treaties with the United States would constitute an act of war.

The veteran member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee made this assertion in criticizing sharply the stand taken by a witness for peace organizations at the Senate committee's hearing in support of a proposal by Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah. Thomas would revise the neutrality act to permit the President, with the approval of Congress, to designate a treaty violator and cut off commercial relations with such.

President Named Aggressors

Charles G. Fenwick, professor of international law at Bryn Mawr, had indorsed the Thomas proposal.

"That certainly would be the first step toward war," Borah declared. "In fact, it would be war itself. That is one way of carrying on war. In modern times that is a large part of the war system."

Fenwick said he was "inclined to agree" with Representative Corbett (Republican), of Pennsylvania, that President Roosevelt in his peace

Stocks Braced Against War, Officials Say

Scheme Forecast For Orderly Liquidation Of Europe's Holdings

Officials were confident yesterday there would be no severe break in the stock market in case war breaks out in Europe.

This was revealed after the interdepartment group of Cabinet members and others studying ways to keep security and commodity markets open in the event of war made their report to President Roosevelt.

Although the President and other participants declined to comment, the feeling was general, it was learned, that markets could be kept open, and that no shock would occur which would cripple business recovery.

Expectation is that, if hostilities should involve England and France, those countries would find some means for using funds tied up in investments by their nationals in American securities to purchase supplies.

How this would be done, however, is still an unsolved problem. The Johnson foreign loan act, it was learned, stands in the way of loans either by the Government or private lenders for the account

Vatican Paper Says Peace Plea Increased Tension

Vatican City, April 18 (AP).—The Vatican Newspaper Osservatore Romano, commenting on President Roosevelt's peace appeal to Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini, today said that "considering the decisively hostile reception, it must be stated that international tension has been aggravated at least from the psychological point of view."

The newspaper asserted that though the President's message created no new situation in world affairs it resulted in an outburst of acrimony between two sides.

Flier to Survey U. S. Facilities For Research In Aviation

The Army called Col. Charles A. Lindbergh into active service yesterday to help America regain military supremacy in the air.

A voluntary "exile" from the United States the last four years, the flier reputedly has seen more of the "inside" of Europe's air forces than any other living man. Just returned for reasons never fully explained, he will begin today a survey of aviation research facilities in this country, the War Department revealed.

Lindbergh will report to Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Chief of Air Corps, this morning. Touring the country, inspecting the available air research facilities at Government fields, universities and commercial plants, America's best known airman will submit a confidential report to Arnold which is expected to form the basis for vast expansion of such facilities coincident with the resurgence of American air power.

To Aid With Plant

Significantly, the War Department announcement came only a few days after officials had informed Congress that Germany was building better military planes than the United States. Unless aircraft research facilities here are expanded to match those created in the Reich, the legislators were told, the new Army air program will prove a disappointment to the country.

The Senate speedily voted for the establishment of a new aircraft research center at Sunnyvale, Calif., for the National Advisory Council for Aeronautics, and Lindbergh, a member of the council, will apply his knowledge of the giant strides made by the totalitarian states by assisting in plans for the plant.

Meanwhile, yesterday saw the following other developments in the national defense situation:

President Roosevelt told his press conference that the main body of the United States fleet had been ordered to the Pacific to return the naval situation to normal. Questioned why the ships were suddenly directed to sail for the West Coast weeks ahead of schedule, he merely observed smilingly that the Navy was subject to daily change of orders.

Air Corps Issues Call

The House Merchant Marine Committee voted to report legislation authorizing construction of a third set of locks for the Panama Canal, costing $277,000,000, thereby assuring ready transfer of the fleet from the Atlantic to the Pacific during wartime.

The Army Air Corps issued a call for new officers to man the 3,000 new airplanes to be procured under the emergency defense program. Applications were invited from graduates of the Air Corps Training Center to take examinations for 400 appointments as second lieutenants in the Regular Army to be made in July.

The Senate Commerce Committee approved legislation authorizing the Coast Guard to build three large cutters, 15 seaplanes and establish a base in Alaska, as a defense move.

War Staff Inadequate

Secretary of War Woodring, stating that present strength of the War Department general staff "is inadequate to meet present requirements," asked Congress to increase the staff to 102 officers and permit 5 assistant chiefs of staff who are general officers. The

Franco Adopts Greenbelt Home Idea for Spain

Burgos, Spain, April 18 (AP).—Gen. Franco took a tip from the United States today by creating a resettlement administration to build homes such as those in the Greenbelt project at Berwyn, Md.

He drafted plans for construction of 20,000 modern dwellings of two and three rooms to give workers an opportunity to own their own homes after paying rents for periods as long as 20 years.

His plans contemplate projects similar in many details to the Greenbelt homes, with a broad park and recreational spaces.

Benes to Lead Move to Restore Czecho-Slovakia

Chicago, April 18 (AP).—Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czecho-Slovakia, tonight accepted leadership of an international movement to restore the independence of his homeland.

His decision was announced after conferences attended by representatives of 1,500,000 Americans of Czech and Slovak descent, and friends and officials of the Czecho-Slovakian republic.

Dr. Benes reported he was in contact "with all official representatives of our republic who still function" and announced that his plan was to "form a political Czecho-Slovak directorium, which will represent our movement in the whole world and direct all our activities."

Liner Paris Afire; One Is Killed; Italian Questioned

Le Havre, April 19 Wednesday) (AP).—The French liner Paris was swept early today by flames, believed the result of sabotage, that threatened complete destruction of the 34,569-ton vessel.

A strong wind whipped flames through the liner, menacing a $650,000 art cargo destined for the New York World's Fair. The value of the Paris was about $15,000,000.

Leon Meyer, former minister of merchant marine, said in his opinion the fire was "caused by incendiarism."

One man was killed, a fireman seriously injured and three others nearly were asphyxiated.

First Lady's Nephew and Chum Die in Mexico Plane Crash

Mexico City, April 18 (INS).—Two young Americans, one of them a nephew of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, were killed late today when their plane crashed near Guadalupe Victoria, Puebla.

The youths were Bronson H. (Pete) Rumsey, 22, of Sands Point, Long Island, and Daniel Roosevelt, 21, of Boston. Both were Harvard students.

Miss Carlota Constantine, daughter of Arthur Constantine, International News Service bureau chief at Mexico City, escaped with a broken leg.

Rumsey, a Harvard junior, and young Roosevelt, a senior, arrived at Mexico City more than a week ago and spent a holiday "sightseeing" by air in their own plane.

They started on a flight to New York today against the advice of airport officials.

Young Roosevelt was the son of G. Hall Roosevelt, brother of the First Lady. Rumsey was the son of the late Charles Gary Rumsey, sculptor, and Mary Harriman Rumsey, daughter of E. H. Harriman, rail magnate. Mrs. Rumsey died after a hunting accident at Middleburg, Va., in 1934.

Triplets were born to Mrs. Dorothy Lokerson, 31, of 123 Aspen street, Chevy Chase, Md., in Homeopathic Hospital here last night. Mother, sons and daughter were all doing well, the hospital reported.

The father, John Lokerson, is in the real estate business. The couple has one other child.

It was the first triple blessed event of 1939 for Homeopathic.

Philip La Follette Suggests Kennedy's Recall From Britain

By the United Press.

New York, April 18.—Philip F. La Follette, former Governor of Wisconsin, suggested tonight that President Roosevelt would "perform a public service" by the recall of Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to Great Britain.

The suggestion came during La Follette's address to the Economic Club of New York, in which he urged that American foreign policy include encouragement of "the forces who really believe in democracy, not only in Britain and France but in Germany and Italy."

"A step in that direction," he said, "is to make certain that our representatives abroad really believe in democracy, and that they think first, last and all the time of the interests of the American people. Actions speak louder than words abroad as well as at home.

"Eloquent tributes to democracy here in America can be largely nullified if our representatives abroad by daily, public conduct support those forces in Europe least concerned about democracy.

JIGGERS! THE TOURISTS

When the Army moved a battalion of 477 soldiers closer in to the Capital this week it wasn't, as some nervous souls suspected, to protect us from the Berlin Bolsheviks . . . It was just a precautionary measure against the tourists now flooding the town. The soldiers are camped across the river from the Lincoln Memorial — in case someone tries to snitch a marble pillar.

In downtown windows big dinner plates have blossomed, adorned with portraits of George and Martha Washington in four colors, and celery dishes with views of Mount Vernon. This means that one American in every 50 or so is on his way, hopeful of shaking the President's hand, but content to settle for a sack of peanuts at the White House peanut stand.

* * * *

Also for sale are giant keys to the city, complete with thermometer and seal of the Capitol; glass balls with tiny replicas of the White House imprisoned therein; chains of postcards six feet long; miniature Washington Monuments also disguised with thermometers, vanity cases with the Capitol skyline inlaid in mother of pearl and hot pads decorated with patriotic landscapes.

"—a picnic amidst history"

But the tourists are not content with such mundane souvenirs. I noticed yesterday in the anteroom of the Secretary of War that two rosettes are missing from old wall brocade; every once in a while a tourist is caught in the act of trying to unscrew an official doorknob; and now and then a Cabinet member misses a pair of rubbers.

A small boy with big ears is focusing a box camera on his comrades lined up in front of Childs restaurant.

"Move over a little," he orders, "then I can get the reflection of the monument in the window."

"Yesterday I saw 120 assorted cameras checked on a table in the White House foyer, lest some candid demon try to snapshot the billiard table in the basement.

Occasionally you see a tourist eating a sandwich on the steps of the old State, War and Navy Bldg . . . There is orange peel near the door of the Senate wing of the Capital, and in the House galleries each day is left a residue of candy bar and chewing gum wrappers. A favorite spot to relax is the Anchor and Cannon on the steps across from President Roosevelt's offices.

All day there's a line of tourists staring at the main door of the White House, perhaps waiting for Mrs. Roosevelt to come out on the portico to get her mail, or for some celebrity to come out. . . . They don't know, many of them, that most celebrities go in and out the inconspicuous little door of the west wing. The other day more than 50,000 tourists swept through the public rooms of the White House. They need a traffic expert to get them in and out of the East Room, where there's a velvet rope to keep musical tourists from sitting down at the new piano to play a tune.

* * * *

Many tourists have a childlike faith that the President is waiting to shake hands with 'em, if their Congressman would only arrange it. The best their Congressman can do is to give them a card to visit the Red, Blue and Green rooms and the State dining room . . . Incidentally, Mr. Roosevelt's physician has discovered that the President can shake 800 or 1,000 hands at a time without excessive fatigue, but beyond that he begins to show signs of strain.

* * * *

Youth is predominant; there seem to be three or four tourists in their teens to every adult . . . Partly this is due to the annual influx of high school graduating classes, which have raised money and chartered buses for the trip . . . There are enough buses on the streets to carry most of our standing army to any threatened point in a jiffy . . . In 20 minutes in the Senate gallery the other day one crowd of youngsters from Cleveland or Long Island heard six Senators speak on foreign relations, and they'll tell their grandchildren how they once heard six Senators keep us out of war—for a while.

Public Works Bill Nears Senate Action

Speedy Passage Seen For Measure to Consolidate Agencies

Headed for speedy passage in the Senate, the Byrnes bill consolidating Federal public works agencies yesterday was given qualified approval by the four minority members of the Special Committee on Unemployment and Relief.

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, author of the bill, bowed to protests of members of the House Ways and Means Committee and agreed to split the omnibus bill into two parts, thus severing the public works sections from those liberalizing the social security laws.

Billion and Half for WPA

The public works bill, which will be taken up in the Senate tomorrow, will combine WPA and other construction agencies in one Governmental bureau. However, President Roosevelt declared yesterday that, subject to last minute study, he would ask Congress in a few days for $1,500,000,000 for WPA for fiscal year 1940.

The House sub-committee investigating the WPA was sharply rebuked, meanwhile, for "concentrating on the personal political beliefs of officers of the Workers Alliance instead of on ways to improve the WPA," at a hearing at which Herbert Benjamin, secretary-treasurer of the relief workers' union, tertified that he was a Communist.

Concluding a two-day session partially devoted to efforts to link the Workers Alliance and its officers with communism, David Lasser, president of the union, reprimanded the sub-committee for its "regrettable" procedure.

Denies Alliance Subversive

Lasser, who stated it was his "impression" that the Communist Party is not subversive, declared that "not a single incident has been brought out to indicate the Workers Alliance is subversive or has connections with subversive organizations."

Benjamin testified that some members of the executive committee of the Allance are Communists. He asserted that he saw "no inconsistency between the philosopy of the Communist Party and American institutions of government." He added that he did not believe in the overthrow of the Government by force.

Written by Senator Lodge (Republican), Massachusetts, the minority report indorses the principles of the Byrnes bill but criticizes it for failure to promote "a greater measure of local control and local responsibility" in handling relief projects.

The Republicans—Senators McNary, of Oregon; Frazier, of North Dakota, and Davis, of Pennsylvania—joined Lodge in demanding a revision of the formula for distributing works projects among the States, so that the allocation would be in terms of the number of jobs provided instead of the amount of money. This plan is designed to benefit Northern States, where wage and living costs are higher than in the South.

Senator Davis submitted a supplementary report stressing the view that the CCC and NYA should not be included in the proposed Federal Agency of Public Works, which, under the bill, would embrace not only those two groups but also the WPA, PWA, Bureau of Public Roads and public buildings branch of the Treasury Department.

Byrnes, who will submit a majority report on the public works bill today, said he severed the public works from the social security sections because he had been told that the House would be at a loss to know to which of two committees to refer the omnibus bill, once it passed the Senate.

More Amendments Expected

Other amendments to the social security law are expected from the House Ways and Means Committee in a few days; and it is probable that the two sets of social security proposals will be ironed out in conference.

Majority Leader Barkley said last night he hoped the Senate would pass the public works bill by the end of this week.

At the WPA investigating committee hearings, Lasser complained that the suggestions submitted by the Workers Alliance for improving the WPA were "almost entirely ignored." No evidence was produced to show that "the Communist Party is subversive, that the Communist Party controls the Workers Alliance or that the Workers Alliance is subversive," he said.

Party Member 18 Years

Benjamin insisted he considered his official duties in the alliance "paramount" to his obligations to the Communist Party. He said he had been a member of the party 18 years and had also been a national officer.

Benjamin denied he had delivered a report to the Third International at Moscow to the effect that formation of the alliances was the culmination of a four-year Communist campaign in America.

The Gallup Poll

Garner Has Edge Over Vandenberg In 'Trial Heat' Poll on 1940

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

New York, April 18.—If John N. Garner were to run for President on the Democratic ticket against Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg on the Republican ticket, a majority of voters expressing a choice at this time say they would prefer Garner, according to a national survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

GEORGE GALLUP

In one of its series of "trial heats" between leading prospective candidates for 1940, the Institute questioned a scientifically-selected cross-section of voters of all parties in every section of the country as to how they would vote in a hypothetical race between the 71-year-old Texan and the Republican senior Senator from Michigan. While changes of sentiment are virtually inevitable between now and 1940, the attitude of voters on this particular race as of today is as follows.

"If Garner runs for President in 1940 on the Democratic ticket and Senator Arthur Vandenberg runs against him on the Republican ticket which one do you think you would prefer?"

The vote of those with opinions was:

Garner	57%
Vandenberg	43

Approximately one voter in every four expressed no opinion.

One question which interests many political observers at this time is how many voters may shift party allegiance in the next election. The rate of shift will, of course, depend largely on what candidates are put up. Today's survey sheds light on how many 1936 Roosevelt voters would shift to Vandenberg at this time, and how many 1936 Landon voters would change parties to vote for the conservative Garner, if these two men happened to be the rival candidates.

It shows that about one-fifth of the 1936 Roosevelt voters who express a choice in the survey would favor Vandenberg, while approximately one-seventh of the 1936 Landon voters say they favor Garner. In other words, the proportion of shift would be slightly in favor of the Republicans.

The actual vote follows:

	Favor Gar.	Favor Van.
1936 Roosevelt Voters.	81%	19%
1936 Landon Voters...	14	86

The survey shows that Garner's strength in a race against Vandenberg would come principally from the South and from the States along the Atlantic Coast and the Pacific Coast, whereas in the Middle West the race would be nip-and-tuck. In the East Central States, which include Vandenberg's home State of Michigan as well as Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, the two candidates run neck-and-neck in the survey, and in the farm States immediately west of this section the result is likewise extremely close.

	Favor Gar.	Favor Van.
New England	57%	43%
Middle Atlantic	54	46
East Central	50	50
West Central	51	49
South	78	22
Far West	61	39

In an earlier "trial heat" the Institute tested the sentiment of voters at this time on a Democratic ticket comprised of Garner for President and James A. Farley for Vice President against a Republican ticket composed of Thomas E. Dewey for President and Senator Robert A. Taft for Vice President. The result was a photo-finish, with Dewey and Taft slightly in the lead.

Court Ruling Revives Process Tax Proposal

Means of Financing Farm Program Discussed at Capitol

Revival of processing taxes as a means of financing an expanded farm program was discussed at the Capitol and the Agriculture Department yesterday as the first direct result of the Supreme Court's validation of AAA marketing controls.

Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, leader of a midwest farm bloc seeking $400,000,000 additional for farm surplus subsidies and parity price payments, said he believed the decision "left the way clear" for imposition of the taxes.

AAA spokesmen pointed out that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace recently renewed recommendations for processing taxes, and declared Monday's decision was not necessarily needed to re-enact the levies.

Action by Congress appeared to hinge on whether the President insists that Congress find revenue to finance $250,000,000 in parity payments, and $150,000,000 for surplus subsidies, being considered in the Senate Agriculture Committee.

No Direct Ruling

Processing taxes under the original AAA act fell by the wayside when the Supreme Court in the Hoosac Mills case ruled AAA control of farm production invalid. There was no direct ruling on the levies on the levies themselves, but they fell because imposed for an illegal purpose. AAA experts said yesterday Monday's tobacco marketing decision left the way open for legal imposition of the taxes, earmarked for Federal marketing control, now a legal farm objective. Senators Lucas, Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, and Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, declined to predict what Congress would do. Pending the decision, the proposal had been to levy the taxes, and turn them into the general revenues of the Treasury, earmarked for no specific purpose.

As the Supreme Court opinion heartened AAA determination to stand on the present farm program, a new threat appeared on the Congressional horizon in the form of the old McAdoo-Eicher "cost of production" bill, which came within 6 votes of passing the Senate last session.

The House Agriculture Committee yesterday declined to pigeonhole the measure, which would repeal crop control features of the AAA and fix minimum price levels for farm products in domestic markets at cost of production levels. Surplus portions of the crop would be sold abroad for what they would bring.

Report Favorable

Acting for the Senate Agriculture Committee, Senator Frazier (Republican), of North Dakota, filed with the Senate a favorable report on the bill.

Secretary Wallace, meanwhile, opposed a price-fixing bill submitted to him for study by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, but told Capper in a letter AAA attorneys believe Congress has authority to fix farm prices. He cited a Supreme Court opinion holding the coal commission might fix minimum prices for sale of coal in interstate commerce.

On Capitol Hill

"White Thunder" was the name given to Senator Schwellanbach (Democrat), Washington, yesterday upon induction into the Yakima tribe of Indians in a ceremony at the Capitol.

Schwellenbach

Chief Phillip Olney, in admitting Senator Schwellenbach into the tribe, explained that "white thunder" to the Indian is good, whereas "black thunder" is evil.

Spectators laughed when Olney asked him:

"Why weren't you considered for appointment to the Supreme Court?"

"That's what I've ben trying to figure out for two weeks,' the Senator replied.

A basket of Virginia spinach was presented yesterday to each of the two Texas Senators by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia.

The spinach was shipped to Byrd by W. Bruce Shafer, of Norfolk, with the request that it be presented Senators Sheppard and Connally.

"Texas leads the world in annual spinach shipments," Shafer said in a telegram to Byrd, "and Virginia is second, but Virginia will ship a million baskets this month, and Texas a half million. Norfolk is shipping the best quality grown in 20 years."

President Roosevelt said yesterday he would resume conference on taxes with Congressional leaders in about a week or ten days.

He told a press conference he probably would see Chairmen Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, respectively of the Senate and House committees dealing with taxation.

Last word on the tax question was that the Treasury was continuing studies looking to the simplification of the revenue laws and removal of possible deterrents to business. The corporation income tax and a host of nuisance levies expire this year.

Indicating that he would offer amendments to the measure, Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, succeeded in having the Senate recall from the House a bill limiting political activities of Federal employes.

Guffey said he was absent when the bill passed the Senate last week. Principal features of the bill, sponsored by Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, would forbid contributions to political campaigns by Federal employes, coercion or intimidation of Federal employes by office holders; bar Government employes from participating in politics and prohibit use of relief funds for "political purposes."

The Sumners bill, which would transfer administration of Federal courts from the Department of Justice to an administrative agency appointed by the Supreme Court, was approved by the House Judiciary Committee.

Isn't it time to Kick Over the Traces?

ACCORDING TO THE NEWSPAPERS, it's been a long, tough winter. Blizzards . . . the budget . . . politics . . . taxes . . . and the Flu.

But, hang it all, man—your Tax Report is in . . . and it's Spring outside!

In just 15 minutes you can whisk every worry from your mind.

Just sit in this new Nash. It has more fun and excitement and spring madness packed into its singing lines than you've felt in your hands for years.

Feel that cushion flatten out behind you as you shift into high!

There's a special kind of engine up in front that knows your every whim—can idle you silently down a moonlit road—or whisk you to a dot on the skyline. Then wait—for suddenly a *Fourth Speed Forward sends you flashing into a new range of performance you never felt before!

You can't keep it from passing others on the road, or showing off in the hills!

And when you ride, listen. Listen to silence. No tell-tale vibration or unpleasant wind-whine disturbs your new-found peace of mind. Only when you look outside do you know how fast you're going, how rough the road is.

Yes—go ahead . . . take a deep breath! For even the air is different in a Nash . . . fresh as an ocean breeze, filtered of road dust . . . and, thanks to the "Weather Eye"*, you'll never have to drive in a topcoat again.

Just let those miles keep rippling off behind your wheels . . . until you know what you felt like back in those carefree days of '29!

Then you'll realize why we had to put a full-size convertible bed inside . . . for once you start driving a Nash, you never know when to stop!

Yes . . . there ought to be a charge for driving a new Nash, because it makes you feel so good.

But this experience is yours to command, at any Nash showroom.

And it can be yours every day in your life, for the cost of a commonplace car!

Fact is, there are ten Nash models priced next to the lowest . . . holders of the Gilmore-Yosemite economy record in their class, with 21.25 miles to the gallon—and built the usual Nash way to go and go and GO!

Come on down . . . and get a new look at life through a Nash windshield.

Folk Festival Draws Students And Teachers

Schools to 'Take Over' 2 Days; Institutes Open to Public

Washington students, from first-graders to Teachers College enrollees, will take over Constitution Hall two afternoons next week when they attend matinee performances of the sixth annual National Folk Festival.

Tier seats have been reserved for elementary pupils Thursday, April 28. The same sections will be occupied the next afternoon by junior high, senor high and college students. School children will be excused from afternoon classes in order to go to the festival performance, which begin at 2:15 p. m.

Two Institutes

Of interest to teachers will be two morning folklore institutes in connection with the National Folk Festival. Both are open to the public without charge and will be held from 10 a. m. until noon in the English Room of the Raleigh Hotel.

Friday's institute will feature a bamboo pipe demonstration by Jennie Cossitt, director of the Pipers Guild of America; animal tales by Miss Lucy Cobb of Raleigh, N. C.; demonstration of musical instrument families by W. B. Parkinson of Le Mars, La.; a discussion of British ballads and folk songs, with dulcimer accompaniment, by Maurice Matteson of State Teachers College, Frostburg Md.; North Carolina ballads and square dance figures by Bascom Lamar Lunsford, Asheville, N. C., and English folk dances by Gene Gowing, English Folk Dance Society of America.

P.-T. A. Handles Tickets

The Saturday institute will include a demonstration of Colorado folk dances by Lloyd Shaw, of the Cheyenne Mountain School, Colorado Springs; "Ballads of the Anthracite Miners in Pennsylvania," by George Korson, of Bucknell University; "Ballads and Nursery Rhymes in Choral Speaking," Miss Elinor Cox Karsten, Sidwell Friends School; "Spanish Ballads in New Mexico," Arthur L. Campa, University of New Mexico; "English Folk Dances," "Gregorian Music With Relation to Folk Music," the Rev. Dennis Mooney, O. F. M., Franciscan Monastery, and "Dance Ceremonials of the Southwest," Miss Clara Helbing, office of Indian Affairs.

Tickets for the student matinees are being handled by a P.-T. A. cooperative committee headed by Mrs. Charles B. Sinclair. Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president of the Washington Congress of Parents and Teachers, is co-operating to spread news of the festival.

Teachers Co-operate

Miss Elizabeth M. Andrews, principal of Bancroft School, heads the Teachers' Co-operative Committee. Her assistants are Miss Katherine Scrivener of Langdon School, Miss Isabelle Foster of Paul, Miss Louise Moore of Central High School, Miss Margaret Street of Abbott Vocational School, Miss Augusta Kriener of Wilson Teachers College, Miss Evangeline Burgess and Mrs. Ethel Connor of the Music Department and Miss Elizabeth Molster of the Department of Health and Physical Education.

Because of the Easter vacation, many were unable to order their tickets before April 17, original deadline for the purchase of student matinee tickets. As a result the sale will continue until the ticket supply is exhausted.

Penguins Tux, Ada Expecting; Bongo the Hippo to Get Mate

Zoo Is Bursting With News: Palawan Peacock Pheasants Have Arrived; Old Tom, Cockatoo, 49 Years Here, to Celebrate Today

Head Keeper William H. Blackburne announced:

Tux and Ada, emulating that more famous pair of penguins, Mollie and Moe, who share the same air-conditioned apartment in the bird house, are sitting on two eggs. This is their first clutch and Blackburne's pretty excited.

Bongo, the hippopotamus, is going to get a mate, a buxom lady hippo named Pinky, which may arrive next week.

A pair of beautiful Palawan pheasants, first to be exhibited here in years, have arrived.

In addition, Blackburne and Old Tom, a sulfur-crested cockatoo, staged a dress rehearsal for the latter's forty-ninth anniversary today as a Zoo inhabitant and the head keeper shipped two dozen alligators, a dozen gray squirrels and a female American buffalo to Germany in exchange for certain other animals.

Mollie the penguin has laid several eggs in the last two years—two of them even hatched—but she and her mate have never reared an heir. Heretofore Tux and Ada, along with the widower penguin who is the fifth occupant of the cell, have looked on enviously as Mollie and Moe basked in the spotlight kindled by their eggs and short-lived penguinettes.

It was last Thursday, said Blackburne, that Ada laid the first egg of her career. Its duplicate arrived Sunday. Since 40 days is the normal hatching time, young ones are expected about a week before Memorial Day—provided all goes well.

The penguin couple chose a strange time for nesting. Malcolm Davis, keeper of the birdhouse who nursed Mollie through her previous confinements, is in India to bring back a rhinoceros and won't be back for two months or so. Dr. William M. Mann, director of National Zoological Park, is somewhere in the South Atlantic bound for Argentina to collect more animals.

As for Bongo's imminent acquisition of a wife—he was widowered several years ago—the unofficial report is that Pinky is coming here from a circus in exchange for Gumdrop, the pygmy hippo born here last year. This swap was disclosed in The Post on April 9.

The Palawan peacock pheasants came here from the West Coast. The male is brilliantly plumaged, its mate a russet brown.

Old Tom the cockatoo, probably the dean of American zoo birds, devoured an anniversary cake tendered him by the head keeper. It was 49 years ago today that the big white specimen, still agile, was presented to the newly founded National Zoological Park by a Bethesdan.

The 37 alligators, squirrels and buffalo which were crated and shipped to Germany will bring, in exchange, some animals yet to be decided upon. They will go to a dealer in Hamburg.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Helen McGraw gives a piano recital Tuesday evening in Pierce Hall. Program: Theme and Variations in F minor (Haydn), "Faschingsschwank aus Wien" (Schumann), Nocturne in D flat major, Valse in E flat major (Chopin), "Isoldes Liebestod" (Wagner-Lizst), "The White Peacock," "The Fountain of Acqua Paola" (Griffes), "Whimsey" (Mary Howe), "La Terrace des Audiences du Claire de Lune," "Poissons d'Or" (Debussy), "Triana" (Albeniz).

A very friendly audience last evening in Pierce Hall gave Helen McGraw the hearty applausive support which encourages an artist, and there were qualities in her playing that merited approbation. For one thing, she has a fluent technique when she allows herself to be at ease on the keyboard and does not concentrate on tone production, and for another, she uses imagination in her readings of music with a picturesque program. Whenever she forgets her tecnique and becomes impulsive, her playing has a pleasing spontaneity that is missing in more labored moments.

Her performance of Haydn's F minor Variations, with which she began the recital, was too precise, almost pedantic in meticulous deliberation of fingering. Moreover, she frequently used the damper pedal, an unwise procedure in music written before that tone-mixing device was invented. Things went much better in Schumann's "Faschingsschwank aus Wien," where her interpretative zest carried her along the way of romantic poesy.

In the D flat Nocture of Chopin she returned to the careful application of dynamics, with the result that the tone of the melodci theme was often hard instead of plastic; in the E flat major Valse fluency again came to her aid in a pleasant performance.

U. S. Itinerary Of King, Queen Worked Out

Ceremony at Arlington, Trip to Mount Vernon Arranged for Capital

An "outline" of arrangements for the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to Washington in June was made public yesterday by the State Department.

President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt will meet the royal couple on their arrival at the Union Station on June 8, and will ride in a motor procession to the White House. On the following day the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their majesties will cruise down the Potomac to Mount Vernon, where the King will lay a wreath on the tomb of the man who defeated the forces of his ancestor, King George III.

Although there have been recurring rumors that the King and Queen might call off their trip, the State Department has at all times proceeded on the theory that there would be no changes in plans.

The Royal Itinerary

The itinerary, as made public by the State Department yesterday, follows:

"Wednesday, June 7: Their majesties will enter the United States from Canada at Niagara Falls, N. Y., late in the evening, where they will be received by an official reception committee, and will proceed by train direct to Washington.

"Thursday, June 8: Their majesties will arrive about 11 a. m. at the Union Station, Washington, where they will be met by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The King and Queen and the President and Mrs. Roosevelt with their respective suites will motor in a procession to the White House, where the heads of mission of the Diplomatic Corps will subsequently be received. After lunching privately at the White House their majesties will attend a garden party at the British Embassy in the afternoon. In the evening a state dinner followed by a reception will be given at the White House.

"Friday, June 9: In the morning their majesties, accompanied by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, will proceed to Mount Vernon by water on board the U. S. S. Potomac, lunching en route. After luncheon the King will lay a wreath on the tomb of George Washington. On leaving Mount Vernon the party will proceed by motor to Arlington Cemetery, where the King will lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Their majesties and the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will, thereafter, return to the White House. In the evening the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guests of their majesties at dinner at the British Embassy. After dinner their majesties will leave for New York by train.

"Saturday, June 10. Their Majesties will pay an official visit to New York City and thereafter will visit the New York World's Fair. In the afternoon they will proceed by motor to Hyde Park, where they will spend the night. The detailed arrangements for this day's program have not yet been determined.

"Sunday, June 11. Their Majesties will spend the day quietly at Hyde Park proceeding by train to Canada in the evening.

"During the visit to the United States of America, the Right Hon. W. L. McKenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, Secretary of State for External Affairs, will act as minister in attendance to the King."

King George and Queen Elizabeth, with their entourage, are scheduled to sail from Portsmouth on May 8, arriving at Quebec May 15. They will make a coast-to-coast tour of Canada before entering the United States. On their return they will spend two days at Newfoundland, Britain's oldest colony.

McCarran Says - Nevada Appointee Is 'Obnoxious'

The ancient "Senatorial courtesy" recently under attack by President Roosevelt, appeared due for another test yesterday as Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, served notice of personal opposition to the nomination of a United States attorney for Nevada.

A meeting of a Senate Judiciary sub-committee, considering the nomination of William S. Boyle was called for this afternoon by Chairman Pittman, McCarran's Nevada colleague. Pittman will vote for confirmation.

Senator McCarran, who charges Boyle's nomination was "political" and "personally obnoxious" to him, is understood to have the proxy of one absent member, Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana. Other members of the sub-committee are Senators Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska; Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, and Austin (Republican), of Vermont.

McCarran said h would base his opposition on the same grounds that Senators Byrd and Glass (Democrats), of Virginia, raised against the appointment of Judge Floyd H. Roberts, of Virginia—that the nomination was designed to be personally distasteful to him. Roberts was overwhelmingly rejected by the Senate, and the President wrote a long letter to the defeated nominee condemning the Senate's courtesy rule.

D. C. Reorganizing Up to Congress, Roosevelt Says

President Roosevelt yesterday indicated he may take a hand in the movement for reform of the District government, but stated that he considered it primarily a matter of Congressional responsibility.

He said he would not confer with Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, sponsor of the Griffenhagen plan, before next week. He explained he had not had the opportunity to examine the draft left with him last week by Kennedy, who is chairman of the House sub-committee on reorganization.

Germans Get Holiday to Fete Hitler's Birth

85,000,000 to Celebrate Triumphs of Year On 50th Anniversary

By the United Press.

Berlin, April 18.—Eighty-five million Germans will celebrate Thursday the fiftieth birthday of Reichsfuehrer Hitler, one time house-painter who in six frenzied years led them to the greatest heights of triumph attained by Germany in modern times.

The day has been proclaimed a national holiday; all stores and offices will be closed, and the swastika, which the former corporal has made the emblem of German might, will fly everywhere.

The man who welded the Third Reich into the most dynamic military force on the continent, and whose decisions govern the fates of his people, today is probably at the peak of his popularity with the German people. During the past year, in which he added greater teritorial gains to the Reich than at any equal period in modern German history, Hitler also became less inaccessible, more human and better known to the mass of the German nation.

Changed Strikingly

In the previous years of his brief period in power Der Fuehrer avoided society, hated big gatherings and rarely visited the theater except to hear his favorite Wagnerian operas. In recent months he has changed strikingly in this respect.

At large receptions in the new chancellory or in Munich the chancellor now moves freely and easily, conversing with his guests. He has even taken a particular personal interest in arranging entertainments for these parties. An example was his invitation to the two American dancers whom he saw performing in musical shows. He asked them to perform for his guests and personally attended rehearsals and discussed with the girls what dances they should perform at his party.

He recently developed an increased liking for vaudeville and celebrated the evening of his return from Memel at a music hall.

On his recent two-day sea trip to Heligoland aboard the new tourist liner Robert Ley, Hitler walked around the decks and conversed informally with his guests, obviously enjoying himself. At the birthday celebration in the chancellory, which will be separate from the public festivities, he will receive his personal staff, from secretaries to chancellory charwomen.

Remembers Staff

According to those who know him well, Der Fuehrer maintains close contact with all these people, chats with them when he meets them in corridors of the chancellory and asks about their children and family affairs.

The children of his personal friends and staff members are well known to Der Fuehrer. He knows their names and even their birthdays, which he remembers with small gifts of money.

Among the millions who will cheer Hitler Thursday, practically none know of his new "Eagle's Nest" partly carved from living rock on a high mountain-top at Obersalzberg, Bavaria. According to his intimates, it is here that he works out grandiose schemes for remaking the map of Europe.

There also he pores over plans for rebuilding Berlin and other German cities. Among the results of these lonely sessions are the chancellery, recently completed, and Berlin's new "east-west axis" highway, along which he will drive in triumph tomorrow and take the salute of 40,000 troops.

Ban on Photographs

Berlin, April 18 (AP).—A ban on photographs of troops or equipment during the Hitler birthday celebration Thursday was taken today to indicate that a surprise might be in store for the foreign military attaches who will be guests at the military review which is part of the program.

Private airplanes were forbidden to fly over Berlin between 7 p. m. Wednesday and 8 p. m. Thursday and warning was given that anti-aircraft guns would be on guard.

appeal to Hitler and Mussolini had named the aggressors in a prospective war.

Also in the field of foreign affairs, Chairman Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, disclosed that the "cash and carry" provisions of the neutrality act would be allowed to expire April 30 despite the European crisis.

Pittman had indicated previously that the provisions might be extended for about 60 days.

Japan on Ragged Edge

Close testified that with her gold almost gone, Japan economically is on the "ragged edge." The reason Japan contemplated an alliance with Germany and Italy, he said, was to obtain help for her armies in China in return for giving them the assistance of her fleet.

Japan, Close remarked at one point, "has no power of reprisal against us" and realizes a war with the United States would mean her "finish."

The company recently has been manufacturing large orders of steel mill machinery on Japanese order.

Panama Raises Boyd To Rank of Ambassador

Minister Augusto Boyd of Panama has been notified by cable of his elevation to the rank of Ambassador. Last month the United States raised its Legation in Panama to the status of Embassy.

Within the last few months this country has effected similar diplomatic changes in its relations with Colombia and Venezuela. The elevations are in keeping with the growing policy of strengthening bonds with Latin American nations.

Benes Praises Russia's Stand In Czech Crisis

Soviet Ready to Give Aid, Says Exiled President

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chicago, April 18.—Soviet Russia was adequately prepared for war at the time of the Munich crisis, and was ready to fulfill its pledge of military assistance to Czecho-Slovakia even if France and Great Britain deserted the little republic, Dr. Eduard Benes, former President of Czecho-Slovakia, declared today.

Dr. Benes' statement was quoted in an authorized interview with Erika Mann, writer and daughter of the self-exiled German novelist, Thomas Mann, published today in the Chicago Daily News.

"People are asking," wrote Miss Mann, "whether Russian reluctance to join the British stop-Hitler bloc means Russia is not interested in European developments or is unwilling or unable to participate."

According to Miss Mann, Dr. Benes described Russia's position last September in these words: "Russia was faithful to the very last moment; I know that. Shortly before the Munich conference I sent a military commission to Russia. It came back with the best reports as to all aspects of Russia's morale and military preparedness. The reports as to air, sea and land forces were completely satisfactory."

Dr. Benes added that he was assured by Russia that it would have sent military assistance even though France and Great Britain failed to do so.

"It is more than understandable that Dr. Benes doesn't want to discuss today the reasons for his attitude during the crisis. It is generally known, however, that the Ambassadors of England and France not only declined to promise help in case of hostilities, but even indicated, in the name of their governments, that these governments, as in the case of Spain, might actually help the aggressor in the guise of 'nonintervention.'"

In talks with friends at the University of Chicago, Dr. Benes has revealed that the Conservative Agrarian Party in Czecho-Slovakia had threatened to revolt if such a stand were taken with the sole support of the Communist power.

Gen. Fairbank Lauds Purpose Of War Groups

Patriotic societies are extremely valuable reminders of "our duties as citizens under the Stars and Stripes, Brig. Gen L. C. Fairbank, assistant surgeon general of the Army, declared last night.

"Organizations founded for patriotic purposes keep us alive to the traditions of which Americans do well to be proud," he told the District Society of the War of 1812.

During the meeting, establishment of a national park on the site of the Battle of New Orleans was discussed and Zelah R. Farmer was admitted to membership.

of foreign governments which defaulted on their war debts.

Opinion is that machinery would be set up which would make it possible to handle in an orderly way any liquidation of American securities held by British and French nationals. A proposal has been advanced for creation of a large American corporation to buy up and hold the securities for slow liquidation. American banks, it is understood, might lend as much as $1,000,000,000 or $2,000,000,000 to finance such a plan.

Lower Margin

The Federal Reserve Board, it is expected, would cut the prevailing 40 per cent margin requirements on stock purchases to aid in the absorption of any liquidated stocks.

Officials believe outbreak of war would cause some depression of values through liquidation, but prices of certain stocks would bound upward.

Such a reaction would spring from the fact that this country inevitably would furnish supplies to participants, including, presumably, war materials if the "cash and carry" neutrality amendments are pressed. Supplies would go chiefly to the democracies, but also to some extent to the totalitarian powers unless the Government imposed sanctions in one way or another.

Arrive at War Roles

Officials taking part in the study have about concluded their discussions, at least for the present, it was said. Their object simply was to arrive at an understanding as to what role each agency would play in cushioning the shock to domestice business in case of war.

The policy to be followed, it was said, is to impose no restrictions unless necessary.

The whole subject of world trade was discussed at the conference with the President, it is understood. Those participating were Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Undersecretary John W. Hanes, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Reserve Board; Jerome Frank, member of the SEC, and Ganson Purcell, chief of the SEC trading and exchange division.

portunities to exploit Rumania's natural resources.

Official sources emphatically denied rumors that the free city of Danzig would "return home to Germany" on Thursday.

The organ of German industrialists, Die Deutsche Bergwerks-Zeitung, called President Roosevelt "the pied piper of Washington" for his appeal to Hitler and Premier Mussolini for ten years of peace.

Other newspaper comment included statements like: "Roosevelt likes to create a second Versailles" and "the encirclement strategists would like to disarm Germany again just as in Versailles."

Official circles emphasized that plans for the fleet exercises had been in preparation for a long time. Germany was said to have informed Paris and London, in accordance with international custom. Officially, the maneuvers were called a resumption of an old tradition, now that Gen. Franco has won the Spanish civil war.

The official news agency, DNB, announced that between April 27 and May 1 the German vessels would visit these ports: Cadiz, Algeciras and Malaga, in southern Spain; Ceuta, in Spanish Morocco, and Tangier, in the International Zone, in northwestern Africa. (This itinerary means that the ships will pass through the Strait of Gibraltar.)

From May 6 to May 10 the fleet will visit five ports on the northwest coast of Spain.

Danzigers Want Corridor

Danzig, April 18 (AP).—The return of Danzig to Germany without the Polish Corridor would not be acceptable, Dr. Viktor Boettcher, leader of the Nazi-dominated Danzig Senate, declared tonight.

A high authority intimated that Danzig Nazi leaders might make a symbolical presentation of the free city to Reichsfuehrer Hitler Thursday, but that Germany would await completion of negotiations with Poland before taking any positive steps to effect the union.

It's Washington's own Railroad, but . . .

do you know this about it?

Yes, the Baltimore & Ohio is "Washington's own railroad"—the first to enter the Nation's Capital. It's so close—right here at home—maybe you are not thoroughly familiar with its exclusive travel advantages.

Do you know, for example, when you go to New York on the B & O:

. . . that B & O Motor Coaches await you alongside the train to take you to any of 17 places in New York and Brooklyn, including many leading hotels—at no additional cost?

. . . that you needn't touch your luggage from the time it is put on the train until you arrive at your coach destination?

. . . that you avoid long stairways and city traffic worries—that tips aren't expected, or accepted, for this service?

. . . that you enjoy an inspiring view of New York's magnificent skyline—and that no other railroad offers you these travel conveniences?

Of course, if you ride with us regularly to New York—as many Washington folks do—you know of these things. But, if you haven't experienced the advantages B & O offers—especially to Coach passengers—why not use one of our Diesel-Powered Streamliners—"The Royal Blue" or "The Columbian"? A Coach Chair will be reserved for you—free. Other fast trains at convenient hours.

You've got a husky Dynaflash straight-eight engine there that doesn't know what it means to fret or fume or falter—yet goes mighty easy on the gas and oil.

You've got a sturdy low-swung frame and chassis—solid in its set on the road, steady-riding, firm—staunch enough for the heaviest pushing.

You've got springs of a kind that never wear out—they're coil springs, and they keep their softness without ever any need of grease.

You've got room—and a better view—and that reliable Buick merit running like a fine blood strain through this whole able carriage.

Yet, look around and you'll find that this big straight-eight costs less than some sixes! It's priced even lower than it was a year ago!

And it includes in its price many a much-wanted item you'll be asked to pay extra for elsewhere.

So while you're buying why not buy the car and the value of the year—the beauty that's a husky and a bargain to boot? The nearest Buick dealer has the low delivered prices—and will be tickled to demonstrate just how very much they buy.

Duce Calls Out New Class; Over Million Armed

40,000 More Troops Ready to Bolster 100,000 in Albania

By International News Service.

Rome, April 18.—Premier Mussolini tonight ordered the immediate mobilization of a new army reservist class amid authoritative indications that Il Duce will formally reject President Roosevelt's proposal for a 10-to-25-year era of peace.

Men of the class of 1913 were called to the colors in a sudden move which increased Italy's armed forces well beyond the 1,000,000 mark.

The order for additional mobilization came despite an official statement last week which specifically declared no more men would be called up "except under exceptional circumstances."

No Public Rejection

It was learned, meanwhile, that an estimated 40,000 troops were concentrated tonight at Brindisi for transportation to Albania to reinforce the present garrison of more than 100,000 Italian troops.

Mussolini's formal rejection of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for a peace conference and a guarantee of peace from Europe's dictators, will reach Washington by way of diplomatic channels. The Italian premier, it was learned authoritatively, has decided not to use a public address medium to reply to Mr. Roosevelt in the manner chosen by Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

The premier's rejection, however, will provide "space for discussion" at least of vital economic factors as long as it remains a part of official diplomatic intercourse. That seems to be the potent reason for Mussolini's choice of the more stable, less colorful manner of rejecting the American President's "peace message."

In this connection, however, it was learned Mussolini's reply is scheduled for delivery through the Italian Embassy in Washington "some time before" April 28, the date on which the German Reichstag has been called into special session to hear Hitler's answer.

Encirclement Countered

A Fascist counter-offensive to the Anglo-French defensive campaign of "encirclement" was launched with the revelation that Italy has won a promise from Hungary to agree to a nonaggression pact with Yugoslavia.

This Hungarian pledge, it was learned, was negotiated by Mussolini and Foreign Minister Ciano today at a conference with Hungarian diplomats in the Palazzo Venezia.

During the next week-end Count Ciano will travel to Venice for a meeting with Yugoslav Foreign Minister Conca-Markocitch. Then, with the Rome-Berlin axis acting again as a unit, Ciano will prepare the nonaggression offer for Yugoslavian consideration.

The offer will reaffirm Italy's pledges of nonaggression against Yugoslavia on the condition that Belgrade joins the Nazi-Fascist anti-Communist front with all its military and political ramifications.

It is considered highly doubtful that the Yugoslav government will hesitate long before accepting the Italo-German bonds since the Balkan nation even now has thousands of Italian troops at its "back door" facing Albania, and many German military units near its Austrian frontier on the northwest.

The Italo-German diplomatic move in Yugoslavia's direction obviously was designed to strengthen Italy's hands in the Balkans and forestall further efforts by Great Britain and France to line up Balkan nations against the Nazi-Fascist axis.

Another step in this direction was announced by Virginio Gayda, semi-official editorialist of the newspaper Giornale Italia. He stated that Hungary's co-operation with the Rome-Berlin axis in opposition to Anglo-French "encirclement" will be reaffirmed in Berlin shortly.

NORA GREGOR, beautiful Viennese actress, has petitioned Adolf Hitler for a divorce from Prince Ernest Rudiger Von Starhemberg, former vice chancellor of Austria, it was reported yesterday. dent would perform a public service if he immediately recalled our Ambassador to Great Britain and replaced him with the best Benjamin Franklin he can find."

La Follette, offering a program "for the welfare of the American people," urged that "we cannot meet successfully the threat from abroad without solving the problems at home." He urged that every able-bodied American be restored the "guaranteed right—not to a living—but to earn a decent living from useful work."

"By so doing," he said, "we shall safeguard democracy at home and take a big step toward undermining dictatorship abroad."

He recommended that the Monroe Doctrine be redefined to "make clear that we will not tolerate Nazilism in any form in any part of this hemisphere" and that "the closest economic and political relations" be established with "all the Americas, but especially with our closest neighbors, Canada and Mexico."

"La Follette expressed distrust for the governments of Britain and France, whose policies, he said have resulted not from stupidity but "a narrow, short-sighted but extremely shrewd purpose to give preference to class interests ahead of national welfare."

"These policies," he said, "have been based on the following conclusions of that group:"

First: Germany and Italy are dangerously near a distorted form of communism. Upsetting of Hitler and Mussolini would make Germany and Italy even more of a menace to the British and French governing groups. Hence the policy of appearing to oppose Hitler and Mussolini, while giving them aid.

Second—Another prolonged war might mean a political and economic revolution in Britain and France.

Third—If war does come, the support of the United States and the dominions will be required, but that support could not be won over by British propaganda, so discredited in the World War. Hence is was advantageous to let Hitler and Mussolini get away with acts of brutal aggression, to arouse America and the dominions.

Spain Assures France of Peaceful Intent

Denies Troop Shifts In Morocco Aimed At Her or Britain

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 18.—France has obtained assurances from Burgos, political informants said tonight, that troop movements within Spain and to Spanish Morocco were aimed at neither France nor Britain.

Spanish Ambassador Lequerica told Foreign Minister Bonnet, these sources said, that return of large forces of Moroccan troops to Spanish Morocco was merely a step in post-war demobilization and, contrary to reports in France, troops had not been sent to the border of French Morocco.

Diplomatic sources reported that both the French and British were concerned over the movement of a German naval squadron into Spanish waters.

The German pocket battleships of the Deutschland type, they said, were ideal "raiders" since they carried bigger guns than cruisers of the French and British navy and were faster than most French or British battleships.

In case of war, diplomatic sources theorized, these German warships might be able to cut British-French supply lines with the Americas while a German submarine fleet kept the German Baltic and North Sea ports open.

Premier Daladier told the cabinet today that the continuing seriousness of world conditions made it necessary for France to increase her defenses still further.

President Lebrun signed seven decrees, one of which established detailed government control of armaments supplies. Others dealt with increasing imports, particularly of military supplies such as oil.

Moroccan Troops Massed

Tangier, April 18 (AP).—French authorities at Rabat, Morocco, tonight took a grave view of developments in Spanish Morocco, where 60,000 Moroccan troops were said to be massed about 14 miles from the Tangier International Zone.

Ships Patrol Mediterranean

By the United Press.

Gibraltar, April 18 (U.P.).—More than 150 French and British warships tonight patrolled the approaches to the Mediterranean as a counter-move to the departure of the German battle fleet for Spanish waters for a month of spring maneuvers.

Some quarters close to the French government asserted that the prompt Anglo-French naval measures in the last 48 hours had thwarted plans for a coup against the Tangiers International Zone opposite Gibraltar.

Germany and Italy were reported to have brought pressure upon Gen. Franco of Spain to reassert Spain's claims to Tangiers, but he was reported to have refused.

Twenty French warships, including two battleships, kept up steam in Gibraltar Harbor and two destroyers patrolled the bay.

Turkish and Bulgarian Alliances to Britain Await Word of Russian Pledge to Aid Bloc

By the Associated Press.

London, April 18.—Efforts were intensified tonight to get both Turkey and Bulgaria, German allies in the World War, into the French-British front of nations.

The efforts hinged upon conversations in Moscow, Sofia and London, and until results are known it is unlikely that agreement with Turkey alone will be announced by Prime Minister Chamberlain.

He told Parliament today that conversations were continuing with Soviet Russia, that Britain welcomed with "satisfaction" the Roosevelt appeal to Italy and Germany for a ten-year peace, that "necessary contacts," military and otherwise, would be maintained with nations in the French-British bloc.

Chamberlain also told a questioner that Britain was interested in the independence of the Netherlands, Switzerland and Denmark, but had made no specific commitments to assist any of those countries.

Axis Seeks Allies

(British-French diplomatic maneuvers for allies were countered by increased efforts of the Rome-Berlin axis to gain new converts.

(Rumania and Yugoslavia, in particular, were being courted by democracies and dictators alike. Rumanian Foreign Minister Gafencu was in Berlin, and was to meet Reichsfuehrer Hitler Thursday. Yugoslava Foreign Minister Conca-Markovitch is to confer with Italy's Count Giano at Venice within a few days.

(Hungary, war-shattered neighbor of both Rumania and Yugoslavia, was also the object of Italo-German pressure, and the Budapest premier and foreign minister were in Rome today.)

Soviet Aid Gets Setback

[Soviet Russia's relations with the "stop-Hitler" front apparently were complicated by a reported Polish-Rumanian agreement that neither country will enter into any kind of defensive alliance with Moscow, the United Press said.—Editor's note.]

The Turkish Ambassador, Tevfik Rustu Aras, visited the London foreign office this morning; the Bulgarian Minister, Nicolas Momtchiloff, left for Sofia to consult his government, and the Soviet Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, flew to Moscow to report.

Political informants understood that:

Turkey and Bulgaria agreed could expect no immediate aid from Britain or France unless Soviet Russia definitely supported the alliance sponsored by those two powers.

Turkey was being urged to use her influence to bring Bulgaria into the French-British front. Britain and France already have guaranteed to aid Poland, Greece and Rumania if they are menaced.

London suggested that Russia make unilateral declarations that military aid would be sent to nations of the French-British front if, as and when they requested it.

It was believed such a general commitment would enable Russia to send airplanes to the aid of Turkey, Poland or Rumania and thus get around Polish and Rumanian objections to occupation of their soil by Russian land forces.

Gafencu to Visit London

If such a declaration can be obtained it is believed both Turkey and Bulgaria would come into the bloc sponsored by Britain and France.

It was announced officially that Rumanian Foreign Minister Gafencu would arrive in London Saturday.

Meanwhile, a high authority said that Britain and France had agreed on division of responsibility in the Mediterranean during wartime—the British navy to patrol the eastern end and French warships to guard the western or Gibraltar section. This would account for the present concentration of French warships off Gibraltar, which started after Berlin announced the Nazi fleet would hold spring maneuvers off the Spanish coast.

The war office acknowledged that troops had been moved back from Palestine to Egypt, because of recent straightening of Italian forces in African Libya.

Poland Must Decide

The matter of possible resistance to any German attempt to take the Free City of Danzig, Nazi-dominated Baltic port under Polish customs, appeared tonight to rest still with Poland.

Foreign Affairs Undersecretary R. A. Butler, questioned in Commons, declined to go beyond the British-French pledge of aid to maintain Polish independence. Under that pledge, Poland must take up arms to preserve her independence to bring Britain and France to her aid.

Britain's new envoy to Rome, Sir Percy Loraine, was understood to have discussed at the foreign office how he would be accredited, since King Vittorio Emanuele now has been proclaimed King of Albania and Britain has condemned the Italian conquest.

It was hoped that Italy would not insist upon having Sir Percy's credentials include Albania, but that the present Minister in Albania would continue to represent the Albanian part of the Italian empire.

The same issue arose over Italian conquest of Ethiopia. The Earl of Perth was already Ambassador to Rome, but his credentials were not altered until last November 16 to read to the "King-Emperor," acknowledging the conquest.

Congress to Keep U. S. Out of War

Congress will carry out the "wish of the overwhelming majority of the American people" and keep this country out of the "next European war," Representative Martin Smith (Democrat), of Washington, declared last night at a meeting of James S. Pettit Camp No. 3, United Spanish War Veterans.

Speaking at the Capitol Park Hotel, Smith said if the neutrality law is repealed a cash and carry law will be passed.

'Suicide Cure' A Hoax, Randle Jury Is Told

Honor Student Says He Didn't Know Mother Paid $500

Rufus Reed, honor graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, testified before Justice Adkins yesterday that he never had the suicidal impulses which Rosalyn Randle, on trial for a health fraud, charged his mother $500 for "curing."

The youth said he did not know his mother, Mrs. Catherine Reed, was paying the buxom Mrs. Randle but thought she was trying to help him out of friendship. He said she promised to help him get a job in a brokerage office.

Mrs. Randle is accused of obtaining money by false pretenses. She also is under indictment for using the mails to defraud, by claiming to be a health and diet expert with ability to teach immunity to any disease if paid $500 in advance.

Mother Testifies

Mrs. Randle was summoned yesterday to answer the claim of Mary Lea, Interstate Commerce Commission employe, that stock for which she paid the Rosalyn Randle Corporation $1,545 was worth much less.

Mrs. Reed concluded her testimony early yesterday. Mrs. Randle said Mrs. Reed, declared she was licensed to practice medicine in several States. These things, she told the court, persuaded her to part with $500 to get her son cured of a "malformation of the brain."

Mrs. Reed testified Mrs. Randle offered to give back the $500 and extra money for expenses if Mrs. Reed would get the Government to drop the prosecution. Assistant District Attorney Caldwell, who with Assistant District Attorney Grace Brown Stiles is handling the case, rejected the idea.

Student Held Sound

Dr. Robert A. Brotemarkle, University of Pennsylvania psychology professor and personnel director, said he talked to Rufus Reed after Mrs. Randle wrote him that she and her "very dear friend," Mrs. Reed, feared the boy was headed toward "suicide or self destruction." Mrs. Randle also wrote that the boy was superior mentally but inferior physically.

Dr. Brotemarkle said he found Reed "perfectly all right" mentally and sufficiently fit to be on the swimming squad, but wrote Mrs. Randle thanking her for her interest and promising to consider her recommendations. Mrs. Randle showed this letter to Mrs. Reed as evidence that the university was co-operating with her, Mrs. Reed previously testified.

Rufus Reed was the concluding witness. He said he was shy and doubted whether he would find success in life, but did not consider himself a mental case.

The defense is expected to open today, with the likelihood that Mrs. Randle will take the stand.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris.

QUEEN COTTON: Dixie's "Cotton Queen," Miss Alice Louise Hall, of Memphis, made a special appearance in Shoreham's Blue Room on Monday. We were told that every item of her costume was made of cotton, but her pink lace dance frock was so-o-o long that we refused to be convinced about the alleged cotton stockings . . . Seen in the party of Philippine Vice President Osmena was Attorney General Frank Murphy, who sat next to blondly lovely Jean Parker, with whom he frequently goes horseback riding, also polo playing Philippine Commissioner J. M. Elizalde and Mrs. Elizalde, she very chic in black . . . In another group was that stunning Cuban blond, Margarieta Montero, niece of the sugar king, Dr. Oscar Diaz Albertini . . . Most beautiful dance of the year is Dorothy Stone's and Charles Collins' version of Brahms' "Lullaby."

What ball players (and umpires) played indoor baseball at what spots on rainy Tuesday? No, we wouldn't think of telling. What d'ye take us for?

RAINBOW VISITS ARTS CLUB: Durward Bowerson, violinist of the Rainbow Room, appeared with the singer, Helen Robichaux, at a special recital at the Arts Club last evening. Both were applauded no end, and deservedly. Durward's solo numbers included Kreisler's "Schon Rosemarin," airily done; the brilliant trick harmonics of "Perpetual Motion," by Bohn, and a marvelously appealing version of "Ave Maria," using the arrangement of August Wilhelmj.

METRONOME PRIZES will be awarded to the winners of last Wednesday's "tune guessing contest." Maestro Paul Kain tells us that a dozen-odd of last week's contenders came close to making a perfect score, but none did. All of these top guessers have a chance to land a prize, because if those who made the best scores aren't on hand, the next ones in line will be the winners.

And if you don't win, remember there's another "tune guessing contest" tonight, too. Try, try again.

MADRILLON-MEXICO: There's a tremendous buzz that Madrillon is going Mexican this spring. Mexican decorations, chair covers and so on are supposed to be part of the new picture. We wish, too, there'd be more of that tea dancing that was such a hit during Easter week.

RUSSIAN FIESTA: Dave Apollon (Capitol Theater) flung a colossal party last night at the Troika. The doings were in honor of Yasha Datsko, Troika's new violinist-maestro, who's a great friend of the explosive Apollon. Between Troika's own Russians, headed by Singer Luba Malina, and the advent of the Apollon cohorts from the Capitol, the scene was one of elegant madness.

The blue and silver color scheme that sets off the brilliancy of the Neptune Room murals.

SEVEN VEILS IN BAMBOO: The saucy Brucettes are doing the "Dance of the Seven Veils" at Bamboo Gardens this week. It's minus one veil, because there are six Brucettes and they wear one veil apiece. This seems to leave them six down on Salome. Also this paragraph is getting tangled. But you'll be tangled, too, after you see the "Veil Dance." Juliana's doing a fan dance, too—but in a swirling gown of electric blue to "Rhapsody in Blue."

RUMORS—ABSOLUTELY UNCONFIRMED: That a mysterious philanthropist has posted a standing offer of $25 to anyone who can make Beverly Stull (Mayfair's cunning accordionist) sneeze while she's wearing her strapless evening gown.

That Al Simmonds (Brown Derby) has fallen in love. This canard seems to have started because Al's been going around with alternately harassed and vacant stares in his eyes. It's more likely that someone's given him a hyena for his zoo and he's trying to keep it a secret.

That Capt. Don Dickerman (Pirates' Den) is going to spring some taller fish stories than the ones he's told. Reediculous! We don't see how the doughty captain can exceed himself.

Mrs. Stinson And Husband's Lawyer Tiff

Justice Luhring Calms All in Final Hearing

Mrs. Pepita Crounse Stinson, plump, wealthy and 54, who won plaudits for volubility as the first witness for herself five weeks ago in her suit to void her marriage to Joseph Whitla Stinson, went back to the stand to close her case yesterday and unmasked a new courtroom weapon—stony silence studded with sharp jabs at her husband's lawyer.

Gentle-voiced Carroll L. Reedy, former Representative from Maine, who represents Stinson, at length abandoned his suavity for angry thundering. When Mrs. Stinson's lawyers, Alvin L. Newmyer and A. K. Shipe, protested, Reedy told Justice Luhring:

"If she would act like a lady and not snap me up, I would be able to be decent to her."

Justice Luhring soothed all parties and the hearing swept to a conclusion.

The Justice indicated that he may decide the case on an issue that arose in the course of Mrs. Stinson's claims that the 56-year-old lawyer-artist-engineer-writer gave her drugs so she would marry him and turn over her $700,000 estate.

Stinson has stoutly denied such a plot, claiming Mrs. Stinson ran after him and forced on him the $37,000 cash and interest in a $220,000 trust fund she now wants back.

In the trial it was asserted that Mrs. Harriet McKee Stinson went to Reno and stayed just long enough to get a divorce. Luhring indicated that if this were the case the Reno divorce would be void in the District and that consequently Stinson's second marriage would be void too.

The lawyers are expected to take all today and part of tomorrow summing up the five weeks of evidence, after which Justice Luhring probably will take the case under advisement.

Sen. Lewis Left $30,000 Estate to Widow

Chicago, April 18 (INS).—The late Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, left an estimated estate of $30,000, it was disclosed today when his will, dated September 16, 1938, was filed for probate. The widow was bequeathed the entire estate except for $50 monthly to be paid to Mrs. Harry Cohan, of Atlanta, Ga., widow of a cousin.

3 Families Earn $100 Monthly; Get Relief Aid

Three families of a total of 786 receiving aid for dependent children had monthly incomes from "other sources" in excess of $100 during December, it was reported yesterday by Miss M. Alice Hill, director of public assistance.

Less than a year ago, Relief Investigator Burdette G. Lewis found that more than 10 per cent of the families receiving these grants had monthly incomes of more than $100.

Miss Hill, who resigned her job recently following severe criticism by Lewis, said a public assistance grant was justified in these three households despite the apparent income in excess of $100. She based her findings on a study made in December, 1938, prior to Lewis' report to Congress.

One of the families had a total income from all sources of $136, including $16 per month from the public assistance division. This household contained nine persons, five of whom are eligible for aid to dependent children. The second family had a total income of $322 ($32 ADC grant) for 13 persons. The third family containing seven persons had an income of $173, including a grant of $16.

How the plus of OIL-PLATING brings you more than an oil-change

YOU DON'T want any bluster about changing your oil. It gets down pretty simple, if you take just a minute and begin at the beginning. You know right off that the fresh oil needed in your crankcase today, isn't to lubricate the crankcase. Either your oil is in the bearings and up to the cylinder head every turn of your engine, or your lubrication isn't 100%.

Now what's the chance for any of the general run of oils to stay up while you've parked the car, for instance? Just about as much chance as there is for a geyser to stay up all by itself! Then what happens every time you start? Do you want pistons getting up to the top before any oil gets up from the crankcase? No you don't, and you kill that risk by changing now to OIL-PLATING.

OIL-PLATING comes from the "magnetic action" of Conoco Germ Processed oil—basically patented. Much like other plating, OIL-PLATING firmly unites with metals—"magnetically" stays on inner engine surfaces throughout all your stops, starts and runs this Summer. From the starter's first flip to the last inch of any trip OIL-PLATING holds on every instant. Your Germ Processed oil keeps a good steady hold on the "Full" mark, too, as you'll see—by changing today to Your Mileage Merchant. Continental Oil Company

A Changed Court

In pronouncing the agricultural adjustment act of 1938 constitutional the Supreme Court did not specifically overrule its previous opinion which invalidated the first AAA in January, 1936. It was not necessary for the court to reconsider its reasoning at that time, for the existing AAA rests on a constitutional foundation entirely different from that of its predecessor. The court would not permit regulation of agriculture under the taxing power of Congress, but it has sanctioned a more drastic type of regulation under the commerce powers.

The opinion is significant chiefly for the change it denotes in the attitude of the Supreme Court. Three years ago it examined the entire agricultural adjustment act and came to the conclusion that Congress has no authority to enforce its commands upon the farmer. The court looked beyond the processing taxes and the conditional grants of money to farmers. Its chief concern was the underlying purpose of the AAA to curtail agricultural production and thus increase the prices of basic farm commodities. In Monday's decision, however, the court was content to find the letter of the agricultural act within the limits of the Constitution and to ignore its underlying purpose.

Since both opinions were written by Justice Roberts the gap between their reasoning serves as an interesting measure of the change which has come over the high tribunal during the last three years. "It is an established principle," said Justice Roberts in his opinion in the Hoosac Mills case, "that the attainment of a prohibited end may not be accomplished under the pretext of the exertion of powers which are granted." The court then took its stand upon the dictum of Marshall: "Let the end be legitimate . . . and all means which are . . . not prohibited . . . are constitutional."

But in Mulford vs. Smith the court was concerned with means and not ends. "Within these limits," Justice Roberts wrote, "the exercise of the power, the grant being unlimited in its terms, may lawfully extend to the absolute prohibition of such (interstate) commerce, and a fortiori to limitation of the amount of a given commodity which may be transported in such commerce. The motive of Congress in exerting the power is irrelevant to the validity of the legislation."

That is a sweeping declaration which carries the court a long way from the doctrine of "let the end be legitimate." There can be little question as to the fact that the chief motive of Congress in passing both the agricultural act of 1933 and that of 1938 was to control the production of various farm products. If the Supreme Court intends to ignore the motives and purposes of Congressional acts and consider only the constitutional pegs on which such legislation is hung, the safeguards which have heretofore protected our dual system of government will be gravely weakened.

Two Men Of Aries

Under the sign of Aries the ram two men were born 50 years ago this week. Both began in poverty, one in the slums of London, the other at Braunau-on-the-Inn, in what was then Austria-Hungary. Both have achieved world-wide fame. And by a further odd coincidence, both are great actors on the world stage.

Charlie Chaplin's tragic muse has made him the outstanding film comedian. His baggy clothes, his oversize shoes, his cane and his foreshortened mustache are known from Tibet to Timbucktoo. Millions have laughed at this strangely pathetic figure who in miles of celluloid has battled vainly against overwhelming fate. They have laughed because they saw in this two-dimensional apparition a symbol of themselves. He has made their lot easier.

Chaplin was 50 on Sunday. No one slept the worse for it. No mothers drew their children closer in fear that the mouth under the silly mustache would issue orders to devastate a civilization. There was only regret that the incomparable talents of Charlie Chaplin have been employed so sparingly of late and that a figure that seemed ageless is actually getting old.

Hitler will be 50 tomorrow. The world anticipates that birthday with dread. Will the Fuehrer use it to send armies marching into Danzig or the Corridor? Will he hurl new acts of defiance at a nerve-wracked world?

The situation is one of cosmic tragedy. But the central figure is in reality a grim comedian. A man with a gnawing inferiority complex seeks to drown his own inner uncertainty by compelling the world to accept him as master. A man of uncertain ancestry has built a creed and a system on purity of blood. Here is a man who often speaks but rarely listens; who almost never reads but has written a book which has shaken the world to its foundations. There is, if governed by logic, no sense in Hitler's rise, his philosophy, his actions. It is all pure comedy, yet comedy of a nightmarish quality.

Two men of Aries, two men of 50, two men rather alike in appearance yet world's apart in everything that counts. What the world needs is less of the awful comedy of Hitler, more of the whimsical tragedy of Chaplin.

The Neutrality Issue

Recent polls of the Institute of Public Opinion strongly indicate that a majority of Americans are beginning to favor a dynamic policy for the United States in the present international crisis. And this developing public opinion may well prove a positive factor for peace, carrying as it does a clear warning that no government with aggressive designs can count on continuation of the passive attitude which our present neutrality legislation seeks to make mandatory.

Only a minority of Americans have ever pretended to be neutral in thought with respect to the aggressive actions of Japan, Italy and Germany. When these actions have meant the invasion and subjection of other peoples, they have aroused widespread condemnation in this country. And the Administration, voicing public opinion, has not let the neutrality act impede the expression of strong official protests.

This does not mean that many Americans believe the United States should support the victims of aggression, past, present or future, by military means. The number who can look with equanimity on any involvement of this sort is unquestionably small. But to an increasing degree citizens seem to favor actions "short of war" which would make our alignment more positive and thereby lessen the chance of war.

Thus recent Gallup polls indicate that 82 per cent favor the sale of food supplies to Great Britain and France in the event those nations are involved in war, and that 66 per cent support the sale of war materials as well. No fewer than 78 per cent of a cross-section of the populace approve the valorization tax recently imposed on German goods. A somewhat smaller, but still impressive percentage—65—sponsors a boycott of all German goods as a result of Nazi policies. And the most recent poll reveals that a modification of the neutrality law, in the interests of British and French purchases of arms and munitions, is favored by almost six of every ten average Americans.

These polls suggest a large measure of popular support for the Pittman bill, which would extend the cash-and-carry provisions of the existing neutrality act to include munitions and weapons of war. And they also suggest the existence of considerable popular backing for the Thomas amendment. This would give the President, subject to the approval of Congress, the power to exempt states deemed victims of aggression from wartime embargoes. The definition of aggression would be the President's finding of violation of a treaty to which the United States is a party—presumably the Kellogg Pact. But a majority vote of both House and Senate would be necessary to develop this finding into concrete assistance for the victimized nation.

Because Great Britain and France control the Atlantic, the operations of a universal cash-and-carry provision would in the event of war obviously operate against Germany and Italy. But in the Far East, for the same reason, the measure would operate in favor of Japan as against China. It is because of this, presumably, that Senator Pittman is sponsoring separate economic sanctions against Japan as a violator of the Nine-Power Treaty.

The Thomas bill, if logically applied, would avoid such positive discrimination. It seeks to assist the victim rather than to penalize the aggressor. But it nonetheless makes the essential distinction, lacking in the present neutrality act, between the nation that respects its treaties and the nation that violates them. The American people seem to agree with Senator Thomas that any neutrality law which fails to draw this difference "is essentially an immoral and war-encouraging act."

Yes, Deer

Recently archery fans of Worcester County, Md., won the right to hunt deer with bows and arrows, thus again proving the sense of romance which, like salt water, is ever close to the surface on the Eastern Shore. But no sooner was this right established than the legislators repealed the open season in the county.

That is to say, the solons first decided that bow and arrow give the deer a better sporting chance for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and then further decided that a deer might perhaps be happier if it were not killed at all.

There is no moral to the tale. It is interesting merely because it recalls the stirring story so thrillingly told by one of Mother Goose's ghost writers:

Mother, may I go out to swim?
Yes, my darling daughter.
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb
But don't go near the water.

The Workers' Alliance

The House committee investigating the WPA is not, as David Lasser asserts, following an irrelevant line of inquiry in seeking information about the political beliefs and partisan affiliations—past and present—of officials of the Workers' Alliance.

It is a rare individual who can divorce his actions from his beliefs. Hence there is real significance in the disclosure that Herbert Benjamin, general secretary of the alliance, has long been a member of the Communist Party.

One way of securing an insight into the objectives of the organization which has been set up for relief workers under the leadership of Mr. Lasser and his aides is to find out what manner of men they are, what they have done and what they have said and written. A probe of this kind is extremely enlightening and thoroughly justified, provided witnesses are given ample opportunity to expound their views and defend their actions.

A great many issues of vital concern have been brought to public notice by the rise of the Workers' Alliance. They should receive the attention of Congress regardless of the personal character or the political views of the individuals who are at the moment in control of the organization. It is, for instance, an open question whether there is any legitimate place for an organization of Federal workers temporarily employed on relief projects. That is the major problem on which the committee's investigation ought to throw light.

The chief purposes of customary labor organizations are to secure for their members higher wages, more congenial working conditions, and increased protection against loss of their jobs. None of these objectives can properly be sought by WPA labor. The most difficult task that confronts responsible WPA administrators is not stabilizing relief employment, but speeding up the transfer of relief workers to positions in private industry. One of the greatest menaces resulting from the establishment of a huge Federal work relief agency is that it creates expectations of permanent tenure among many of those given employment. The Workers' Alliance operates to strengthen this unfortunate tendency.

Furthermore, organized pressure is exerted to increase the pay of relief workers or to change conditions of work in ways that add to operating costs. If successful, such tactics will indefinitely delay reductions in relief outlays, essential to financial solvency.

A national organization of relief workers might easily become a grave menace to our political as well as financial stability, if its membership became convinced that their jobs belonged to them as a matter of right. Under the guidance of leaders who did not scruple to use the voting power of an entrenched membership to force concessions from Congress, the country would find it impossible to effect essential reforms in the relief system.

It is already evident that the present heads of the Workers' Alliance are trying to obstruct reform policies designed to place the relief system upon a more efficient and less wasteful basis. And it is indicated that they are not interested in hastening the return of relief labor to normal employment in private industry.

Umbrella Redeemed

The umbrella has come in for some terrible ribbing since a certain famous agreement was reached last September in a German city noted for baroque palaces and dark beer. Its great practical usefulness was overshadowed by its newfound symbolic significance. Because Mr. Chamberlain invariably carried an umbrella while on missions of appeasement, the umbrella became the Caspar Milquetoast among utilitarian devices. Indeed, the old motto was being revised to read: "In time of peace prepare for rain."

It took a Washington woman to restore the umbrella to its former dignity. Assailed by a sneak thief, she wielded her umbrella both as a rapier and a club with great constructive results. The hold-up man turned and ran. This time the lowly umbrella was not the symbol of surrender but an effective instrument for the defense of law and property rights.

The umbrella makers of the world—and they belong to an ancient and honorable profession that goes back to the dim days of Chinese antiquity—owe Mrs. Bessie Gardella a profound vote of thanks. The umbrella has been redeemed.

"What is the most effective way to announce a secret marriage?" some one asks an authority on etiquette. We should advise whispering the news to the town gossip.

"The positron is a hole in something intangible," declares a scientist. Like a hole in a doughnut when there's no doughnut.

An astronomer has found a hole in the Milky Way. He doesn't know what to do about it.

Fight For Freedom

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading an account of the open-air concert with an estimated attendance of 76,000 sympathetic people, given by Marian Anderson, the colored singer, at the Lincoln Memorial, I could not help but feel that the Negro race has had a much better break than white women have had in their long struggle for justice.

With comparatively little effort of their own, and at tremendous cost, the colored race had freedom bestowed upon them by the Emancipation Proclamation and the thirteenth amendment to the Constitution. They were made citizens by the fourteenth, and the Negro male was given equal suffrage with white men by the fifteenth. After the passage of the fourteenth amendment, pioneers of the woman movement believed that all doubt was now removed with regard to their being citizens; but not so. Susan B. Anthony in a test case in 1873 was brought to trial, found guilty of "conspiring against the peace of these United States and their dignity" and fined $100 for casting a vote.

When the fifteenth amendment was up for consideration, women pleaded with Congressional leaders to insert the word "sex," which would have given them the vote with the Negro male, but they were ruthlessly sacrificed to political expediency with the cold assertion, "This is the Negro's hour."

Thus the mothers, wives and daughters of the white race, with centuries of evolution and service to civilization in the background, had to fight on 50 years longer for the ballot. Previous to 1938 Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the Hon. Caroline O'Day and hosts of highly intelligent women could not have served on a jury in the great State of New York. This discrimination still exists in half the States, to go no further. Marian Anderson, you are a fortunate woman.

Give The NLRB A Chance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of April 15 was most stimulating. Its thought that the Wagner act is established "to enforce a law passed in the interest of the general public" is proper. However, when I understand that you advocate amending the law I begin to wonder what kind of changes you propose.

To best serve John Q. Public, it is advisable to let well enough alone. Give the board time to demonstrate conclusively that it is administering fairly—a fact of which many people including myself have been convinced for some time. As for the act itself, it seems to be flexible enough to meet certain changes without legislation such as suggested by Senator Wagner on the hearings of last Tuesday.

Patriotic Endeavor

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Washington Post is to be commended for offering copies of the words and music of "The Star-Spangled Banner" to all who are interested in procuring them. Undoubtedly a greater number of people will learn the words of our national anthem through your making these copies available.

Also the story of the writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Francis Scott Key, which you have published on the back page, is enlightening and will create a deeper appreciation of the song in the hearts of all who read it.

The United States Flag Association wishes to take this opportunity to congratulate you on this fine patriotic endeavor.

"Taxation Of Churches".

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of April 13, and also by personal letter, the Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, pastor of Anacostia Baptist Church and president of the General Welfare Federation of America, Inc., corrects my statement that the general welfare act (H. R. 11), sponsored by the federation, includes the churches among the "industries" taxable under the social security laws—which I characterized as "the lowest" among the depths of unreason reached by our "fellow travelers."

Dr. Boorde informs me that the churches are specifically exempted by H. R. 11, as are churches and lodges under the present laws, this preposterous suggestion being instead one of the amendments proposed by the Social Security Board and Advisory Council.

This being the case, I hope the readers of my letter will take my remarks as applying instead to the said board and advisory council, who, knowing as they must (or should) that the Federal Government has no jurisdiction whatever over the churches, have thus shown their colors—which you may name for yourself—in a highly unflattering light.

"Pope Of Peace"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been suggested that Pope Pius XII be asked to initiate a move for world peace. In his Easter address to the world the Pope stressed the fact that there can be no peace among nations if there is lacking a mutual understanding between the nations.

The trouble in Europe, with which we are much concerned, is between those generally known as the Christian nations, and the Pope is the titular head of the largest of the Christian religious groups in the world. It happens that the nations probably most concerned in this trouble are, with the single exception of Germany, overwhelmingly Catholic. (Germany has a large Catholic population, but I do not have data. As to Italy, Poland and France, there can be no question.)

Would it not then be proper for the Pope to call on his people, wherever situated, to sue for peace and understanding? Such a direct plea should and undoubtedly would carry great weight and if successful then Pius XII would indeed become the "Pope of Peace."

Supports President

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today at 11 a. m. I listened to the speech of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and, in my opinion, he said more in 15 minutes than Neville Chamberlain had said in the last 15 days.

I regret that our President is being accused of inviting or leading us into war by stating in Warm Springs, Ga.: "I'll be back next fall if we don't have a war." There is positively nothing wrong in that statement. Events nowadays move so fast that hardly anybody in this world can foresee what will happen between now and next fall.

There is no better way to preserve our freedom and peace than to be thoroughly prepared and willing to defend them if necessary and not to be afraid to say what we mean and do what we say we will. Therefore, all of us should appreciate our President's wisdom and firmness.

JOSEPH PRYMEK.

The Collective Pronoun

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thank you for the editorial on "If We Don't Have War." It was copied in the papers out this way.

What we need is editorial support for the principle that the best way to assure peace—of the way to make peace most probable and war most improbable—is to take a firm stand now. Whatever the President's domestic errors—I believe I know of several such—partisanship should never extend beyond the water's edge.

Is it not tragic that a man may be elected by 11,000,000 majority, and then, when a real crisis arises, have such little support from his Congress? However good may be their intentions, they lend "aid and comfort" to the dictators. In fact, it is conceivable that the very difference between peace and war may be determined by their attitude, for they give Hitler and Mussolini reason to suppose that support for their methods are largely approved over here!

Right now the best way to stand for peace is to stand against aggression.

May I respectfully request you, Mr. Editor, to write another editorial, entitled "Stand By the President." In fact, if my historic knowledge serves me well, that was a slogan in the days of Lincoln. You know, we Americans have a way of forming "blocs." Could there not be a "Stand by the President Bloc" formed?

If the vociferous opposition to Roosevelt in Congress lends sufficient "aid and comfort" to the aggressor nations, it may conceivably be a source of war. That is to say, before "starting something," Hitler may weigh all the factors known to him. One will be the attitude of America. If convinced that it is practically solid his decision may be negative. But if led to believe that opposition to Roosevelt will permanently tie America's hands, his decision may be "full steam ahead." Thus those who pretend to love peace may unwittingly promote war.

LOGAN WARREN.
Rockford, Ill., April 15.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congratulations on your editorial of April 11 which has occasioned so much comment—favorable and otherwise.

I am in heartiest sympathy with our President in what he is saying these days and especially his words which were inspired by your most timely and thoughtful editorial.

Voting A Privilege?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of April 14, Mr. Ernest Lindley had an article entitled "Southern TNT" dealing with a subject, the poll tax, which he is trying to use as a cudgel to frighten the Southern people. His statements of conditions among the laborers and farm tenants are without foundation in fact. Voting is a privilege; not a right. A man who contributes nothing to the support of his country or State has no right to have a voice in the control.

Instead of repealing the poll tax, I am heartily in favor of added restrictions for voting privileges. A man who is not willing to pay $1 or even more, per year for his franchise, is not capable of deciding governmental policies nor is he in a position to say who is the best qualified candidate to make laws under which we all must live. Education, intelligence and industry should govern.

Mr. Lindley adds naively, "It is no accident that the poll tax States are, on the whole, those in which the opposition to President Roosevelt and his objectives is most apparent among the elected representatives of the Democratic Party." To say that the ignorant, shiftless element is for the President while the educated, thinking men and women are against him, is at most a doubtful compliment.

Idle Hours

THE GOOD SHIP Wawa, loaded deep with Mexican bananas, was scheduled to dock at New Orleans' Desire Street wharf at 10 in the evening. By 8:30 the wharf, warehouse and railroad sidings outside were crowded with dockwalloppers, hoping for jobs. From that time until the Wawa came in—at 1 o'clock, as it happened—activity built up to a higher and higher pitch. It reached a crescendo a few minutes before the ship tied up, when three or four men came out of the wharf captain's office, shouted names and handed out the cards to the lucky men who were to do the unloading.

But until 9 o'clock or thereabouts the docks, though populous, were comparatively quiet. Groups of men, white and black, sat around and talked in low tones. Others were sleeping wherever they could find a likely spot—beside the waiting freight cars or in the shelter of the huge unloading machines. Some, the lucky ones, slept on the straw-filled ticks which were used to line the bottom of the cars as protection for the tender bananas. A group of five colored men, looking like grown-up black editions of the Dionnes, lay side by side on one pallet, each man's seat in the lap of his neighbor, each man's forehead on the back of the next, each man's legs crooked in the same angle, like a precisely trained darktown dancing chorus.

As the night lengthened the men grew more restless. They walked faster from one group to another and stood in one spot less and less. Their voices rose. Songs began to be heard and a crap game started up, though it died in a few minutes from lack of betting money.

Back against a refrigerator car sat a row of colored boys, delighted eyes gazing at one of their members who was mimicking a revivalist preacher. He rocked on his heels, rolled his eyes and threw his arms about him. He shouted and whispered in the same sentence. "Because, brethern, de Lawd know all about you. You cain't git away. When de great day come, and de Lawd come down wid a whole slew-full a' angels a-flyin' 'round his coat-tails, den you's a-goin' to be sorry you ain't led a good life—dat you ain't come to church, dat you been dippin' 'round. Ain't dat right, brother? Ain't dat right, sister? Praise God, de devil goin' a git you and dey ain't nothin', praise God, you kin do about it! Say man! When dat ol' debil gits his claws 'roun' your neck you is cerinally a-goin' to wish dat you put more bright, shiny dimes in de pot. Yeah man! Hallelujah, come to Jesus. Come befo it gits too late, brethern and sistern, ain't dat right?"

The audience was enthusiastic and the preacher, who was a born mimic, thrived under his listeners' admiration and co-operative shouts of "Yes, sah," "Ain't you right!" and "Praise de Lawd." He would crouch low and half-sing, half-whisper, then jump up, throw one leg in the air and scream at the top of his voice. He gathered quite a crowd about him.

Along the railroad tracks behind the covered wharf it was quieter. The noise from the docks came only intermittently and the racket of the Vieux Carre on the other side was muffled. A full moon appeared now and again between the clouds.

A few job-hunters were sprawled about on the grass by the sidings. In one group a man was telling a story . . . "So as soon as I seen the goose I got a hunk of corn and tied it on a string. The goose et the corn in a hurry and I started to pull the damn' thing after me. The farmer was 'way off across the field and seen me running with this here goose running after me. 'Don't run,' he shouts, 'that there goose won't hurt you. Just walk and it'll leave you alone.' I knew damn' well that goose wouldn't hurt me. The point was, was I gonna leave the goose alone. As soon as we was outta sight a' the farmer I picks up the goose under my arm and beats it down into the bayou and packs it in mud and starts to cook it. About that time this here Bill I was tellin' you about comes along, so while he watches the cooking I goes up to see if we couldn't get something to go with it.

'I goes up to the back door of a farm house but there wasn't nobody around, so I goes in and finds a plate of hot biscuits. I takes it with me, plate and all. Bill and me had a swell feed and then I tell Bill, 'That lady that gimme these here biscuits, she's some swell looker and she said she sure wanted to see my partner, so you go on up there and return the plate and thank her for the biscuits.' So Bill leaves, and about that time along comes the freight for Mobile that I wanted, so I flips it. The tracks go past the farm house and just as the freight goes by I see Bill runnin' like hell across the fields with the farmer and his wife chasin' him and yellin' bloody murder. I never did see Bill agin."

More stories. One leads to another. Someone starts up . . . "Reminds me a' the time when I was jes' a little shaver, couldn't been more'n 'bout 7 or 8. I shed a .45 behind the old man's heels. The law was after the old man anyhow, and without even turnin' around he lit out for the hills. I got a helluva hidin' from my mammy, lemme tell ya'. Mammy and the rest of us set out to look for the old man but we didn't find him till four months later. He was caught in a 'coon trap and his hair had grown so far down over his eyes he thought he'd gone plumb blind!"

Suddenly pandemonium broke loose inside, on the wharf. Jobs were being assigned. The group jumped up and set off at a run.

ALBERT FRIENDLY.

Lord Of Marajo

By W. L. Schurz

"Feudal Island"

RIGHT UNDER the Equator at the mouth of the Amazon lies the Island of Marajo. It is bigger than Switzerland and half again the size of Maryland. Like much of Amazonia, it is a geographical monstrosity. Its eastern shores are a survival of the original coast of the continent; its western end is a drowned jungle, the antediluvian scene of Rangel's "Infernal Verde," beside which Julian Duguid's "Green Hell" is an English park. Between them spread the open campos or savannah country, about which Desmond Holdridge writes with such refreshing gusto in "Feudal Island" (Harcourt Brace, $2.50). On the inner rim of these prairies are the forbidding morasses of the mondongos, which Holdridge aptly calls "neither land nor water." These swamps, which were once one of the mouths of the Amazon, are haunted by wild buffaloes, alligators, amphibious jaguars and anacondas, not to mention deadly varmints of lesser size. The grasslands of the campos are the seat of an extraordinary cattle industry that gives some economic meaning to the great island. So much for the setting.

At intervals of six years the author twice visited Marajo as guest of Swiss Luciano Bieder, one of the cattle barons of the island. His second stay fell during the rainy season, when a shallow sheet of water covered most of the country. He rode over the waterlogged savannahs with his hosts and their cowboy retainers, who are a mixture of the original Indians, Negro and Portuguese. He talked long hours with them in the rambling ranch houses while the rain drenched the world outside.

IT IS an unusual society that he describes in this interesting and gestful book. Its basic pattern is medieval. A small group of families own the big ranches and their herds. They are not millionaires, but they have comfortable town houses in Para and have traveled in Europe and pay 12 per cent interest on their mortgages. They are very discriminating in their hospitality to foreigners, but must have found Holdridge and his wife to their fancy. He paints an attractive picture of one of these lords of the island, "the Admirable" Jayme Lobato. It is a patriarchal dominion which they hold over their vassals, but a mild and paternal rule, tempered by understanding, patience and a saving sense of humor for the situations that arise so frequently in the lives of the simple folk who are their dependents.

They are lawgiver and judge, and an easy-going policeman who sees that the cowboys marry their women and take care of their children and that their fiestas do not turn into drunken brawls with broken heads. As Holdridge observes, the thought of such a society would leave a leftist speechless for lack of words to condemn so undemocratic a system.

But no one ever goes hungry, for there is plenty of beef and milk and fish and fruit for all. There is security and there is a reasonable amount of personal liberty, as there always is in cattle country when formal government is far away. As for the outside world beyond the island, with the headaches and neuroses that are inseparable from its economics and its politics, it might as well be another planet.

AN UNUSUALLY fine map and excellent photographs contribute much to the attractiveness of the book. It is warmly recommended to those people who have a weakness for islands but are tired of reading about Bali and other romantic places surrounded by water.

FTC Orders 10 To Stop Breaking Brokerage Rule

The Federal Trade Commission announced yesterday it had ordered ten firms and industries to cease violations of the brokerage section of the Robinson-Patman act.

Those named were Reeves Parvin & Co., Tri-State Brokerage Co. and Francis B. Reeves, jr., all of Philadelphia; W. N. Clark Co., Rochester, N. Y.; Robert W. Mairs, trading as Robert W. Mairs & Co., Baltimore; Martin Gillet & Co., Baltimore; H. J. McGrath Co., Baltimore; Natural Sugars, Inc., New York; Nectar Syrup Corporation, New York, and Phillips Sales Co., Inc., Cambridge, Md.

The "sellers" in the group were directed to discontinue paying brokerage fees or commissions to Tri-State Brokerage Co., Reeves Parvin & Co. or Francis B. Reeves, jr., upon purchases of Reeves Parvin & Co.

Cavalier Victims' Rescuers Tried In Strike Case

New York, April 18 (U.P.).—Heroes of the flying boat Cavalier disaster three months ago, 38 members of the crew of the Standard oil tanker Esso Baytown went on trial today before a special Federal board of inquiry on charges of misconduct in an alleged threat to strike.

Four of the defendants were members of the life boat crew that saved 10 of the 13 persons of the Cavalier after it was forced down to sea January 21 en route from New York to Bermuda.

The charges are based on an overtime row on April 10 at Baytown, Tex.

Capt. Frank H. Spurr said the men threatened to strike. He ordered the mooring lines cast off so the ship would technically be at sea and any disobedience could be stutiny. The crew, however, jumped to the pier, he said, and stayed there all day.

Spain's New Position

By Lawrence A. Fernsworth

Strategy In The Mediterranean

Special Correspondence of The Post.

London.

MEDITERRANEAN strategy, as revised by the victory of Franco, continues to be a crucial factor in the European situation. The traditional Mediterranean equilibrium having been upset by the intervention of the axis powers in Spain, the new situation there created was intended to further their plans for world domination, with a more immediate view to the ambitions of Italy.

If Germany and Italy can be dislodged from, or weakened in, their newly intrenched Mediterranean positions, or if Italy, as is not improbable, can be weaned away from Germany in a critical moment, Germany's newly acquired strength in eastern Europe would be immeasurably weakened. Conversely, the axis position is strengthened in such measure as it tightens its Mediterranean hold.

THE FOLLOWING facts are apparent in the situation as it has developed to date:

1. The traditional Mediterranean equilibrium, of which Spain was the balancing factor, no longer exists.

2. Franco is firmly tied to his allies, Italy and Germany, and is in no hurry to accept appeasement offers from the western democracies.

The British official expectation that Franco would have to turn to London's "city" for financial aid after the war, and so come under British political influence, does not seem to be working out. In fact, Franco's political position in the Mediterranean setup is a strong one, and he is making the most of it.

Reports from Rome and Berlin indicate that the axis powers are determined to maintain their new strategic advantage in the Mediterranean, including not only Spain but Africa. These powers are fastening rather than releasing their hold on Spain. In addition to their air and sea bases they are suspected of having secret Atlantic and Red Sea rendezvous for their submarines. With an important army in Lybia, far in excess of the 35,000 allowed her under an existing agreement with Britain, Italy has both France and England anxious with respect to Africa, since Lybia is next-door neighbor to Tunisia and Algeria, on the French side, and to Egypt and Sudan on the British.

ITALY, although on record with a solemn pledge to get out of Spain, finds pretexts for remaining. She obviously hopes to secure from the Western democracies a recognition of her special position in Spain. So long as she goes hand in hand with Germany she backs that country's pretensions to being a Mediterranean power, although with a wry face. Germany as a Mediterranean neighbor is none to pleasing to Italy. The special position of those two countries in Spain was to be used as a leverage for "appeasement" in Africa, where both Italy and Germany pretend to have unsatisfied claims.

Notwithstanding any future turn Mediterranean politics may take, the axis powers apparently feel that Britian and France will make little headway in prying them away from their gains in Spain. The attitude of Franco, his almost contemptuous treatment of France and of her distinguished Ambassador, Marshal Petain, seem to justify that belief.

These, in broad outline, are some of the main international factors created by the conquest of the Fascist powers in Spain under the guise of keeping Spain safe for its traditional forces—which is another way of saying the keeping of Spain safe from democracy. It may now be well to examine two more immediate aspects of the situation, namely, the repercussions of the Franco victory on England and France and, thereafter, Spain's economic position.

HERE ARE some of the hard facts which the "Western democracies," which England and France are commonly called, no doubt are pondering:

At Munich the French policy of maintaining a European balance of power against Germany was abandoned. France must now stand solidly by England's side in holding a line of defense that runs from the Mediterranean to the North Sea. It is precisely this line, so vital to them, that now stands menaced by the new facist strategy in the Mediterranean which gives the fascist powers control of the Straits of Gibraltar, entailing the virtual annulment of the rock and further gives them facilities for submarine and airplane bases in the Balearics, in Spain proper, in Spanish Morocco bordering the Straits, as well as in the Canary Islands and the Spanish possessions on Africa's coast.

Not only does the Mediterranean life line now stand menaced but likewise the alternate British sea routes around the African Horn, upon which British trade as well as British naval defense may have to depend in wartime. Moreover, the Fascist domination of the Mediterranean menaces France's ability to bring troops across the Mediterranean from her African colonies. These troops were so vital to her in the World War that, had the Mediterranean not been open to her at that time, it is probable that the war would have been lost to the allies at the outset. Germany has, no doubt, learned a lesson from her fatal oversight.

Looking landward one finds that France now has another frontier on the Pyrenees, even though, as seems recently to have been established by an investigating commission, there are actually no forts or air bases on the Spanish side of that range. The new strategic position remains a fact and the potential menace is a reality to cause serious concern. What does not exist at the moment could speedily be established. By and sea, east and west, France now stands desperately encircled by reason of the Franco victory.

The Economist, of London, (November 26, 1938), summed up the situation which was then still in process of being created when it said that "if France has an additional frontier to defend, and if at the same time she cannot count on being able to bring in African troops across the Mediterranean, she is bound to point out to us that the channel, at any rate, can presumably be kept open by the combined strength of the British and the French navies and that, if the African reservoir of man power is cut off, the only alternative source of supply is to be found in Great Britain."

So one sees that the new situation raises a question of British man power for, as the same journal further remarked, "if the whole of Spain today becomes an appendage for the Rome-Berlin axis, then in another war a great British conscript army will infallibly have to go to the continent."

France is really in an excellent economic position with respect to Britain and France. By acquiring de jure recognition he is on the way toward recouping the immense stock of gold that was in the coffers of the Spanish treasury, 1,500,000,000 of which, in gold francs, lie in the Bank of France. France has pledged herself to hand over to Franco all Spanish national property that lies within her jurisdiction. She has recently turned over to him the Republican fleet.

ECONOMICALLY, Spain is one of Europe's richest countries. Britain is in vital need of the iron in the mines around Bilbao, the copper of Rio Tinto in Andalusia, both controlled by British companies and paying dearly in British sterling for their right to export their own outputs. Franco having now obtained the mercury mines at Almaden, finds his economic leverage increased by that fact. These mines were also under exploitation by a British company during the war period. By their acquisition, which automatically follows upon the surrender of Madrid, the Franco-axis setup controls most of the world's mercury supply, the Spanish mines being complementary to the mines owned by Italy. Mercury is essential to the manufacture of explosives.

Off The Record

President's Appeal

By Ernest K. Lindley

General Reaction

THE PRESIDENT roughed out his message to Hitler and Mussolini some time ago—long before he decided to send it. Before it was dispatched the arguments for and against it were jotted down by an important official of the Administration.

The main arguments against sending it were these:

First, the promises of Hitler and Mussolini obviously are worthless.

Secondly, neither Hitler nor Mussolini could accept the President's proposal without a complete change of their internal policies—which cannot be expected.

Thirdly, if by any chance a conference should result from the President's intervention, the result might be another Munich.

The main arguments for sending it were these:

First, together with the President's Pan-American speech of the preceding day, it might have enough effect on popular opinion within Germany and Italy to make Hitler and Mussolini hesitate.

Secondly, it might, although the chances were regarded as slight, evoke something less than a flat rejection from both Hitler and Mussolini—and anything which brought about a delay in militiary activities or opened the narrowest trail toward further discussions would be worth while.

Thirdly, it would have a good effect on opinion in the United States and Latin America, since it would appear as an effort to preserve peace.

Reaction Excellent In Latin America

THERE WERE arguments pro and con, but those were the principal ones. Conspicuously absent from this memorandum was the suggestion that one purpose in sending the note was to fix even more definitely than it is fixed already the responsibility for a general war, if the general war occurs. Yet this, undoubtedly, is one of the effects of the message, and it probably was one of the President's purposes.

The first wave of domestic reaction seems to have been good. The American people always respond favorably to any word or action which, on its surface, looks like an effort to preserve peace. The reaction from Latin America has been excellent.

The message was shot into Germany and Italy in German and Italian translations by short-wave radio broadcasts. Whether, as a result, Hitler or Mussolini feel restrained by doubts about the solidarity of their home fronts is an open question. For this purpose, the President's message had two shortcomings. In the first place, it did not come from a neutral party. For weeks the President has been under attack from every agency of propaganda in both Germany and Italy as an enemy. The unneutral quality of the President's message was further emphasized by the fact that he sent it only to Hitler and Mussolini; a general message to all powers would have had a greater semblance of impartiality.

By his increasingly vigorous rebukes and threats to "the aggressor nations" the President has disqualified himself as a neutral intermediary. In fact, as an intermediary he probably is far less acceptable to Hitler and Mussolini than are Chamberlain or Daladier. The President himself undoubtedly is aware of that.

Italian Security Omitted In Plea

THE PRESIDENT sent the same message to both dictators, distinguishing between them only by sending the message to Hitler directly from himself, and by sending that to Mussolini via the Secretary of State. In this there may have been a hint that Mussolini, having become the small end of the axis, is no longer important enough to merit the direct personal attention of the President.

The President omitted, however, a detail which might have increased the effect of his message in Italy. In enumerating the nations which he proposed that Hitler promise not to attack, he omitted Italy. Yet when Hitler absorbed Austria and arrived at the Brenner Pass, the security of Italy was impaired, and the expansion of Nazi Germany is a threat—eventually, if not now—to Italy, as well as to the other weaker nations of Europe.

War Imminent Is Belief Of Many

THE PRESIDENT'S message was precipitated by the belief that a general European war was about to occur. For the same reason he ordered the fleet to return immediately to the Pacific—as a hint to the Japanese to think at least twice before taking advantage of a European war to attack the British and Dutch possessions in the Far East.

As this is written, the war hasn't broken out yet, but the most optimistic men in our State Department now estimate that the chances of averting—or even postponing—the castastrophe are not much better than 50-50. The least hopeful regard the war as inevitable within a short time—very probably between Hitler's birthday, April 20, and May 15. If the middle of next month passes without general war, the supporters of the President's foreign policy will, rightly or wrongly, give him a good share of the credit.

Hoover Declares War In Europe Is Remote

Marshfield, Oreg., April 18 (A.P.).—Former President Hoover told an interviewer today he saw no immediate prospect of a general European war.

"Small wars we will always have, but I think we are going to miss a general conflict," he said.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

"The Crisis"

I THINK there is no question that the President's dramatic week-end move was precipitated by knowledge of a very acute crises.

Mr. Knickerbocker, of the Hearst press, who is an exceptionally well-informed foreign correspondent, reported on April 17 that President Roosevelt had received a verbatim transcript of a conversation between Hitler and one of his most trusted aides, ostensibly disclosing the Fuehrer's real ambition.

The Fuehrer is reported to have said: "I intend to take the whole of Czecho-Slovakia and by autumn to have brought into a great National Socialist federation, under the leadership of the Reich, Poland, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Greece and possibly Turkey. The countries which willingly consent will be welcome, those which resist will be crushed."

Hoped To Neutralize Soviet Russia

THE FUEHRER counted on being able to neutralize Soviet Russia, and then protected at his rear he would be able to attack France and Britain. He counted on a short war which would end in the delivery of the British and French fleets to the Germans.

The last stage would be the establishment of a Pan-Germanica in the West, with an overpowering sea force. With the aid of Japan, America would be next in line.

Utterly fantastic as this program sounds, it is the belief of this column that it very closely approximates what is, or has been, in the minds of the axis powers.

For weeks there have been leaks to disclose some such program. The extreme nervousness of the Netherlands, a nation which is not given to hysteria, has indicated that that nation has expected a possible "token occupation" while Japan struck at the Dutch East Indies.

The Swiss, who are also certainly not hysterical by nature, have been completely prepared for months for war in the west.

And the whole program of Hitler, as envisaged, written down and supported for 15 years, has been world power.

THE ALLIANCE with Italy can only make sense, from Mussolini's point of view, in the contemplation of war in the west, for Mussolini has made enormous sacrifices to Hitler.

Gone is the influence in central and eastern Europe which he spent years in building up, and which was exemplified in the pact of Rome, under which Italy, until the conquest of Austria, enjoyed special political and trade privileges in Austria and Hungary, and for which, after the assassination of Dollfuss, Mussolini was actually willing to go to war with Hitler.

The enormous German and Italian activities in South America; the unrelenting intransigeance over Spain; the fact that the Germans and Italians are, at this moment, in possession of the most strategical military points in Spain, and in control of a large part of the Spanish economy; and the report that Germany has sent two or three pocket battleships with cruisers and submarines to Spanish ports, indicating that Germany has learned a lesson from the last war and does not intend to be bottled up in the North Sea and the Baltic; the sudden seizure of Albania by Italy, strategically important as a point from which to squeeze both Yugoslavia and Greece, are all parts of the picture.

AND THE SUDDEN sending of the American fleet back to the Pacific was certainly not done without the Navy's advice, and the Navy has, perhaps, the best intelligence department which we possess.

Analyzing the composition of the new German fleet, Maj. Eliot comes to the conclusion that it cannot possibly be intended as an instrument against the Soviets and that it is indeed "perfectly silly to contend, as German official explanations have attempted to contend, that it is for use against Russia." There is no conceivable use for any such force of submarines in the Russia-German naval situation.

"The submarine," says Maj. Eliot, "has its principal use in the field of commerce destroying." The nation which possesses seaborne commerce which is vital to her, and without which she cannot live, is Britain.

And Maj. Eliot recalls the Emden and the enormous damage which that single German cruiser did before she was finally brought to boot by 40 searchers.

He thinks that the German navy today, being precisely adapted to a SPECIFIC purpose and a SPECIFIC enemy, is far more dangerous than the German navy in 1914.

NO ONE CAN contend that a world war fought on the major sea lanes of the world is of no concern to the United States of America, or that the possible victory of Italy, Germany and Japan, the two former powers united in a revolutionary philosophy hostile to everything that this country has ever stood for, could be a matter of indifference to the United States; or that, given such an outcome, this country would be safe.

If, then, the President uses every possible diplomatic instrument to avert a world war, by warning, by clarifying the issue, by suggesting conciliation in advance of it, it seems that he ought to be strongly supported, regardless of other political differences.

Actually, apart from its drama and suddenness, which gave it a sensational aspect, there is nothing in the President's message to the world which is not completely consistent with the policy of the United States ever since the World War.

The drama and sensationalism are necessitated by the way in which modern politics is played. No democratic nation was the inventor of this new international politics.

But the United States has, for 20 years, participated in every attempt to bring about disarmament.

The Secretary of State under Coolidge was a co-author of the Pact of Paris, under which the nations of the world gave a solemn convenant not to resort to war as an instrument of national policy.

U. S. Is Committed To Oppose Invasion

THE UNITED STATES did not sign the Treaty of Versailles, and is not committed to the maintenance of the STATUS QUO anywhere, but unless all our words for 20 years have been merely pious platitudes—and if they are we should stop uttering them, for there is no place in the world at present for platitudes—then we are committed by word on word and deed on deed to opposing invasion and aggression as a means of rectifying injustices.

It is the belief of this column that the President's move was a brilliant stroke of diplomacy, and that if anything can stop a catastrophe which has been approaching visibly for years it will be an active policy and not a passive one.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

"Hello, Central, Give Me The Weather!"

In New York City it is now possible to get the weather forecast any time you want it by dialing 6-1212 and listening to a sort of phonographic recording. Ima Dodo called up today, got tomorrow's complete forecast and then, a little embarrassed by asking and receiving such service, answered: "Well, I don't want any just now, but if I do I'll give you the order."

Service is service, but this catering to laziness is being carried too far. Next thing you know we will want to dial a number and get the time of high tide, with a swimming lesson thrown in.

Somebody is bound to call up up the telephone company any day now and demand complete data on the full moon, and the loan of a canoe.

If all you have to do is to raise yourself up in bed and dial a phone number to get the complete weather data up to the very last minute, what's to stop you from regarding the telephone company as lacking in co-operation if you can't ring a number and get a cold shower, two boiled eggs, a cup of coffee and your horoscope.

Laziness has already become something of a virtue in America. One of the few things left that required a little effort and patience, if you wanted to get all the data, was the weather forecast. It was one job that was never easy. We always felt reluctant to ring up a Weather Bureau; in fact we never asked for a weather forecast without getting a distinct impression that the office felt it was none of our business.

No; we don't live in the basement. We occupy the penthouse. No, we didn't go without food to buy the ticket. Matter of fact, we bought 50.

"I gave some of them to the servants. Kept a few for ourselves. First time we ever bought any; just took a flyer, you know. No, we're not going to Europe on it. We just got back from a world tour.

"What are we going to do with the money? Just deposit it, I suppose. Or—wait. On second thought, if and when the money arrives, you may announce that we are using it to start a movement for discouraging gambling by the masses. Thanks. Goodby."

Army Calls Col. Lindbergh to Duty in Move To Help U. S. Regain Fighting Supremacy in Air

Defense

general staff, planning agency for the War Department, has carried on the great volume of work incident to the expansion of the Army without any appreciable increase in personnel, officials said.

The Navy let a $466,362 contract for airplanes and parts to the Grumman Aircraft Co., of Bethpage, N. Y., as Army air officials revealed that prices for planes in quantity production under the expansion program will range from 7 to 12 per cent of the cost of one airplane. Bids for new attack bombers run as high as $950,000 for one and $64,000 for the same craft in orders of 1,000, it was said.

The expansion of the Panama Canal contemplated in the legislation approved yesterday is in accordance with a survey recently submitted to Congress by the Governor of the Canal Zone, Brig. Gen. Clarence S. Ridley. It envisages construction of spare locks, bombproof, and capable of handling the largest battleships.

Would Keep Canal Open

Located at a distance from the present locks, they would insure that an enemy could not close the canal to passage of warships, the report declared. Fifteen million dollars would be spent the first year on the project, with the rest spread over eight years.

The call of Air Corps Reservist Lindbergh to duty brought speculation as to whether his long stay in Europe and the numerous inspections he has made of foreign aircraft might not have been with his present duty in view. Informed circles, however, refuted this, stating that the invitation to take on the task was extended only after his return last week.

Nevertheless, his intimate knowledge of European planes and especially air research should be invaluable, these sources said. After a first-hand inspection of research facilities here, his comments and comparisons with European methods will form the basis for establishing an up-to-date experimental system so necessary to a leading air power.

It is expected the survey will take several weeks, perhaps months, with the flier spending most of his time shuttling back and forth about the country. In view of Lindbergh's dislike of crowds, it is expected that he will make his formal report to Gen. Arnold this morning somewhere else than the War Department.

One result of Lindbergh's return to duty was expected to be the assuring of funds for research. While the Air Corps expansion act rolled through Congress with practically no opposition, the separate project for establishing a new research unit in California has had difficult sledding.

The pilot's sponsorship of the research problem is expected to dramatize the issue and lead the Senate-House conference committee to accept the $10,000,000 Sunnyvale laboratory, recommended by the Administration, it was voted down by the Senate and House Appropriations Committees, before being approved by the Senate.

Saw German Factories

Deeply interested in the latest developments in aircraft, Lindbergh, 37-year-old graduate of the Army's flying schools, has made three formal inspections of Germany's air force since 1936. While ordinarily plane factories in the Reich as elsewhere are closed to foreigners, German Air Minister Goering saw in Lindbergh's great fame an opportunity to advertise the might of his new air force, presumably for political purposes.

Col. Lindbergh was impressed by the Reich's fighting planes and especially by the five large research centers which made them possible. He was taken to Adlershof, the large experimental plant near Berlin and practically given the run of the place. Figures and plans were put before him, and the latest type planes of the air force brought out for his inspection.

During his trip to Russia, leading Soviet airmen took him on a tour of plane factories and air bases, but they gave him but brief glimpses. Later he was able to give full reports of the now generally accepted superiority of the German aircraft, but could tell practically nothing of the Moscow air force.

Reported to U. S.

Rumors that the colonel had reported his findings to the British and French governments and that his low opinion of Russian planes had much to do with British-French capitulation at Munich brought him much criticism in the United States. Later, however, it became fairly well established that the only reports he had made, had been to his own Government. These reports, however, submitted to the N. A. C. A., may well have found their way to British and French defense councils.

Like his N. A. C. A. reports, valuable but supplemental to those received through the usual channels, his survey of research facilities is expected to be of great value in directing attention to the present unsatisfactory conditions in the United States, thereby bringing about fundamental reforms.

All research is under one head abroad, while here it is scattered among engineering schools, Government plants and commercial aircraft factories. The N. A. C. A. laboratory at Langley Field is the only Government agency carrying on fundamental air research in this country. Army and Navy stations handle more practical problems.

Much of the development work has been in the hands of commercial factories but with the great increase in the cost of military planes they are becoming unable to bear the burden. Only loosely tied in with the Government and commercial plants are aeronautical laboratories at educational institutions, such as those in California Tech, M. I. T., Stanford and Michigan universities.

Aeronautical leaders hope that with the help of Col. Lindbergh, a new extensive system of research can be worked out for both military and civil aviation and obtain the public support necessary to make it effective.

Although invited by both the House Military and Foreign Affairs Committees to testify on European conditions, Lindbergh has not yet informed those bodies of his decision. Some officials thought last night that his Army duties, participation in N. A. C. A. meetings, and personal business would fully occupy him for several weeks. He is expected to return to France where his wife and children remain, shortly thereafter.

D.A.R. Leaders Shake Hands With 4,500

Delegates Wear $10,000 in Corsages To Reception

After a full day of reports—including an explanation of the society's stand in the Marian Anderson controversy and announcement of a drive for 50,000 new members—Daughters of the American Revolution last night staged the most brilliant of many social events which will mark their week here.

While the Army Band played patriotic and semipopular airs, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., of Annapolis, the president general, shook hands with 4,500 delegates in attendance at the forty-eighth continental congress.

Some Have Four Corsages

Bedecked with ceremonial flags, the Constitution Hall scene was further enlivened by approximately $10,000 worth of corsages. As many as four adorned some of the delegates, with orchids and gardenias most in evidence.

National officers of the society assisted Mrs. Robert and State regents received in their boxes. Following the reception, 483 girl pages finished up the night with their annual ball at the Mayflower—squired by Annapolis, Baltimore, and Washington "eligibles."

Reports covering every phase of the society's work year will continue today, with delegates turning their attention to Latin American affairs this afternoon—when Dr. Ben M. Cherrington, chief of the new division of cultural relations in the Department of State, will address them.

Urban Members Sought

Although 90 per cent of her report yesterday was devoted to explaining the D. A. R. refusal to let Marian Anderson sing in Constitution Hall, Mrs. Robert also called attention to the "smaller than average" number of the D. A. R. members in the large American cities.

She pointed to the urban fields as the areas in which the group could expect to make its greatest expansion in the next few years.

A goal of a net gain of 50,000 new members before the D. A. R. golden jubilee two years hence was announced by Mrs. Frank Leon Nason, the registrar general. In the last year, she said, 6,502 applications for membership were verified and a net gain of 545 new members was recorded.

2,536 Chapters

D. A. R. chapters in the United States now total 2,526, she said, and have a membership of above 143,000.

Clear of the debt which was assumed in building Constitution Hall, the society now looks toward establishment of a large endowment fund, it was revealed in the report of Miss Page Schwarzwaelder, the treasurer general.

Property holdings of the D. A. R. in Washington were listed by Miss Schwarzwaelder at $2,635,731.98, with Constitution Hall valued at $1,873,069.98 and the other two buildings of the group—Continental Memorial Hall and the administration hall—approximately $500,000 each.

Pays $5,000 in Taxes

More than $5,000 annually in taxes is paid by the group in Washington. The cost of operating Constitution Hall was placed at $18,703 annually.

Taking stock of "historical progress" made in the year, Mrs. Leland Stanford Duxbury, historian general, said the D. A. R. now has approximately 2,000 markers "indexed" throughout the country—1,341 of them being added in 1938.

Historic Spots Located

In all, 271 historic spots were located and 145 of them marked during the year, she said, while 18 old trails were found and ten marked. Revolutionary soldiers' graves totaling 565 were marked, as were the graves of 410 lay members. Some of the work, Mrs. Duxbury noted, was done in cooperation with the Federal Government.

"In addition, 2,300 history study groups were in operation, and 630 exhibits of old glass, shawls, and the like put on display," she said. "Also, the various States kept historical scrapbooks. Illinois won first prize in this venture, with Texas coming second and Georgia third."

Parks Permits Go On Summer Hours

Summer hours are in effect at the National Capital Parks permit office in the South Interior Building, Acting Supt. Frank T. Gartside announced yesterday.

Until September 15 the office will be open daily from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. for issuance of permits for use of tennis courts, picnic groves, baseball and softball diamonds and fishing in the Tidal Basin.

agreements cover a period of years."

"The society would thereby have opened itself to legal responsibility for violation of its own agreements. This was an important factor affecting the action by the board," she said.

The decision "that no exception could be made" was reached, Mrs. Robert declared, by a ballot vote in which 41 members from all parts of the country participated.

"Let us all understand that there was never a question of one person or one artist. The only question under discussion was whether, in view of all existing conditions, an exception could be made in rules of long standing."

"Is it reasonable that one group of women alone, whose properties are privately owned, whose buildings were possible only through voluntary contributions of its members in all parts of the country accumulated during nearly 50 years of effort, be expected to work out the problems of vast groups backed by great changing social forces?" she asked.

Date Filed in January

Mrs. Robert declared that "whatever the conjecture or untruth" published, the date of April 9—when the Anderson group asked for the hall—was filed "even as long ago as last August." She said that despite being told this the committee specified April 9 in its written request to the board "three weeks later."

"If this issue can teach that issues must be kept clear cut and free from entanglements which obscure the real principles involved; if it can lead the members to know more of the problems and difficulties of the society and emphasize the necessity of seeing the whole picture before forming judgment; if it can lead those who speak without knowledge to search for truth; if it can emphasize the need of decisions without malice and patriotism without prejudice," she declared, "it will have served its purpose."

Edward Bruce, chief of the Treasury's fine arts section and chairman of the new committee to raise funds for a mural painting honoring Marian Anderson, yesterday announced the addition of three more sponsors. They are Senator Wagner of New York, Chairman Frederic A. Delano of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Mrs. Raymond Clapper.

Formation of the committee was announced this week by Bruce, who said its purpose is to sponsor the collection of pennies and nickels to finance the painting of a mural honoring the colored contralto. It is proposed to hang the mural in the Interior Department building.

If all Americans with Revolutionary ancestors would take the time and trouble to establish their claims, membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution would jump from 143,000 to more than 1,000,000, it was unofficially estimated yesterday by delegates to the society's forty-eighth Continental Congress.

Less than one-fourth of the 410,000 soldiers and sailors mobilized for the independence fight have been "tied onto," it was believed.

G.O.P. Assails Fiscal Powers Of New Deal

Most of Program Should Be Junked, Says House Group

By the Associated Press.

A conference of House Republicans was told by a special minority committee yesterday that most of the Administration's monetary powers should be junked and all the "dangerous elements in our present monetary program" abandoned.

The Republicans met in the House chamber after listening to a day's debate on a bill to extend for two years the Treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, the domestic silver purchase program and the President's authority to devalue the dollar further.

The Republican committee report proposed discontinuance of the latter two powers and a tightening of Congressional control over the stabilization fund. Headed by Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Michigan, the committee said Congress should set up a Senate-House committee to recommend improvements in the monetary system, particularly with a view to "an early return" to the gold standard.

Roosevelt Replies

At his press conference, President Roosevelt replied in the negative to a question whether continuation of the monetary powers were connected with the European situation, adding it would be better to say they were related to the world economic situation.

But in the House debate, Chairman Somers (Democrat), of New York, of the House Coinage Committee urged their continuation to safeguard American interests in case of "monetary disturbances" resulting from another war.

Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, said no action was taken on the Wolcott committee's report at the conference and no decision was reached on how Republicans should vote on the monetary bill.

enforce them by discipline within their organizations. The American Bar Association, he continued, dominates the legal profession, just as the A. M. A. is accused of dominating the medical profession. The District medical and legal groups function in the same way.

John Henry Lewin, special assistant to the Attorney General, arraigned "organized medicine" sternly when he opened the Government's arguments that the defense demurrer ought to be overruled. He reviewed the campaign against G. H. A., including the threats of withdrawal of approval of hospitals which received G. H. A. physicians, expulsion from his professional connections of Dr. Mario Scandiffio, G. H. A. staff member and other allegedly coercive measures.

"This campaign," said Lewin, "shrieks to heaven."

Allan Hart, also special assistant to the Attorney General, applied himself to the meaning of "trade" and quoted English judges as holding "trade" to include every man who habitually, under contract, gives value for pay.

Hart's list of authorities started with a case in 1414, when a dyer contracted not to operate his business. The medieval court, said Hart, angrily declared the contract void and threatened to jail the man who brought suit on the strength of it.

A century later, said Hart, another English court, declared an agreement among the tailors of Ipswich to limit tailoring to members of their guild to be a restraint "against the liberties of the people" and void.

The same rules of law continue to govern business, Hart argued, and the medical profession is no more immune to regulation than any other.

The arguments are due to close today. Justice Proctor is expected to prepare a formal opinion.

Spain's Role In Next War Held Uncertain

Issue Confused By Many Factors For, Against Neutrality

By Wireless and Special Wire to The Post.

Paris, April 18.—The rape of Albania, the guaranties to Eastern powers threatened by the axis and the end of the Spanish war have altered the pattern of European forces. To what extent? This depends mostly on the attitude of Spain in case of war.

In order to eliminate the causes of error coming from prejudice, passion, propaganda or wishful thinking, it is best to let the facts speak for themselves.

The first fact is that of the three cases theoretically possible two only need be discussed: neutrality or participation on the side of the totalitarian powers. This results from two observations: the attitude of the several powers toward the civil war and the circumstance that even in the ideal conditions of 1914-18 the allied powers were unable to enlist Spain on their side. From which it follows that in a survey of the situation the forces against the totalitarian powers may be counted as forces for neutrality.

In the first place, there is gratitude toward Italy and Germany. This feeling should not be minimized despite somewhat frivolous opinions uttered to the contrary in the London press.

In the second place, Spain has never suffered at the hands of Italy and only once at the hands of Germany, while Great Britain holds Gibraltar and was the main agent in the disintegration of the Spanish peninsula and of the Spanish Empire. As for France, she seldom was well inspired in her relations with Spain, as proved by the history of Morocco.

Political Affinity

A third factor is the affinity of the most formidable force in the new regime—the Falange, or National Syndicalist movement—with the Fascist and Nazi organizations.

A fourth is the militant aggressive policy of the totalitarian powers which may lead them to demand political payment for their help during the civil war.

A fifth is the possible temptation of the prey to be captured in a fight against France and Great Britain, particularly in Gibraltar, which no Nationalist Spaniard can fail to consider as having been unlawfully annexed by Great Britain, and in Morocco, where France is the enemy.

The sixth and last factor is the need for occupation of a well trained and victorious army at the end of the military phase of the civil war.

The first is a stubborn tradition of neutrality born of disillusionment and skepticism.

The second, an almost equally strong tradition of "peace with Great Britain" which will no doubt be stimulated if the present policy of firmness is maintained in London.

The third, a general sympathy with the West which, though indefinable and unexpressed, is a definite obstacle to alliance with far-off Germany and Italy.

The fourth, a curious lack of deference for the Italian language and people on the part of the average Spaniard.

The fifth factor is the feeling that the help given during the civil war was not tendered for Spain's own sake, but with ulterior motives.

There are still other factors. One is the importance of Great Britain and France as cash-paying customers, the difficulty of establishing trade relations with a country of similar production and consumption, such as Italy, and the obvious obstacles to a satisfactory commerce with a country such as Germany, struggling in the bonds of a self-inflicted autarchy.

Then there are the geo-political factors which make it difficult for Italy and impossible for Germany to form a coherent front with Spain.

Another important point is the position of Portugal, a friend of the first hour yet committed to alliance with Great Britain.

Lastly, there is an overwhelming feeling of war weariness in the people.

The conviction which every Spanish thinking man must harbor is that neutrality is the only possible policy under which national unity and reconstruction can be achieved.

So much for the facts. They do not lend themselves to a cut-and-dried conclusion. Yet a few general observations may be ventured.

First, time works for neutrality. The sooner the war breaks out the more difficult it will be for Nationalist Spain to break away from its allies into neutrality.

Secondly, this, however, implies a positive policy on the part of the western group by which is meant not only a constructive general policy backed by the firmness to oppose the anarchy of the axis but also definite, concrete offers to Spain in order to offset those which may have been made to her by the axis.

Thirdly, so far the symptoms are against neutrality.

Fourthly, if Spain sides with the axis she may, in the end, prove more of a liability than of an asset.

Literary Man

Salvador de Madariaga, former Spanish Ambassador to the United States and to France, was born in Corunna in 1886. He was educated in Madrid and Paris and entered upon a literary life. He was a member of the staff of the London Times and wrote on international matters for many publications.

Extremists Seek to Destroy Labor's Rights, Says Madden

in the recent Louisiana trucking case a C. I. O. group sought to hold up an election, but the board ordered elections which ended in an A. F. L. victory.

Asks What "Difference"

Denying the board had favored C. I. O. in one case and the A. F. L. in the other, Madden asked Ellender what "difference" there was between New Orleans and Westwood, Calif., in such cases.

"There may be this difference in the State of Louisiana," Ellender replied. "The C. I. O. has never been able to gain a foothold in Louisiana, and I hope they never will."

Madden testified alleged federation "pressure" for elections in the Westwood plant had taken the form of petitions for removal of board agents and efforts to "stir up" members of Congress.

The NLRB chairman will return to the stand today to resume the board's answer to testimony by Senator Burke, Senator Holman (Republican), of Oregon, and Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan.

Tomorrow, Madden will appear before the House Rules Committee for questioning on the Anderson resolution to force an independent House investigation of the board.

Seek General Inquiry

An effort will be made to broaden the Anderson resolution to provide for a general investigation of the administration of both the wage-hour law and the national labor relations act. There is a movement within the committee to place Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, in charge of the general inquiry, if it is ordered.

Chairman Sabath, of the House rules group, predicted the Anderson resolution "won't come out of committee."

"I won't tolerate any spite expenditures," he said.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Labor Perkins reported fewer workers were involved in strikes in 1938 than in any year since 1932 and there were fewer man-days of idleness due to strikes than in any year since 1931. She estimated there were 2,772 strikes during the year, involving 688,000 workers. In the previous year there were 4,740 strikes, involving 1,860,000 workers.

Madden opened his testimony before the Senate Labor Committee with a defense of the Wagner act as having "fulfilled, to an unusual degree, the hopes of those who enacted it."

He charged that the more completely the law succeeds and the more widely it is accepted, "the more bitter the criticism of the law from that remnant of bitter-enders, those who opposed the original enactment of the law, who have never become reconciled to the liberties which it confers upon American workmen, and who now urge the Congress to take away those liberties."

The Burke proposals to revamp the act he called "class legislation of the most intolerable kind" and evidence of the desires of "extremists" to destroy the law and outlaw workers "upon the slightest deviation from the requirements of the most absurd village ordinance, or the terms of an injunction granted by any labor-baiting judge, local, State or Federal." He said Burke had made serious charges against administration of the act "without any respectable evidence to sustain the charges."

In the case of the Walsh (A. F. of L.) amendments, he declared "the motive is quite different" but said "unfortunate consequences" would flow from many of these. He was particularly critical of an A. F. of L. amendment he said would permit employers "to interfere" with unionization, and predicted many employers would take advantage of the action to prevent unionization or favor a union the "least unwelcome to the employer."

He charged "advocacy of this proposal arises out of disappointment caused by a handful of decisions of the board in which employers have been restrained from interfering with the growth or activities of another union, the American Federation of Labor being the beneficiary of such interference."

Madden maintained the act has reduced industrial strife, brought self-organization to millions of employes, and has "laid a sound basis for decent and dignified labor relations in this country." He opposed any amendment, "except upon the plainest showing of need for change."

Barter Harms Nation Using It, Hull Declares

U. S. Reciprocal Policy Helps World Combat Nazi Method, He Says

Secretary of State Hull, in a vigorous denunciation of German trade methods, last night declared this country's reciprocal trade agreement program is helping other countries "to resist economic pressure abetted by barter" and other devices used by the Nazis.

He declared in a statement that "regimented foreign trade based upon the principle of bilateral balancing, implemented by barter or compensation arrangements," such as Germany utilizes, is "fundamentally unsound" and that such practices "not only constitute a highly disruptive influence in world trade but are injurious to the very countries which utilize them."

"Curtails Trade"

He declared that substitution of such a general policy for "normal, non-discriminatory trade methods inevitably leads to a curtailment of total trade and a reduction of living standards in the countries pursuing such policies."

The statement was issued in reply to reporters' requests for comment on a report by the Department of Commerce on imports from all countries into 16 trade agreements countries.

Hull commented that the report "clearly suggests that the United States . . . has been far more successful in restoring its trade with this group of countries than has Germany with its policies of heavily subsidized barter and compensation trade."

It showed, he said, that the 16 countries increased their purchases of American goods 39.8 per cent between the periods of 1934-35 and 1936-38, while they increased their purchases of German goods by only 1.8 per cent.

Hull said the figures showed the trade agreements program "has proven to be an instrument of policy more than able to hold its own in world markets against the most aggressive trade policies yet devised."

Addison Points Out Tourists' Value

Tourist trade is Washington's second biggest business, Francis G. Addison, president of the Board of Trade, declared yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the Greater National Capital Committee.

Other speakers at the gathering at the Raleigh Hotel, called to inaugurate the organization's drive for $70,000, were Thomas J. Groom, executive vice president of the committee; Edgar Morris, chairman of the executive group; Curtis Hodges, director of publicity and promotion and Russell Schneider, manager of the convention bureau.

Congress to Hear Plea of National Leaders To Admit 20,000 German Children Refugees

Plans to care for 20,000 German children in American homes will be described tomorrow by a group of national leaders at joint Congressional hearings on the Wagner-Rogers bill, providing for their admission to this country during 1939 and 1940.

Led by George Rublee, former executive director of the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees; former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, and Conon Anson Phelps Stokes of Washington Cathedral, 75 educators, churchmen, and leaders in public life will support the bill as a nonsectarian committee for German refugees.

All Creeds to Contribute

The committee is prepared to select the children to be admitted, provide for their financial support, and arrange for their distribution among American families according to their religious faith, the testimony will show. Voluntary contributions from Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups will provide the funds, and the committee will guarantee that the children will not become public charges, witnesses will explain.

Conditions in Europe, making admission of the children necessary, will be described by Clarence E. Pickett, executive director of the committee and secretary of the American Friends Service Committee; F. Balderston and Robert Yarnall, also members of the Friends committee, who have worked with the committee in Europe.

Many to Testify

Others expected to testify at the hearings tomorrow, Friday and Saturday include Canon Stokes, Bishop Bernard James Shell, of Chicago, representing Cardinal Mundelein; William Allen White, editor of the Emporia (Kans.) Gazette; Dean Helen Taft Manning, Bryn Mawr College; Newbold Morris, president of the New York City Council; Wilbur LaRoe, member of the Washington Parole Board; Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, executive secretary, Federation of Churches of Christ; Robert C. Dexter, American Unitarian Committee; Robert L. Hutchins, president, University of Chicago; Helen Hayes, and Dorothy Thompson, newspaper columnist.

Time and One-Half Off for Overtime, Andrews Holds

By the Associated Press.

Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, expressed the opinion yesterday that overtime compensation required by the fair labor standards act may be paid with time and one half off, instead of cash, to persons employed at regular weekly or monthly salaries or wages.

He expressed this view at a press conference.

Your Figure, Madame!

Polyphagia Is Word For Excess Eating Caused by Glands

ANYONE WHO is overweight to a point that seems to call for an explanation prefers to regard the cause as anything but overeating. Many of you honestly believe that all your weight trouble can be laid to some unaccountable and unfair action of your glands.

But if there were anything seriously wrong with your glands, it would, more than likely, be apparent to others. You might even be making headlines in the news, like one woman who gained at the rate of 3 pounds a day, approximately 20 pounds a week, and 240 pounds in three months! Since Christmas, her weight has jumped from 160 to 400 pounds. Her appetite is normal and she eats the same meals as others of the family.

Or, your glands might misbehave with just the opposite results as in the case of another woman who ate enough for ten people and lost weight. She had been eating about 20 times a day and in a year's time had lost 25 pounds. As soon as the doctors took her in charge and made an adjustment in the functioning of the pancreas, she got along very nicely on only three meals a day.

Polyphagia Is the Word

Those cases, of course, are very unusual, but even ordinary cases of glandular disturbance are comparatively rare. According to statistics, only about five out of every 100 overweights can blame it on their glands. What's wrong with the other 95 per cent is just plain polyphagia, a high sounding term for overeating.

By the law of averages, you belong to this second group, and although you may gain from 1 to 3 pounds a month, you can regulate your weight by cutting down on your calorie intake. Just try the 1,200 calorie menus for a couple of weks, and you'll see what happens!

It may be true that your body processes are abnormally slow, that you burn very few calories, and, consequently, the storage of fat comes easier for you than for others. If that is so, it is even more important that the fuel foods in your diet be decreased. You are unable to use large amounts of them and the quantity of your menus should be lessened to correspond with your low calorie requirements. At the same time, the menus must be kept high in quality vitamins, minerals and protein. You must have those elements in normal amounts.

Take Doctor's Advice

You should never take anything to accelerate your metabolism unless so advised by your physician. While taking such a drug, you should be under your doctor's constant supervision because the dosage not only varies with the individual but it also varies as the individual undergoes a change in reducing.

With the amazing knowledge available today regarding glandular functioning, calories and the protective elements which safeguard the health, it is possible for almost anyone to get down to normal weight. In most cases, control of the appetite is the whole secret.

Dinner at Eight

If you can afford but one good evening gown for spring and summer, the ensemble (above) would be a wise choice. The fabric is snowy rayon jersey which weathers even muggy Washington summers yet retains its slippery cool feeling. The high girdled waist and shirred skirt create a silhouette that will not get dated after several seasons of wear. That brief Zouave bolero is an added inducement. Its brilliant red and black embroidery turns the evening gown into a chic dinner frock

The Gentler Sex

Guest List

"Well now I've got down the Gadds, the Twitters, the Burlaps——"

"You aren't going to have the Burlaps!"

"Why not?"

"Oh they're so stuffy!"

"I know, but there's an awfully good contact there—on her side."

"Well, if you have the Burlaps you can't have the Otis Tinfoils."

"Oh, that's right! I forgot. Lucia Tinfoil WAS married to Claude Burlap."

"No, I thought it was Grace Burlap who was Otis Tinfoil's first wife—well anyway there's some kind of a mix-up there."

"Well, I do hate to leave out the Tinfoils. Lucia's always so decorative."

"Yes, and everybody says Otis Tinfoil is really going places."

"I believe I'll leave out the Burlaps and have the Tinfoils."

"Then if you do that, you'll have to invite the Byron Duffers. You know how Otis and Marjorie are."

"But Byron Duffer is such a bore."

"Yes, but Marjorie's terribly smart looking . . . and then that's a pretty good contact."

"I know. Of course I personally don't care a continental about things like that, but after all, I suppose . . ."

"Well the whole point is you just can't afford to ignore such things in this day and age . . . Are you having the Roger Shoddys?"

"Wel-ll I hadn't decided . . ."

"They say he's just cleaning up in that Southern pancake business."

"She's a sweet little thing. I believe I'll put them down . . . Say, would you have the Daublers."

"Well, she's awfully cute in her clothes, don't you think? And I hear he's sold another picture."

"I believe I'll have them. Besides she always knows a lot of gossip . . . Say what do you think about the Arthur Newcomes?"

"We-ll, I hardly know. Of course they've taken this old Birdhaven home—they'd have to have money to do that. And they seem to be pretty intimate with the Caleb Fossils."

"I'm going to put them down. Another thing, I really think people ought to show some hospitality to strangers that way."

"What are you going to do about Ethel Jitney—and George?"

"That's simply worrying me sick. Of course, Ethel's always been one of my best friends but—well I just don't think she would fit in with this crowd."

"Ethel's a lovely person, but——"

"I know what you mean. I hate not to have Ethel. And then there are the Bings from back home. They've done so much for me, but the thing is—well, they just don't fit in, either."

"Well, of course, you're bound to make new friends as you go along. Say, did you know the Roswell Clymers had just bought a big place out in Virginia?"

"No! Say, I really ought to do something for them. I've been to tea there and everything. And you know I think she's really very nice—even if a lot of people do say she's a pusher."

"She's the kind that'll get there all right—but in a nice way. And then, too, she's decorative."

"I'll put them down. Oh heavens, I wish I knew what to do about the Periwinkles."

"I don't believe they'd fit in."

"I know they wouldn't. Still . . . I've know them so long . . . and they've always been so nice to me . . . and then Clarence hasn't been doing so well lately. I hate to leave them out. And it's the same way with Ethel and George Jitney and the Bings—and, oh, then ther's the Picas! I'd forgotten them entirely. But I just can't have everybody."

"Say, why don't you have a tea or something for all these other people?"

"I might do that. Still . . . a tea . . . Oh, wait! I know what I'll do! I'll have two dinners! One for the people I've got down here, and one for all these other people that don't . . . well, that don't . . . well, you know what I mean."

"I know."

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

Mitzi Green Entertaining at Night Club Katharine Hepburn Commutes From New York

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Hurry, hurry, hurry, says Grover Whalen, World's Fair boss, in announcing that some $3,000,000 worth of tickets to the show will be sold at the bargain rates now in force. They end with opening day, which, if you haven't heard, is the 30th. Student tickets are being sold in all our schools.

They previewed the immense lighting system at the fair the other night in a regular pea-soup fog from the Atlantic, and the effect was indescribably beautiful. Of course, we guarantee no fogs. But I believe fairs are like great cities—they are always loveliest, most thrilling and most mysterious at night. Rough spots are covered, and beauty has its full fling. Just a dreamer, at heart.

LITTLE MITZI GREEN, that cute mix who was a child film star and then grew into a lovely and talented girl of the stage, is back in town entertaining at our Versailles Night Club. Clever as always, and as ducky as they come. She was going to make a movie, but something must have gone sour.

NO DOUBT about it, "The Philadelphia Story," is one of the year's real smash hits on Broadway, and Katharine Hepburn is getting the critical praise denied her so long. I've always felt that Kate the Great was one of our very finest actresses—and now she's proving it. Incidentally, commuters on the late Saturday night train to Connecticut usually have Katie as a fellow-passenger. She's been seen wearing her mink coat over slacks and sports jacket—off to a restful Sunday with her family, or friends, or both.

Mrs. Evert J. Grobbelaar, who came all the way from South Africa to see the fair, was shocked to learn that lovely calla lilies usually cost $6 a dozen here. "Imagine," she says, "Why, they're a nuisance around my home. I have to pay a boy to keep them cut down, the weeds!"

I LEARN that the horrid, ugly American gesture of yanking down the girdle may be done away with by the use of a pair of small, rubber oval-shaped discs which snap-fasten into the corset at the back and keep it from climbing and twisting. I certainly hope it is true. Ask men what they hate, and they will all say showing slips, twisted stocking seams, and vulgar girdle-yanking. Just try it on any of the lads you know.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Hurt Because Old Friends Cancel Dinner Date At Eleventh Hour, Woman Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have a (married) man friend of 20 years' standing. We have visited each other's homes and exchanged gifts on occasion; are all about the same age, and each family has two young married children. The man, originally from a poor but respectable family, is "self-made," and now heads a large and prosperous firm that has almost entirely recovered from the financial depression (which speaks for his ability.)

He is seemingly a good and honorable man, fond of his family and friends, of dynamic personality, with fastidious taste in dress, and a lover of good food and entertainment. His wife is more quiet and less colorful, but pleasant company. Whenever business brings him here, he always calls and often proposes some entertainment, with us as his guests. Usually this is dinner at his hotel (always the best in town), with something to follow such as a floor show, movie and sometimes good theater tickets.

Our own assets are not so great as his (now), and we usually entertain them at dinner in our home. He is a connoisseur of food and seems to enjoy our fare, especially certain dishes which I frequently go to considerable bother to procure in a hurry and prepare myself. We like his wife and always have had happy times together. Recently, when my husband was away, this man telephoned from New York to say that he and his wife would be in town that evening and would we join them for dinner at their hotel. I told him it would be interesting, but that my husband was away. Then he asked me to come anyway.

It was a dull, rainy Sunday and I truthfully said I would be delighted to come, though I would also be very glad to have them come out to the apartment for supper. But he persisted in his invitation and I promised to take a cab and be there at the hour named. I took a nap and after dressing carefully, was just going out the door (with the cab waiting) when the telephone rang and the wife was on the wire. (This was 20 minutes before the hour set for the meeting.) She hesitated a little and then said they had just arrived and since it was raining, they thought perhaps it would be best if I didn't come that evening.

For a moment I couldn't speak. Then I recovered myself and agreed that of course it was raining rather hard, but that the taxi, which I had just called, would take me to the door of the hotel, (with no chance of getting wet, as they must have known) but that—perhaps—I had better not—come. She accepted this immediately and said she would be in town all next day and couldn't we two meet downtown and "do something." For a moment I thought of having some pressing engagement, but as I expected to be downtown anyway, I said I would meet her as my guest.

This we did and had lunch together. She seemed perfectly at ease about everything and even told me they had gone to a movie. I said that I, too, had gone out for a while, as I never stopped for weather. This remark seemed to have no significance for her and we spent a rather pleasant day together. As I put her on the bus for her hotel stop, she asked if I would not come along for a while, as their train did not leave until after 9 o'clock. I refused, of course, and went home.

When my husband returned, I told him about the affair and said that though I could never entirely overlook it, and would surely have a "bad headache" or very "pressing engagement" the next time the man called, that I did not wish to disturb their relationship, which had seemed helpful to both, (although more especially to the other man, I believe.) My husband, man-like, said very little either way and the matter was dropped. I have felt, of course, that the main tie was between the two men, but his friendship for all of us had seemed very real and sincere, and we were all very fond of him . . . I am not really thin-skinned and if a good excuse had been given (such as illness, business mix-up, etc.) I would have understood perfectly.

If this were a simply a social question, I could handle it; but since it is probable that he will again be in my home, possibly at my table, and will again—when in the city and lonely—insist upon some impromptu entertainment with us as his guests, I should like to know what is best to do. I feel as if some rare and lovely confidence had been destroyed. How shall I meet this situation wisely and avoid in future, as far as possible, any contact with this couple, without seeming either petty or rude, while leaving my husband free to act as he chooses? (According to my training, nothing short of a broken leg or sudden death could justify so abrupt a last-minute change of plan.)

PERPLEXED.

No Slight Intended

DEAR PERPLEXED: It seems to me that common sense, a wholesome mental outlook on life and savoir faire alike should prompt you to dismiss this incident entirely from your mind, and to proceed in your future relations with the couple exactly as though it had never happened. Your present attitude—of assuming yourself to be the injured and innocent victim of a deliberate slight—is ill-advised, and probably not at all in line with the facts of the case.

Whatever the factors which inspired their last-minute change of plans, I can imagine their decision to beg off was intended to spare you discomfort, rather than to cast reflection upon the desirability of your company. The wife may have arrived in town utterly exhausted from heaven knows what vexations, may have felt temporarily unequal to the challenge of being a good hostess, and may have acted on that impulse purely.

Or she and her husband may have spent the day quarreling over matters domestic or personal, so that neither was in a mood to face a guest, or to enter spontaneously into an evening's fun in company with others. Or perhaps the husband himself discovered, on reaching the hotel, that what he needed most was quiet and rest in order to prepare himself for the next day's business conferences. It may be that you are an exceptionally pretty, attractive and charming person, so that each of them feels called upon to be "on his toes," or in top form, when seeing you.

In any event, solid self-esteem and a kindly tolerance for temperamental vagaries in others should prompt you to place the most charitable construction upon their baffling behavior. I am inclined to think no disparagement was intended or implied, and to believe that it was their very dependence upon the sturdy quality of your long friendship which encouraged them to call off the appointment in a manner as impromptu as that in which they had negotiated it. It is a pretty poor friendship which cannot take in its strides such petty contretemps as this.

Eggs a la King Make a Sunny Spring-like Dish

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor.

IT'S SPRING! The robins are here, the trees and flowers are in bloom. Most everything and everyone is acquiring new costumes. Let's give the family menus a new wardrobe too. A sunny spring-like dish is eggs a la King. Eggs at their present low price will stretch the food budget no end. But serve them in crisp cream-puff shells. The golden brown puffs lend a festive note to a superbly seasoned egg mixture.

Cream Puffs

Cream puffs are easy to make. The following is a proven recipe. Place ¼ cup butter and 1 cup water in saucepan. Heat to boiling point. Add ½ cup flour (sifted once before measuring) with ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir vigorously and cook batter until it leaves sides of pan and forms ball. Remove from fire. Beat in 2 eggs, one at a time. Drop batter from teaspoon on greased baking sheet, about 2 inches apart. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, 15 to 20 minutes. Lower temperature to 350 degrees for 30 minutes. When baked, slit near bottom as soon as removed from oven. This keeps the puffs crisp yet tender. Makes 6 large or 9 medium size puffs.

Eggs a la King

Melt a tablespoon of butter, add 4 tablespoons flour. Stir until smooth. Add 1½ cups milk. Cook and stir constantly until thick. Remove from fire and place over hot water. Add 1 tablespoon pimiento, chopped, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1½ cups mushroms, ¾ teasoon salt, and 6 hard cooked eggs which have been cut lengthwise. Heat thoroughly. Cut top from puff and fill center with egg mixture. Replace top and serve hot.

A tempting salad bowl of fresh cucumber and tomato slices on a bed of tossed greens with a tart French dressing makes a pleasing combination for this dish. A feathery sponge cake and a beverage will complete the meal.

Canadians, Britishers Prominent At Tea Given by Mrs. Mahoney

Wife of Commercial Counselor Is Hostess for Dr. Camsell, Mr. and Mrs. McGregor and Others

By Hope Ridings Miller
The Post Society Editor.

VISITING CANADIANS and Britishers were very much the centers of attention yesterday at the tea given by Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the Canadian Legation. Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister of Mines and Natural Resources, in town for a brief stay, came in for his share of fanfare; as did Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McGregor, of Ottawa; and Capt. and Mrs. Taprell Dorling, of England, who will be off tomorrow for a visit in Canada before sailing the end of the month for their homeland. Capt. and Mrs. Dorling arrived with Mrs. Herbert Seymour Howard, whom they are visiting, and who, with her husband, feted them at a small, informal dinner last evening.

Wearing a frock of gold and black brocade, the hostess yesterday afternoon greeted her guests at the door of the drawing room. Standing with her were Mr. Mahoney and his pretty daughter, Miss Anne Mahoney, whose navy frock was trimmed with a ruching of white. Spring blossoms—roses, sweet peas and tulips—decorated the drawing room, and a huge vase of lilacs centered the table in the dining room.

Dr. Camsell, who is on his way back to Canada this morning, said his visit in Washington was far too short; that he hoped to return another time for a more extended stay. In a brief bit of talk over cocktails he refuted the rumor that Canadians would much prefer for England's King and Queen not to visit the United States. "Why our Governor General sold them the idea in the first place," he said.

Another visiting Canadian at yesterday's party was Dr. Sidney Hunton, who accompanied his daughter, Mrs. Edward Wilber, of Washington. Still other guests at the pleasant, informal gathering were Lady Marler, who arrived early and was off before most of the crowd came in; the Ambassador of Turkey, Mehmet Munir Ertegun; Mrs. Robert Brennan, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Emer Brennan; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams, who came on from Mrs. Randolph H. Miner's "at home," and Mrs. Charles B. Drake and her daughter, Miss Barrine Drake, who also had attended the Miner party.

Anthony de Balasy, of the Hungarian Legation, was there, as were Mrs. Thomas Dawson, Miss Maisie Howard, wearing a smart pencil-blue frock with a matching hat, trimmed in white daisies; V. A. L. Mallet, of the British Embassy; former Representative and Mrs. Wallace Dempsey, Mme. Rajamaitri, wife of the Siamese Minister, in a smart blue and navy ensemble; Mrs. Carlos del Mar, Mrs. Hamilton Wright and Baroness von Below.

Several Celebrities At Press Luncheon

An Indian barrister and lecturer, an Irish journalist, author and playwright, and a magazine editor were honor guests yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Women's National Press Club. Two talked; one merely "took a bow," but all helped to make the program one of the most interesting on the club's calendar this year.

"Trends in India and Its Role in the Current International Drama," was the subject of Miss Bhico Batlivala's fascinating talk. The attractive Indian (incidentally, she's not a princess as has been reported) deftly outlined steps being taken by her people to free themselves from England, and she pointed out how Americans can help India achieve its goal.

A small woman with flashing dark eyes, Miss Batlivala is one of the most fascinating persons I've seen in years. Yesterday her beauty was enhanced by a sari, fashioned of royal purple silk edged with bands of gold brocade.

Miss Batlivala speaks English fluently. She was educated in England, passed the bar there at the age of 21 and practiced law in London for several years before she returned to India to serve as assistant to the minister of education in Baroda.

She has just completed a lecture tour in this country and will return to England the latter part of this month. She left Washington last night and will sail April 26 on the President Harding. While in the Capital she was the house guest of Mrs. Richard Hogue, who yesterday heard her talk before the press women.

Miss Macardle Discusses Drama

Also representing a country that long has fought for its freedom, Miss Dorothy Macardle, of Ireland, was another honor guest of the club. Her talk, however, centered around plays and playwrights of Ireland rather than political upheavals. She recounted some of the steps toward the founding of the Abbey Theater (for which she has written three plays) and mentioned contributions made by some of her noted countrymen such as Lady Gregory, Sean O'Casey, and Paul Vincent Carroll.

Briefly discussing reasons why there are few plays based on Ireland's struggle for independence, she said that persons prepared to write them had either died for independence or were too busy working for it to turn their attention to play-making. In conclusion she expressed the hope that some day there would be many plays portraying the real drama of Ireland's struggle for independence.

Is Author of 'The Irish Republic'

MISS MACARDLE, whose best-known work is "The Irish Republic," for which a preface was written by Prime Minister Eamon De Valera, recently visited the Irish Minister and Mrs. Robert Brennan. She returned to New York yesterday, but will be back in Washington early in May. Betsy Talbot Blackwell (Mrs. James Madison Blackwell), editor of Mademoiselle magazine, was another guest introduced at the luncheon yesterday. She and her husband are visiting Mrs. Frank Mason Dillard in Alexandria, where they are being widely entertained.

Other guests at the luncheon included Mrs. T. V. Smith, Miss Adelaide de Groot, of New York and Paris; Mrs. Donald Sterling, of Portland, Oreg.; Mrs. Henry F. Grady (Lucretia del Valle Grady), Mrs. George Ross (Mary Steele), who entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Batlivala; Mrs. Michael Straus and Dr. Frances Moon Butts.

Visits in Ol' Virginny

Harris & Ewing.

Mrs. James Madison Blackwell, of New York, with her husband is being feted at a constant round of parties since their recent arrival in Alexandria, Va. They are guests there of Mrs. Frank Mason Dillard whom they have been visiting since Saturday. The Blackwells plan to spend a couple of weeks in and about the Old Dominion. Yesterday, Mrs. Blackwell, well known as Betsy Talbot Blackwell, editor of a nationally known magazine, was one of the visiting "firemen" at the luncheon of the Women's National Press Club

Dinner Given By Holcombs

Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. Holcomb, entertained at dinner last evening in their quarters at the Marine Barracks.

Their guests were Col. and Mrs. Allen H. Turnage, Col. and Mrs. Arch Howard, of Quantico, Va.; Col. and Mrs. Ralph Mitchell, Col. and Mrs. Rupertus, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Leo D. Hermle, Maj. and Mrs. C. C. Brown, Maj. and Mrs. Robert C. Kilmartin and Maj. and Mrs. William L. Bales.

On Sunday, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Leo D. Hermle entertained in honor of Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb at a country breakfast at Normandy Farms, when guests included members of the Army, Navy and Marine contingent.

English Union to Give Dinner Monday

The Washington branch of the English Speaking Union will give a dinner on Monday evening, April 24 at the Willard.

The South African Minister and Mrs. William Close and Dr. James Rowland Angell, president of the English Speaking Union of America, and former president of Yale University, will be honor guests. Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Great Britain, will preside.

Mrs. Harlan Tilbury Is Luncheon Guest

Mrs. Harlan Tilbury, who has arrived from her home in Pittsburgh to visit her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Royal H. Trembly, at the Shoreham, was among the guests of Mrs. L. Eaton at luncheon in the Louis Seize room at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday.

Other guests included Mrs. Harry R. Hall, Mrs. Nell Weatherly, of Baltimore; Mrs. George V. Earnshaw, Mrs. F. I. Hendricks and Mrs. Trembly.

Mrs. Harris Tea Hostess

Mrs. George W. Harris and her daughter, Miss Aileen Havlin Harris, entertained at tea yesterday afternoon at their home on Woodland Drive in honor of Mrs. Chester L. McMartin, of Phoenix, Ariz., vice president general of the D. A. R.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Victor Abbot Binford, Mrs. Harold T. Graves, Mrs. Harry E. Nary, Mrs. William W. Brothers, Mrs. Robert K. Minson, Mrs. Lillian Chenowith, Mrs. James Henry Harper, Mrs. Richard E. Claughton, Mrs. Charles S. Schermerhorn, Mrs. Harry C. Oberhoker, and Mrs. John M. Beavers. Generally assisting were Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo, Miss Anne Twoht, Mrs. Charles W. Holmes, Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, Mrs. Rudolph V. Harrell, Mrs. Geoffrey Cheyke, Miss Helen Towner, Mrs. John Townsend, Mrs. Robert Bier, Mrs. Charles Wheeler and Mrs. John C. Weedon.

Mrs. Harris wore a navy blue frock of chiffon, accordion pleated, with a pink lace bodice, and Miss Harris was in periwinkle mousseline de soie.

Mrs. Sumpter Smith Is Hostess to Safety Board Wives

Mrs. Sumpter Smith, wife of Col. Smith, chairman of the air safety board of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, entertained at luncheon yesterday for the wives of several officials of the board. The party took place at her apartment at Woodley Park Towers, and the table was covered with a pointe Venise cloth and centered with spring flowers.

The guests were Mrs. Thomas Hardin, Mrs. C. B. Allen, Mrs. Darrell Lane, Mrs. G. C. Miller, Mrs. Robert Hoyt, Mrs. W. S. Stapler, Mrs. Louise Inwood, Mrs. Roland Rohlfs, Mrs. Jesse Langford, Mrs. Frank Miller, Mrs. Fred Caldwell, Mrs. William Centner, Mrs. John Foscue and Mrs. Asa North Duncan.

Guests at Tea Praise Home Of Monroneys

Georgetown Residence Delights Friends of Congressional Family

By Elizabeth Ford.

Upstairs and down went guests at Mrs. Mike Monroney's tea yesterday. Praises of the attractive house in Georgetown which she and Representative Monroney, of Oklahoma have taken since their arrival in Washington, were lavished on every side.

Carrying out the color scheme of cool white walls in the dining room were the masses of calla lilies centering the buffet table; in the library, on the same floor, white leather chairs contrasted with brown booklined shelves; in the garden the same crisp tones prevailed.

Wife of Irish Minister Present

Quite a slice of the diplomatic contingent arrived early, including the wife of the Irish Minister, Mrs. Robert Brennan, in black; the Canadian Minister's wife, Lady Herbert Marler, also in black with a spring print blouse; Mme. Vladimir Hurban, and pretty Mme. Tsai, of the Chinese Embassy, in a blue and silver dress cut on simple Oriental lines.

Those presiding at the tea table included Mrs. Bernard Jones, Mrs. Edward Meigs, Mrs. William Jennings Price, and Mrs. Josh Lee, whose purple hat was in contrast to her navy blue dress.

Mrs. D. W. Clark Among the Guests

Glimpsed here and there as the 4-to-6 party reached 5 o'clock were Mrs. D. Worth Clark in a dusty-pink ensemble; Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling, whose black hat was topped with a cluster of white flowers; the Misses Pauletta and Ida Guffy, both in dark blue; Mrs. Herron Pearson, whose broad-rimmed hat was trimmed with a big bow of blue net; Mrs. Phil Ferguson in deep mauve, and Mrs. Paul J. Kilday in a dark blue dress and a hat of fuchsia.

Still others were Mme. Constantine Oumansky, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of the Soviet Embassy; Mrs. Tully Nettleton, in an attractive navy outfit; Mrs. Richard M. Kleberg, Mrs. R. Ewing Thomason in a gray suit, banded with fur; Mrs. Wilbur D. Mills, in a blue dress and jonquil-colored hat; Mrs. Albert Gore, in an attractive frock of pink and blue with which she wore a matching hat; Mrs. Harry R. Sheppard, of California, and many, many others.

Mrs. Sayre Gives Luncheon for Mrs. Wallace

Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, was hostess at a luncheon yesterday at her home in Spring Valley in honor of Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The other guests were Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Malin Craig, Mrs. Julian Schley, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Ernest Draper, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor and Mrs. William C. Huntington.

Daughters to Join De Martins Here

The Misses Nora Yolanda and Anna Martins, daughters of the Ambassador of Brazil and Senora de Martins, arrived in New York yesterday from South America on the American Republics liner Argentina and will join their parents here immediately.

On the Santa Lucia of the Grace Line, which also docked yesterday from New York, were Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wessel. The latter is the former Miss Helen Lee Doherty, of Washington, and her husband is attached to the Danish legation in Chile.

Alexander Legares Back From the South

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Legare have returned to their Georgetown residence after spending the winter at their home in Somerville, S. C. They will be here for several weeks before going to their summer home at York Harbor, Me.

Mrs. Legare's daughter, Mrs. George Pulver, and her husband are in Washington for a stay from Southern Pines, N. C., where they spent the winter.

Stanley Woodwards Entertain in Afternoon

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward entertained a few friends at a cocktail party yesterday at their home in Georgetown.

Mr. Woodward, who is Assistant Chief of Protocol in the State Department, recently returned from the West Coast, where he went to meet the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Denmark on their arrival in this country.

To Give Dinner

Harold M. Stephens, Associate Justice of the United States Court of Appeals, and Mrs. Stephens, will give a small dinner tomorrow evening in the Madison Suite of the Wardman Park Hotel.

Cancels Engagements

Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel has been called out of town by the death of her nephew, Charles O. Simms, of Madison, Va., and has canceled all her engagements for the week.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

Entire Delegation in Congress To Attend World's Fair Opening

THOUGH the New York World's Fair will have to open without the benefit of the fleet, as originally planned, a special, added attraction will be the presence of the entire delegation in Congress. Plans have just been completed for the jaunt, and Senators, Representatives and their wives will leave Union Station by special train on Sunday morning, April 30. They will "do" the fair that afternoon, returning to the Capitol at midnight the same evening.

It is particularly appropriate that the Senators and Representatives should witness the opening fanfare, since, as most people have forgotton, the fair was planned to celebrate the 150 anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as President. The delegation will be entertained by Grover Whalen at luncheon at the Federal Building preceding President Roosevelt's address that day.

MRS. SALVADOR DALI looked like a fashion picture, but not a surrealist one, at the luncheon given for her in Middleburg the other day by Dean Rucker, of Washington. The wife of the artist who goes in for fur-lined tea cups, and more lately, telephones dripping water, wore a Schiaparelli ensemble, a red sweater over a black skirt. A necklace of stars made out of glass and a pair of dark spectacles completed the picture.

A Russian, Mrs. Dali speaks little English but fluent French, so the luncheon conversation turned into practically a tete-a-tete between her and Alexander Shields, a foreign service student who speaks seven languages. Mr. Shields knew the Dalis on visits to Spain, France and Budapest.

Invited to meet Mrs. Dali were Carlina Sheridan, cousin of the host, who has since returned to her home in New York after a visit here; Arthur Vandenberg, jr., Maisie Howard, Elise Hill, Yolande de Mauduit, Clement Conger and Lieut. and Mrs. Bernard Roeder.

WHAT'S BECOME of some of the gay bachelors who used to be an indispensable part of stag lines and dinners in the Capital a few years ago? Some of them have done such a complete fade-out that many of their friends are wondering what's happened to them in the ensuing time. Here's brief news of some:

William Gaston, who was here with the New Deal for a while, is now doing work in the labor relations field in New York. He recently made a skiing trip to Canada . . . Claude de Boisanger, former Second Secretary of the French Embassy, has been named First Secretary at the Foreign Office in Paris after a Cairo interlude . . . Ibrahim Seyfullah, popular Turkish diplomat, is in charge of his country's legation in Buenos Aires.

With the appointment of Juan Cardenas as Franco's Ambassador here, the spotlight is centering on some of the former members of the Embassy's staff who resigned to join the rebel forces shortly after the war broke out. Ramon Padilla, we hear, is now stationed at the Embassy in Rome after serving with the Duke of Alba in London during the war . . . The elegant Luis Olivares, outstanding tennis player and dinner giver, is consul at Liverpool . . . Nothing is known at the Embassy as to the where abouts of Juan Terrasa, among the last to hand in his resignation when war broke out. When he had to give up his apartment at the Shoreham, Terrasa went to live with his cook and her husband here, but then left and not much has been heard from him since.

THOUGH Ambassador Cardenas has been here for several weeks, his friends have not yet had the opportunity of renewing acquaintance with his beautiful wife. At present in the South recovering from an automobile accident, Mme. Cardenas is expected to sail shortly for Europe and will probably do no more than pass through Washington for a day or two.

STELLITA STAPLETON is another who has taken up studying public speaking. She was recently asked by a Washington group to give a talk on her famous collection of dolls, which number over 300 from 36 countries. The attic of the Stapleton home is turned over to Stellita's doll studio, where she mends broken ones and browses in her extensive collection of books on the subject. Stellita is giving a series of small dinners, with one scheduled for tomorrow evening and another Saturday.

Mrs. Stapleton and her daughter usually go to Europe for their summers, but with things the way they are now over there, they are considering a trip to Alaska instead.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MISS MARGARET LEWIS Byrd, debutante of the hunt country and Washington, has issued invitations to a luncheon which will be given on Thursday, April 27. The event will take place at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, of Winchester. It will honor Miss Genevieve Garner, who that same afternoon will be crowned queen of Winchester's Apple Blossom Festival.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, of New York, has been visiting in the hunt country as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Filley. Other guests of the Filley's are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan, of New York, and Percy Pyne, of Bernardsville, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., who were entertained over the week-end at Llangollen by Mrs. John Hay Whitney, returned to Charlottesville yesterday.

OTHER VISITORS in the last few days include Representative Hatton W. Sumners, of Texas. "Judge" Sumners, when at the races on Saturday, exclaimed at one exciting point, "Just watch that 'sorrel' horse come on!" That proved Representative Sumners a real old-fashioned "horse" man, and moved him up a notch or two in the affections of the old-timers. It seems that those who think they are fashionable these days, speak of sorrels as "chestnuts."

MISS JANE STEVENSON, of Middleburg, whose engagement to Robert Mellvaine, of Washington, was announced a short time ago, has selected June 3 as the date for her wedding.

Oliver Jackson Sands, of Richmond, is visiting Miss Willett Leach at her home near Middleburg; and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Britten, Mr. and Mrs. Thad Brown, and Mrs. Harry Wardman, of Washington, have also been recent visitors down Middleburg way.

JOHN BODWITCH, of Boston, secretary of the Delaware Park Race Association, is now the guest of Mrs. Amory Perkins, at her home, Journey's End, near Middleburg.

Turner Wiltshire is the hero of Middleburg this week, having "brought home the bacon" on Saturday when his horse, Black Sweep, won the Middleburg Cup Steeplechase at the Glenwood course. Sharing part of the glory with him are Louis Murdock, of Middleburg, the rider, and Henry Brooks, of Upperville, the groom.

A Correction

The dinner honoring Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, announced in this paper yesterday as having been given by Mr. and Mrs. William Boyd Carpenter, was given by Mr. and Mrs. T. Kinsey Carpenter of 4516 Garfield street, Wesley Heights.

Ruth Warren To Be Bride Of Dr. Montalvan

Father, Grandfather Will Officiate at Wedding April 29

With her father as officiating minister, and her grandfather as assisting minister, Miss Ruth Gardiner Warren will become the bride of Dr. Plinio Montalvan, of New York, on Saturday, April 29, at 8 o'clock in the evening at St. Patrick's Episcopal Chapel on Foxhall Road.

Miss Warren is the daughter of the Rev. F. Ernest Warren and Mrs. Warren and the granddaughter of the Rev. Francis H. Reynolds, D. D., of Philadelphia.

Miss June Treloar, of Teaneck, N. J., will be the maid of honor, and the best man will be Miguel R. Cornide. Ushers will be Thomas S. Marchant, of Baltimore, Richard Treloar, of Teaneck, Coleman B. Jones, jr., of this city, and Francis C. Warren, brother of the bride, also of this city.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Virginia Intermont College in Bristol, Va., where she was a member of the Phi Theta Kappa the Englewood Hospital School of Nursing in Englewood, N. J. Later she was a member of the staffs of the Episcopal Hospital in this city and also of the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital in New York.

Dr. Montalvan was graduated from the medical school of the University of Havana, and since coming to this country has devoted himself to the study of ophthalmology, having been a member of the resident staff of the Wilmer Institute in Baltimore and Episcopal Hospital in this city. For the past year and a half he has been instructor to the resident staff in ophthalmology at Harris was in periwinkle mousseline de soie.

E. J. Daly Weds Miss Fineran

At a morning ceremony yesterday at Immaculata Conception Church, Miss Eileen Margaret Fineran, daughter of Mrs. Ellen M. Fineran and the late Edward V. Fineran, became the bride of Eugene J. Daly, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Daly, of Washington. The Rev. John K. Cartwright officiated at the 11 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Edward V. Fineran, jr., was gowned in white faille silk, fashioned on princess lines.

Miss Florence Rea Is Maid of Honor

Miss Florence Rea, the maid of honor, was gowned in aqua silk net. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ralph Krause and Mrs. Edward V. Fineran, jr. Mrs. Krause was gowned in blue silk net and Mrs. Fineran wore peach net.

Edward Sands Fineran, aged 4, was the ring bearer. Edward J. Daly was best man and the ushers were Francis Daly and Edward Farrell.

Couple to Live In Washington

Immediately following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Fineran, in Northwood Park, Md.

The bride is a graduate of Immaculata Conception Academy and attended Maryland University. Mr. Daly graduated from St. John's College and Catholic University. They will make their home here.

Japanese Envoy Host at Dinner

The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Horinouchi entertained at dinner last night for 24 guests.

Tomorrow the Envoy and Mme. Horinouchi will leave for California. They will be gone about two weeks.

To Be Luncheon Hostess

Senora de Munilla, wife of the Military Attache of Cuban Embassy, will entertain at a luncheon today at Hotel 2400.

Mrs. Robert Greets 4,000 at Reception

State Regents Hold Individual "At Homes" at Constitution Hall After D. A. R. Meet Their Officers

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The president general's reception, most brilliant social event of the Continental Congress of the D. A. R., moved smoothly at Constitution Hall last night as Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., of Annapolis, concluding the first year of her administration, received members of the society. Assisted by her national officers, she greeted the more than 4,000 delegates and guests as they filed across the stage in a colorful procession.

In the line, headed by Mrs. Robert, were the vice presidents general, honorary presidents general, members of her cabinet and honorary vice presidents general. The State regents, instead of continuing the line half way around the corridor after they were received, went to their boxes, which were designated by their State flags and there held individual "at homes" for members of their State delegations and other friends. Some people made the entire round, being welcomed by all the regents. Others went only to the head of their own State organization, and then returned to their seats in the body of the auditorium to watch the scene.

President General Congratulated

Flowers in profusion marked the reception. Mrs. Robert, who wore the same silver gray gown embroidered in seed pearls in which she appeared at the opening session, carried one bouquet of lavender orchids and lilies of the valley and another of red roses and blue delphinium. She received many congratulations on her morning's report as to delegates passed down the line, and it was the subject of comment in groups talking together as they waited their turn to move. There appeared to be general approbation of her explanation of the society's stand regarding the Marian Anderson incident.

The pages were the first to go down the line and as soon as they were greeted, left for the Mayflower Hotel, where their annual ball was held. Some wore white, as on the nights of the congress when they are on duty, and others were in colored evening dresses.

Among the vice presidents general was Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, former District regent, who was with Miss Lillian Chenoweth, the present State regent here. Mrs. Haig wore a pink lace gown, a corsage of orchids and carried pink carnations. Miss Chenoweth was in black with four large orchids in the corsage on one shoulder, and she carried a bouquet of blue delphinium.

Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair, of Alexandria, State regent of Virginia, who was just behind them, wore a green lace dress and a small corsage to which someone had added a single red rose, but had no bouquet in her arms. In this she was unique among the State regents, but she chose not to carry flowers, although she admitted she felt "like a fish out of water."

Mrs. Talmadge Heads Committee

Mrs. Julius Young Talmadge, of Georgia, chairman of the reception committee, wore a gown of pearl white, brocaded in silver, and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, who was one of the vice chairmen actively assisting, wore a satin frock in which shades of green, rust and gold were blended.

Other vice chairmen were Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, Mrs. Katharine Matties and Mrs. Martin L. Sigmon.

One colorful note of other years was lacking last night from both the reception and the pages' ball—the military aides. A new regulation makes them unavailable for such function.

About 300 pages and their escorts were present at the ball, which the president general and her cabinet attended as soon as the reception was over. Among others there was Mrs. Ainsworth J. Hague, mother of Mrs. William A. Becker, past president general. Mrs. Hague had attended every congress for 20 years until last spring, when she was unable to come because of an injury.

Mrs. C. S. Schermerhorn was chairman of the ball committee, assisted by Mrs. Ross T. McIntire, Miss Martha Morris, Miss Elizabeth Sherier and Miss Sarah Hawkes, vice chairman; Mrs. Lawrence M. Brown, Mrs. W. M. Carrigan, Miss Aileen Harris, Mrs. Willard L. Hart, Mrs. B. Harsison Lingo, Mrs. Richard F. Voell and Miss Jean Holbrook Warfield.

Tells D. A. R. of Museums

Mrs. William Lloyd Garrison 3d told the D. A. R. museum committee yesterday afternoon that historical museums are becoming increasingly important. Mrs. Willard Steele, curator general, presided at the meeting, which was one of seven on the second day of the forty-eighth congress.

The period prior to 1830 is the era being stressed in historic research, Mrs. Steele said as she also expressed her gratification for "the growing historical interest in the country."

Pages Have Their Own Party

Curley Club Dance Friday

The annual spring dance of the Curley Club will be held Friday, at Hotel 2400, from 10 until 1 o'clock. The proceeds will be applied to the club's scholarship fund, which is presented annually to Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore for whom the club is named.

Miss Dorothy E. Barrett is honorary chairman of the dance with Mrs. Fabiola O'Connell, general chairman assisted by Miss Beatrice Tabinski, treasurer; James Corbett, tickets; Miss Charlotte Urda, posters; John Donnelly, floor; William J. Boyd, door; Miss Frances O'Shea, reception and Lester Hands, music.

Other members of the committees are Miss Luella All, Miss Agnes Bayer, Miss Mary Bazzuro, Miss Irene M. Bradas, Miss Dorothy Braun, Thomas Brennan, Miss Catherine Davis, Joseph Fallon, Miss Elizabeth Fair, Miss Marie Federici, Frank Finley, Miss Elizabeth Flynn, Robert Horner, Mrs. Mary Hyland, Roland Hyland, John Kelly, Miss Agnes Maier, Bert Mattingly, Miss Josephine McCorryt Miss Loretta McGraw, Miss Mary McKay, James O'Connell, Richard O'Donoghue, Edgar C. Partlow, Silvio Poli, Victor Roquet, Daniel Ryan, Miss Ann Samber, Miss Julia Samber, Miss Marion Seavey, Miss Mary Semel, Miss Josephine Sipola, Francis Smith, Miss Genevieve Walsh, and Nicholas Walsh.

2 Cabinet Wives To Receive C. A. R. At White House

Children of the American Revolution will be received at the White House Friday noon with Mrs. Claude Swanson, wife of the Secretary of Navy, and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, acting as hostesses in place of Mrs. Roosevelt.

A basket of flowers will be presented, as usual, by small members dressed in Colonial costume. These will be Allison Paulett, of Lieut. John Shaw, Society of District of Columbia, and Sterling John Eagleton of Harriet M. Lothrop Society.

The young delegates will be accompanied by their National Board of Management, who are members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, headed by Mrs. William A. Pouch of New York. The ceremony precedes the forty-fourth C. A. R. convention, opening Saturday at Memorial Continental Hall.

A stunt party will be held at the ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel, the C. A. R. headquarters, at 8 o'clock where delegates will offer voluntary entertainment, and prizes will be awarded according to the amount of applause. This warming up for the convention entertainment will be in charge of Mrs. John Morrison Kerr

Madame Chairman

MRS. CHARLOTTE HANKIN, speaking at a luncheon of the department of Government and the Legal Status of Women of the D. C. Voteless League of Women Voters yesterday, declared that the trend toward protective social legislation for both men and women removed one of the strongest arguments in favor of the equal rights amendment in this country.

She discussed the status of women in Europe and traced the history of Supreme Court decisions affecting the status of women in the United States.

Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau; Miss Mary Winslow, of the Inter-American Commission of Women, and Mrs. Grace Hays Riley, head of the Washington School of Law, were guests of honor but did not speak.

MISS SARAH GERTRUDE KNOTT, founder and director of the National Folk Festival, spoke before the meeting of the Music Section of the Twentieth Century Club yesterday. Folk songs, and dances furnish one of the finest types of recreation, because of their universal appeal, she said.

Speaking of the National Folk Festival, sponsored by the The Post, and opening April 27, she reminded her audience that the performers represent the art of a past age, when things were not timed to the present day pace, and that this was one of the charms of the program.

MISS KATHERINE GLOVER, author of "America Begins Again," will address the Quota Club Thursday at 6:30 at its weekly dinner meeting at the Women's City Club.

Miss Glover, who is in Washington for a short visit, will describe her experiences in Europe interviewing Mussolini and Queen Elizabeth and other world figures. She has returned to the study of scientific developments in the United States and will also discuss these.

Mrs. Blanche Knight, president of the club, will preside.

THE CHEVY CHASE Elementary School P.-T. A. sponsored a successful card party Monday afternoon for the benefit of its work for the school—and this includes the maintenance of a school nurse.

Among those who entertained was Mrs. John Boyden Goodell, who had as her guests Mrs. J. Milton Goodell, of California, who was on her way East to the World's Fair, and then to open her house at East Dennis, Cape Cod. With her were Mrs. James Carry, Mrs. A. S. Rice and Mrs. Mervyn Rice, of Montclair, N. J.

Phi Mu Fete Opens Friday

Mrs. Romaine Hein Pauley, national second vice president of the Phi Mu Sorority, will be guest of honor at the biennial convention of District 2, which will open a three-day session Friday night at the Wardman Park Hotel. About 150 delegates and other members will attend.

Mrs. Carroll Melton is president of the district.

Gamma Delta Chapter of American University, Margaret Woodbury, chairman, with Beta Alpha Chapter of George Washington University, will act as hostess to the convention.

Each district of the fraternity meets biannually to discuss questions of interest and importance to the active and alumnae chapters.

A formal banquet will close the sessions on Saturday night at which 200 active chapter members and delegates will attend.

American Music Praised to D. A. R. By Mary Howe

American music should be used, not just because it is the work of American composers, but because it is good music, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, of Washington, known in musical circles as Mary Howe, the composer, told D. A. R.'s of the committee for the advancement of American music yesterday. Mrs. Howe and Dr. Edwin N. C. Barnes, of the public schools were speakers at the meeting of State committee chairmen called by Mrs. Edward G. Mead, of Ohio, national chairman, at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women.

"Stars," one of Mrs. Howe's compositions, was played by Winifred Thompson, of Middletown, Ohio, one of the artists on the program. "Dreams," by Dorothy Radde Emery, of Washington, was included among the selections by Norma Simonson, soprano, who was accompanied by the composer. There were also violin numbers by Albert Schoepper, of the Marine Band, accompanied by Irving Fitler.

Mrs. Lois Marshall Hicks, State chairman for the District, assisted in arranging the program.

Hadassah Praised By Senator King

Five hundred members at the linen shower meeting of the Washington Chapter Hadassah held at the Jewish Community Center yesterday heard an address by Senator William H. King of Utah. Senator King praised the work of Hadassah in providing hospitals and health services in Palestine, and commended the organization's building of the Rothschild-Hadassah University Hospital on Mount Scopus overlooking Jerusalem to be opened May 9.

Senator King referred to the international tragedies facing the Jewish people and indicated that the influence of the totalitarian nations was the basis for the disturbances in the Holy Land. Senator King called upon Jews and Christians alike to serve humanity and alleviate the sorrows of the millions of oppressed all over the world.

Mrs. Louis Janof, Mrs. Norman Kal, and Mrs. Charles Rosenthal were chairmen for the committee for supplying linens with Mrs. Albert Sterling as hostess for the tea which followed the meeting.

Doings of The Daughters

Sidelights of the D. A. R. Congress.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE D. A. R. luncheon yesterday in the blue room of the Shoreham was one of the largest individual State functions of the convention, with more than 300 present, including the regents of several other States.

Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of Senator Davis, was at the honor table, and later in the afternoon the members of the Pennsylvania delegation were her guests at a tea at her home. The principal speaker at the luncheon was Mr. William Duncan, of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The All-American musical program was given by Elsa Meiskey, of Philadelphia, soprano, with accompaniment by Mrs. Elva Book, of Alexandria, and with Grace Powell as violinist.

AMONG the eight "foreign" delegates attending the D. A. R. Congress is Mrs. Frederick Eichberg, of Berlin, Germany—state regent of the von Steuben Chapter, which has been operating in the Fatherland for more than a decade.

Baron von Steuben, whose name the chapter bears, was a wealthy Prussian infantry expert who trained raw American recruits without pay and stayed on in America as a New Yorker.

Other foreign delegates in attendance are Mrs. H. A. Wilbur, state regent of Cuba; Mrs. Nathaniel P. Davis, of London; Mrs. Hoover H. Hanger and Mrs. Joseph Ferris, both of Paris; Miss Carolyn Church, of Hawaii, and Mrs. Charles S. Logingier, representing the Philippines.

MRS. HENRY GRADY MEADOR, regent of the Spirit of '76 Chapter, the oldest and largest in Louisiana, who is here for the Congress, has another distinction—a royal one in New Orleans. She was "dowager queen" of this season's Mardi Gras, her husband having been chosen king of the carnival.

She and Mrs. J. Harris Baughman, vice president general from Louisiana, were both guests at the luncheon of the Kentucky Daughters in the Jefferson Room of the Mayflower yesterday.

Mrs. Frederick Wallis, State regent of Kentucky, presided and Mrs. Robert Keene Arnold, vice president general from Kentucky and Mrs. Samuel Green Biggs, honorary president general of the Americans of Royal Descent, also were among the honor guests.

Mrs. Iley Browning, State chairman of Junior American Citizens, was in charge of arrangements.

MRS. HENRY M. ROBERT, JR., president general, was guest of honor at the Maryland Daughters' luncheon in the Chinese Room. As a resident of Annapolis, and head of the national society, she is their most distinguished native daughter.

Senator Lister Hill, of Alabama, who addressed the District D. A. R. at the close of its conference this spring, was the luncheon speaker. Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Frank Madison Dick, vice president general from Maryland, and Mrs. Elly Ruff Barnes, Alabama regent, were among other honor guests. Mrs. E. E. Woollen, of Baltimore, was the luncheon chairman.

MRS. LOREN EDGAR REX, of Wichita, Kans., chaplain general, who always wears a lei instead of a corsage, recalling the years she lived in Hawaii, entertained the State chaplains yesterday at 7 a. m. breakfast.

MRS. WILLIAM A. BECKER, past president general, was, of course, a guest of honor at New Jersey's luncheon. Senator Warren Barber was to have been guest speaker, but was detained on "The Hill." Mrs. J. Warren Perkins is the State regent.

Other State groups and their regents, who had luncheons at the Mayflower, were Kansas, Miss Marion Seelye; Oregon, Mrs. Gilbert F. Holt; Mississippi, Mrs. Percy E. Quinn, and Connecticut, Mrs. Frederick Palmer Latimer. Missouri, Mrs. Henry Clay Chiles, regent, had a breakfast at 8.

The dinner parties last night included that of Alabama, of which Mrs. B. Y. Martin, of the District, has been in charge for the past five years. Mrs. Martin has divided her attention this time between arrangements for the dinner and the care of her baby daughter, Annie Laurie, aged 7 weeks. Mrs. E. R. Barnes is the Alabama regent.

Mrs. William B. Bankhead, wife of the Speaker of the House, and other wives of members of Congress from Alabama will entertain the D. A. R. delegates from the State at tea today at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

DON'T THROW AWAY old papers until you have checked with the D. A. R. nearest you, Mrs. Robert King, historian for South Carolina, advises Americans.

Most of the society's "new" museum pieces are being found by following that advice, she says.

One of the latest finds in her State—a land grant signed by Robert Pinckney—she brought to Washington to be put in the archives room which will be opened in Constitution Hall during the summer.

Mrs. Stevens Hostess To Missionary Circle

Mrs. Cabot Stevens entertained members of the Missionary Circle of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church yesterday at her home. Later other friends dropped in to see slides of Switzerland shown by Miss Helen LeFevre Lyon, who also gave a brief talk on that country.

Mrs. Edward Walter sang several selections and Mrs. Henry K. Willard poured tea.

Dr. McCartney Indorsed for Church Honor

Pastor Here May Be Next Moderator Of Presbyterians

Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, yesterday was indorsed for moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States at a meeting of 39 churches of the Washington City Presbytery at Northminster Presbyterian Church.

The indorsement will be considered at the meeting of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Cleveland, beginning May 25.

Active and zealous worker in the civic and religious affairs of Washington, Dr. McCartney serves as chairman of the committee on religious life in the Nation's Capital. He has three brothers in the ministry, one of whom, Clarence E. McCartney, is a past moderator of the general assembly.

Dr. McCartney came here nine years ago as successor to Dr. Charles Wood in the then Church of the Covenant, later becoming the amalgamated Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

Inquest This Week In Traffic Death

An inquest will be held at the District Morgue this week in the traffic death of Castell Woodward, colored, 42, of 626 K street southwest, who died at Casualty Hospital early yesterday. Woodward was struck by an automobile as he walked from behind parked cars to cross Fourth street southwest in the 900 block.

Edward Tate, colored, 32, of 1220 Third street southwest, driver of the car, will appear at the hearing.

Woodward's death is the twenty-eighth of its kind this year.

Governor of New Mexico To Be Honored Tonight

Smitty, Alley Cat, Doing Nicely After Caesarian; Kittens Die

"Mamma" cat, "Smitty" is shown as she emerged from ether after Caesarian operation necessary for the birth of kittens. Latest bulletin from the Buckingham Animal Hospital said she was doing well

Lansburgh Employes Take Up Collection To Rush Her to Pet Hospital; She Still Is in a Serious Condition

Smitty was not quite out of the woods yet last night, but she was doing "as well as can be expected" after a Caesarian operation.

Smitty is only an alley cat, but the boys at Lansburgh's delivery department, Fifth and W streets northeast, thought enough of her to pass the hat and send her to a pet hospital.

The operation was performed yesterday at the Hospital for Animals, 2115 Fourteenth street northwest, and, while Smitty survived, she lost her kittens.

Smitty is a New Yorker, having been brought here a year ago by Carl Severance, delivery superintendent. She was proudly awaiting motherhood Sunday night when it was noticed something was wrong.

Edward Leavitt, an employe, took up a collection and Smitty was rushed to the pet hospital.

Court Ban Denied In Police Arrests

Justice Cox yesterday ruled the courts have no power to forbid the police to make arrests, even though no charges are placed and the prisoners claim they are being harassed. He dismissed an action brought by two young women who said they were arrested for "investigation" 150 times in two years.

Dr. Ware to Speak

"Why Teachers Should Be in the Labor Movement" will be discussed by Dr. Caroline Ware, department of social sciences, American University, at a meeting of the Washington Private School Teachers' Union tomorrow night at 8 in the Bookshop, 916 Seventeenth street northwest.

Bay State D. A. R. To Dance Tonight

D. A. R. delegates from Massachusetts have been invited by the Massachusetts State Society to celebrate the Patriots' Day dance tonight at Wardman Park Hotel. The dance will celebrate the 164th anniverary of the battles of Lexington and Concord.

Miss Margaret Dean is chairman of tonight's dance. Miss Ethel Lane Hersey is the D. A. R. State regent from Massachusetts. Other guests tonight will be Senator David I. Walsh, Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge and members of the Congressional delegation.

Laundry Manager Injured in Fall

Norbert Cannon, 46, of Beverly Hills, Va., general manager of the Elite Laundry, 2100 block Fourteenth street northwest, was painfully injured yesterday when he fell down a ladder while inspecting the company's new building which is under construction. He was treated for cuts and bruises, possible concussion and possible fractured ribs.

Special Delivery Boys Hold Dance Tonight

Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, will be guest of honor at a dance of special delivery messengers of the Washington City postoffice at 10-tonight in the Burlington Hotel. James Fitzgerald is president of the messengers' union local, and Jahn Peretti is dance chairman.

Farley, Barkley To Speak

Postmaster General James A. Farley and Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, will head the list of speakers at the Junior Jackson Day dinner at the Mayflower Hotel tonight at 7 p. m., the Young Democratic Club, which is sponsoring the affair, announced today.

A message from President Roosevelt is expected to discuss future party policies. Farley, whose address will be broadcast, will appraise the current political situation.

Other speakers will be Representative Sam Rayburn (Democrat), of Texas, and Pitt Tyson Maner, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America.

Sigma Nu Phi to Meet

The Oliver Wendell Holmes Chapter of Sigma Nu Phi, legal fraternity, will meet at 9 p. m. tomorrow at 1755 Q street northwest. Chancellor Willis E. Nowell will preside.

Citizens Hear Community Spirit Lauded

Rep. Patrick Speaks To Manor Park And Whittier Groups At Dinner Here

The spirit of co-operation between home, school and community was praised last night by speakers at a joint banquet of the Manor Park Citizens Association and the Whittier Parent-Teacher Association in the Albright Evangelical Church.

Representative Luther Patrick (Democrat), of Alabama, guest speaker, described the community spirit as "the unwritten Constitution that comes out of our lives and our hearts." It is far more important than the Constitution itself, he said.

The Representative told about his first dinner party at the White House. He remembered that his wife sat beside him "at a $1,000,000 table with a $12 orchid in a $2 purse."

The Democratic Representative from Alabama entertained his 200 hearers with a satirical account of his efforts to "crash into Washington high society."

Speeches of welcome were made by Miss Elsie E. Green, principal of Whittier School; Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president of th District Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations; Mrs. Paul O. Gotwals, president of Whittier Parent-Teacher Association, and George A. Corbin, president of Manor Park Citizens Association.

Corbin outlined the accomplishments of the association during the year, emphasizing its work in securing appropriations for Coolidge High School and reorganization of the Sixth Precinct. A stadium for the new school and a new field house were among objectives for the coming year, he said.

Mrs. Earle W. Dahlberg, first vice president of the Whittier group, and F. Arthur Oehm, of the citizens association, acted as toastmasters and introduced past presidents of both organizations. Leonard J. Cantell, principal of Paul Junior High School; Arthur Krimmelmeyer, director of Takoma Playground, and Allan Davis, retired principal of Roosevelt High School, also were recognized.

Entertainment was provided by dancers from the Charles Demma studio. The Ladies Guild of Albright Church arranged the dinner.

Columbia Heights

Election of the city council proposed in the Griffenhagen report for reforming the District government was supported last night in a resolution unanimously adopted by the Columbia Heights Citizens Association.

Other resolutions adopted urged an immediate investigation of the milk supply of the District in regard to quality and prices, and requested the installation of more parking meters in the downtown areas, especially between Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues northwest.

The association also indorsed the protest of the Takoma Park (D. C.) Citizens Association against the erection of 15-foot dwellings in the residential area.

No. Cleveland Park

A move to establish junior citizen associations was initiated by the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association as a method of combating vandalism and schooling youth for civic leadership.

Plans were drafted to contact the Commissioners and other associations for developing the idea, introduced by J. B. Dickman, jr.

The organization instructed a special committee to draw up a letter condemning the Commissioners and District building inspector for not taking initiative in revising zoning laws for the benefit of property owners. The group urged measures to bar building of row houses in areas featuring detached or semidetached dwellings.

The assocation voted to join the Northwest Council.

Petworth

The Petworth Citizens Association voted approval of the Sumners bill for District suffrage and representation in Congress, and urged legislation restricting sale of liquor within 1,000 feet of schools, colleges, or hospitals.

The Association appropriated $10 to the Distrcit Suffrage Association. It opposed licensing of a liquor store in 5000 block of First street northwest.

Other resolutions favored use of the old Tuberculosis Hospital at Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest for the new Normal Teachers College and requested William H. Van Duzer, director of vehicles and traffic, to consider installation of traffic lights at Georgia avenue and Upshur streets northwest.

Benning

The Benning Citizens Association last night elected George A. Wood president.

The organization also voted to send a letter to Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, requesting that a traffic light be placed at Minnesota avenue and Benning road southeast.

Smoke from trains passing through the section was found objectionable by the group.

Northeast Boundary

The Northeast Boundary Citizens Association voted to observe the beginning of the $600,000 Watts Run flood-control project with appropriate civic exercises. Meeting last night at the Burrville School, the organization also criticized "inadequate" school funds in the District appropriation bill.

The association went on record as opposing the Griffenhagen reorganization plan to abolish an autonomous school board, and asked for a popularly elected city council. It reaffirmed its opposition to a District sales tax.

Distinguished D. C. Birdwoman Keeps Hundreds of High-Fliers

MRS. CATHERINE A. WEBER

(This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are—Editor's note.)

By Gerald G. Gross.

Sweetheart and Billy the Crook and Jerry and more than 300 other birds of various feathers—they are the main reasons for Mrs. Catherine A. Weber's being as young and energetic as she is today, though she'll be 77 on July 18.

Sweetheart is a lovebird. In fact, he is so affectionate that he insisted upon perching on this department's head during yesterday's interview with his mistress. Billy the Crook is a partly tamed wild robin that has been coming to Mrs. Weber's back door for handouts since 1934. Jerry is a dwarf parrot that clings to her shoulder wherever she goes.

Distinguished Birdwoman

Mrs. Weber herself is undoubtedly the Capital's most distinguished birdwoman, a white-haired little lady who has been breeding canaries here in her home for 58 years. She could easily pass for 65 and yet, quite unfeminine-like, she comes right out and owns up to 76.

Her home is at 3015 Thirteenth street northwest. The first floor and basement are constantly atwitter with the songs of hundreds of canaries. Canaries hat she is raising, canaries taken in to board, canaries that are her personal pets. There are, besides, scores of finches, lovebirds, Brazilian cardinals, a Chinese nightingale, Jerry the parrot and numerous other species.

Father Loved Birds

Heredity may have something to do with her affinity for animals, especially with birds. Her father was an amateur ornithologist who encouraged her to make friends with the neighborhood fauna.

Mrs. Weber has made Washington her home ever since she came to the United States at 17 from Germany. In all that time she has never been without a bird in the house.

Her husband and her son have been dead for several years. She lives for her canaries and they, to judge by their apparent delight when she caresses them, for her. Many of the creatures are trained to climb ladders, carry certain tunes and perch whenever told.

Capital News In Brief

Wanted $4; Got It

A bandit with a principle escaped with $4 last night after holding up two men in a liquor store. The principle was the $4—he wouldn't take more, and he wouldn't take less.

The unkempt robber, one hand menacingly in his pocket, stepped into Hall's liquor store at 1211 E street northwest and demanded $4 from Edward F. Hall, 38, the proprietor, and Hogarth Colston, of Silver Spring, a liquor salesman.

"I know you have much more money in your pockets and in the cash register," declared the intruder. "But all I want is $4—without any trouble."

Legal Pitfalls

The legal pitfalls which beset young lawyers starting practice before the Police Court of the District were explained last night by Judge Edward M. Curran before 500 young lawyers attending an institute of the Junior Bar Section of the American Bar Association.

In his talk at Georgetown University, Judge Curran was assisted by a panel composed of Myron Ehrlich, Assistant Corporation Counsel J. Francis Reilly, and J. Bernard Flaherty. T. Gillespie Walsh explained the workings of the new D. C. Mental Hygiene Commission, which now handles lunacy matters.

Winning Pictures Picked

Winning pictures among 275 displayed at the United States National Museum in the photographic contest of the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club were chosen in a meeting at the Museum last night.

Leaders in four classes, all of which showed Appalachian Mountain views, were as follows: Scenic, "Shenandoah," taken by Abbie Rowe; human interset, "Hitchhiker," by Gordon Durr; motion picture, "Autmn Rambles," by Mark Taylor; kodachrome slide, "Evening Shadows," by Miss Vivian Robb.

Fall Injures Engineer

George Foster, 30, of New Rochelle, N. Y., engineer with the Benning Power Co., Thirty-fourth and Benning road northeast, suffered fractures of the spine, arm, and hip when he fell 50 feet to the ground from the roof of the plant headquarters yesterday. At Casualty Hospital he was said to be in serious condition.

Conference Asks U. S. Parole Body

Advisory Council Urged to Improve Penal Methods As Parley Closes

Creation of a Federal advisory council to improve parole administration throughout the country was unanimously recommended yesterday by 500 delegates at the closing session of the National Parole Conference.

Meanwhile several committees encountered difficulty in agreeing on reports. Recommendations of the committee on standards and procedures in parole supervision "went through seven editions," Mgr. John O'Grady, chairman, told the conference.

Split on Education

Evenly split on the issue of requiring a college education for all parole officers, the committee finally brought in a compromise recommendation describing four years of academic training as "desirable."

Functions of the proposed national council on parole, as outlined by Prof. John B. Waite, of the University of Michigan law school, chairman of the committee on further action, would include:

Study of the feasibility of Federal grants in aid to increase effectiveness of State and local procedures.

Promotion of courses of professional training for parole personnel in colleges and universities.

Collection and dissemination of information relating to parole practices in various jurisdictions and a continuous campaign of public education in importance of the parole problem.

Movements Indorsed

The conference indorsed the committee's proposal for legislation designed to remove parole officers from all political influence and a request to the American Law Institute, or a similar body, "to draft model parole statutes for consideration by the various State Legislatures."

Also approved was a declaration of ten principles to govern parole administration, drawn up by a committee headed by Justice Harold M. Stephens, of the District Court of Appeals. High lights of the statement were recommendations that:

Sentencing and parole laws should endow the paroling authority with broad discretion in determining time and conditions of release.

Paroled offenders be promptly disciplined or reimprisoned if they do not fulfill obligations of law-abiding citizens.

The public must recognize the necessity of giving the paroled offender "a fair opportunity to earn an honest living and maintain self-respect to the end that he may be truly rehabilitated and the public adequately protected."

Defends Paroled Men

Opening debate on the latter recommendation, Daniel B. Shields, United States Attorney for Utah, demanded that paroled men be admitted to the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Civilian Conservation Corps. Shields' proposal was tabled.

The real "professor of crime" in American prisons is not the old-timer but the criminal from 18 to 24 years of age, Dean Wayne L. Morse, of the University of Oregon Law School, declared, attacking a tendency toward too great leniency for the youthful offender "for no reason except his youth."

Attorney General Murphy last night entertained delegates at a reception in the Pan American Union.

Off F St. 2 Years, He Jaywalks on Visit; Is Fined $1

A District resident in Police Court yesterday was fined $1 for violating the pedestrian control law in what he testified was his first visit to F street in two years.

Abe Silverman, 49, of 415 M street northwest, told Judge Walter J. Casey that he had not been in the neighborhood of Twelfth and F streets, where he was stopped, for two years though the intersection is only about 15 blocks from his home.

Darr Urges Free Counsel In Crime Cases

Defender Would Be Civic Improvement, Bar Head Says

Public support for a bill which would establish a District "public defender" to act as legal counsel for needy persons in criminal cases was urged last night by Sefton Darr, president of the District Bar Association, in a broadcast over WJSV.

Darr pointed out that there were three agencies helping the needy in civil cases, but that those accused of crimes were defended under the present system by uncompensated young lawyers, who were assigned by the judge.

Impoverished persons can obtain free legal aid through the bar association office for Municipal Court cases, the District Legal Aid Bureau, and the small claims and conciliation branch of the Municipal Court, Darr said.

"While property rights should be protected and preserved," Darr declared, "yet the greatest of all rights under a democratic form of government is that of personal liberty."

A public defender for the District with an adequate staff, he asserted, would be "the highest form of civic improvement."

Nicholson Named Director of Junior Red Cross

NICHOLSON

He will replace Walter S. Gard, who will retire from the post on July 1 after 20 years' service.

Joining the Red Cross in 1919, Nicholson was a delegate to the fifteenth and sixteenth international Red Cross conferences and chairman of the Red Cross delegation to the international conference of social work in London. Before going to Chicago he was vice chairman in charge of domestic operations.

He has served on the governing boards of many Chicago civic and welfare agencies, and the public service committee of the Union League Club.

Mission Work Falls on U. S., Catholics Told

With missionary work hampered in war-devastated or dictatorial countries of Europe, the burden of carrying Christianity to pagan countries falls on America, Doris Pettit, of the Academy of the Sacred Heart, declared in winning the finals of the Washington area of the archdiocesan oratorical contest last night.

Speaking in a packed Gonzaga Hall auditorium, Miss Pettit, who will represent the District in the archdiocesan finals April 30 at Catholic University, said it is the duty of this country to carry on world missionary work in answer to the pleas of "persecuted and suffering" minorities in European countries where dictators make fulfillment of religious duties increasingly more difficult.

Miss Pettit said continued missionary work through support of the Society of the Propagation of the Faith Society is this country's obligation because the United States in its early years benefited from European missionary groups then active here.

Other contestants who urged support of the Propagation of the Faith Society were Miss Lorraine Koontz, of the Immaculate Conception Academy; Miss Lillanne Swindlehurst, Academy of the Holy Cross, and Miss Evelyn Zimmer, of St. Rose Technical School.

Presiding over the contest was Dr. Thomas F. Healy, dean of the Georgetown Foreign Service School. The judges were the Rev. Thomas J. Higgins, S. J.; Miss Irene Stack and Joseph B. Fitzgerald.

Woman's Assailant Frightened Off by Boys

Mrs. Viola Guthridge, 33, of 4914 Fourth street northwest, escaped with a cut on her ear last night when a group of boys frightened off her assailant. Mrs. Guthridge told police she was walking along the 200 block of Farragut street northwest, when a 6-foot colored man, weighing about 175 pounds, jumped from behind the bushes and grabbed her throat, threatening her with a knife if she screamed.

66 Ambulances Bought From D. C. Motor Firm

The Steuart Motor Co. of Washington was awarded a contract for 66 field ambulances by the War Department yesterday, on a bid of $72,621.

Sir Willmott Lauds British 'Peace Front'

London Times Correspondent Speaks to Masons

The last few days' European "peace front" developments were termed "emphatically good" by Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, speaking at the nineteenth anniversary dinner of the Anchor Masonic Club of the Commerce Department, Maritime Commission and Civil Aeronautics Authority at the Press Club last night.

Sir Willmott said that the same forces which blocked Napoleon—nationalistic feelings in the lands he attacked—would be the rock on which the conquests of Hitler and Mussolini would founder. The smaller European nations "are as thirstily desirous of asserting their nationalism" as the Germans and Italians, he stated.

"What is going on in England and France is a genuine attempt to re-establish a balance of power in which the sides are so roughly equal that neither dares to attack the other," he added.

Unless the democratic nations can achieve the same inner unity through the consent of their citizens which the totalitarian states achieve by force, he concluded, the democracies dare not measure their strength against the dictatorships.

Harrisburg Rabbi Addresses Jewish Youth Rally

The salvation of youth today is in peacetime movements and in adherence to loyalties of home and synagogue, Rabbi Philip D. Bookstaber, of Harrisburg, Pa., last night told more than 500 at the Jewish Community Center at a youth rally of the United Jewish Appeal opening her Monday. The Washington quota is $250,000.

Preceding the address, representatives of more than 40 youth organizations heard plans outlined for raising their quota in the two weeks' drive, including the formation of 50 teams under the leadership of Leonore Rosenthal and Alfred Reines, co-chairman of the youth division, who presided over the rally.

The Junior Hadassah, the Jewish Consumption Relief Society and the Council of Jewish Youths are among the units in the campaign, in which the young people will strive for 1,500 contributions.

Prizes Given School Cadets At Anacostia

Awards Presented By P.-T. A. After Drills; Overcrowded Building Reported

Anacostia Junior-Senior High School echoed to the tread of marching feet and the bark of military commands last night as cadets competed for prizes awarded by the school Parent-Teacher Association.

The two best drilled privates turned out to be Lance Corporal Gorman Fry, of A company, and Lance Corporal Louis Scott, of B company. A competition among corporals revealed Ralph Cranford of A company as tops there, and among sergeants resulted in an award for Selig Chester, who won last year's competition as well.

Judges were Capt. H. G. Sheen, regular army, Third Corps area headquarters, Baltimore, who came over for the event, and Lieut. A. J. Owens, of the Ninety-fourth Company, U. S. Marine Corps. Lieut. Owens was a former companion in arms of J. P. Collins, principal of the school, who served as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Presents Prizes

Mrs. William J. Plemmons, president of the P.-T. A., presented the prizes, following the drill, which was supervised by Lieut. P. Parmele, United States Engineers Corps, military instructor, and Lieut. Richard Hill, also of the Engineers Corps, chairman of the military committee for the school.

Commands were given during the competition by Lieut. Clarence Herrell, of A Company; Lieuts. Casimir Ziarko and William Payne, of B Company; Capt. Adwin Green, for the corporals, and Capt. Buster Williams, for the sergeants.

Hold Business Meeting

At a P.-T. A. business meeting that preceded the drill, Adelbert Lee, chairman of a special committee for purchase of ground for a new junior high school building at Eighteenth street and Fairlawn avenue, and E. J. Reid, legislative chairman for the new school, made a report. Overcrowded condition of the school is proved, they said, by the fact that 1,575 pupils attend, although it was built to accommodate 1,210. Of these 885 are junior high school pupils, and 690 are senior high school pupils. With 95 being graduated in June, and an anticipated 260 entering in the fall, it is estimated that 1,740 will be using the building next year.

The chairmen reported that a hearing had been held before the House Committee, and a call was being waited for a hearing before the Senate Committee.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

The Belasco to Reopen With Week-End Films

Manager Jack Thoman to Resume House Control; Civic Theater to Host National Convention; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

IT IS JACK THOMAN, long identified—although intermittently—with the management of the Belasco Theater, who calls up to say that the Lafayette Square Playhouse will reopen on Saturday of this week under his personal direction.

BELL.

It is a slightly altered policy that Jack will put into operation, come April 22. Motion picture entertainment, mostly of foreign extraction, will be presented surely on week-ends. For example, on this Saturday "The Kreutzer Sonata" will be the major feature of the bill to be presented on Saturday and Sunday only. Showings of the picture, on both days, will be continuous from 2 p. m. Some week-ends, one is led to believe, the screen bill will be inaugurated as early as Friday.

The balance of each week is largely under the domination of previous contracts. There will be a considerable number of rentals intervening between the cinema programs. In May, for instance, a surprising number of Washington dancing academies will hold their spring festivals—if that is what they are—on the stage of the Belasco—Julia Cunningham, probably Phil Hayden and a number of others.

Notwithstanding these midweek interruptions of Mr. Thoman's motion picture policy, the fact remains that pictures will be on tap at the Belasco the last days of every week. In contrast with a dark house, that, indeed is something.

As far as "The Kreutzer Sonata" is concerned, it seems to be an admirable inaugural feature. The story, as everybody must know, was written by Count Leo Tolstoi, who was something less than a tyro at his trade. It is embellished with music by no less a master of his art than Beethoven.

Even with his broken schedules, things do not look too black for Mr. Thoman, for which we are glad. Mr. Thoman is an earnest and honest practitioner of the theater—and a thoroughly likable chap, to boot. They don't always come along like that in this racket.

Remember a picture called "A Bill of Divorcement?" It was a film version of the stage play of the same name, by Clemence Dane, in which, if memory serves—and it probably doesn't—Katharine Cornell scored one of her early successes. Another Katharine—also spelled with a couple of "a's"—came to light under the same title. That was Katharine Hepburn, who made her first screen success in this subject in association with John Barrymore and Billie Burke. Whether you remember it or not, "A Bill of Divorcement" will be revived for a two-day engagement at the Warner Brothers' Central Theater on Thursday and Friday of this week, April 20 and 21.

The Washington Civic Theater will be host to the National Congress of the newly formed Confederacy of American Community Theaters on May 11, 12 and 13, according to an announcement just made by Lee D. Butler, president of the Civic.

Nearly every community theater in the United States will be represented at this convention, if the pronouncement of Albert McCleery, of Stage Magazine, making arrangements for the conclave, is to be relied upon—as it assuredly is. Already delegations from points as distant as Seattle, Los Angeles, New Orleans and Jacksonville have signified their intention of attending this first of the Confederacy conventions.

The Confederacy, if it is of any interest to you, will work for the establishment of a lobby in Washington, a centralized publicity bureau, a clearing-house for labor difficulties, a series of regional and State organizations and a professional guild and employment bureau for community theater workers.

So we shall see what we shall see.

A word to the wife is suspicious—or something like that. So a word of fore-warning would be that the box-office sale of tickets for the forthcoming engagement of Maurice Evans in the full-length "Hamlet" and "Henry IV," Part I, in which he plays Falstaff, will open at the National Theater on Thursday morning at 9. There will be a vast number of disappointed prospective customers for this engagement who will plead that they didn't know about getting tickets in advance. Mr. Evans, of course, will pack them in. So let this be a warning to you. I would suggest mail orders, but am afraid it is too late for that.

The Variety Club of Washington, the showmen's organization in the National Capital, has joined with the Lions, Kiwanis, Soroptimist, Seventy-fifth Congressional and Alliance clubs as a patron of the Children's Studio's production of "The Blue Bird," to be given in Roosevelt High School auditorium on April 28 and 29. Proceeds of the performances will be devoted to the fund for the maintenance of the educational and recreational facilities of the city's underprivileged crippled children.

Speaking of "The Blue Bird" reminds me that Hardie Meakin, the doughty manager of RKO-Keith's Theater, played The Cat in the Maurice Maeterlinck classic when it was first presented in Washington nearly 25 years ago—and I probably will get my ears slapped down for bringing this up! However, the fact remains that Hardie never misses a performance of the piece, when he is able to get there, and will be among those present at Roosevelt on opening night. The Cat had better be good or Mr. Meakin will meow right back at him!

For a long time I have wondered what might have become of Bert Garmise, formerly director of circulation for Scribner's Magazine, who used to send me the book regularly, for no known reason. Now he comes to life as publisher of his own magazine, called Host. If there is anything you need to know about entertaining, sumptuously and amusingly, this is the place to find it out.

The only excuse for mentioning the matter here is that in two or three of the articles in the copy I have stars of the stage and screen play a prominent part.

Boy, are they hosts!

Personal aside to Dave Apollon, headlining at Loew's Capitol this week with his "Varieties of 1939" revue: Many thanks for the cordial note. I, too, hope that meeting may be soon.

A Broadway Nocturne

". . . and I hope you finish your book this year . . . Well, we've got to start saving some money, because the baby's positively going to college, when he grows up . . . What, dear? . . . How do I know? . . . I saw him look longingly at the minnows in the goldfish bowl."

11 P. M.: "A man called the Beauty department at a Fifth Avenue department store this week and canceled his wife's appointment for treatments," a legalite informs at the Cotton Club. "He canceled her appointments for the next two weeks. The caller was Justice Edgar Lauer" . . . "Mrs. Jim Farley is quite ill," an editor reveals at Leon and Eddie's. "She'll have to go to the hospital soon" . . . "You've only been a public figure for five years," Mayor LaGuardia consoles Marian Anderson at the Essex House. "I've never been invited by the D. A. R. either—and I've been in public life for 35 years" . . . "So you're John Gunther," Jimmy Durante greets the author of "Inside Europe," at the Versailles. "Two years ago, at the Savoy in London, you called me—but every time I answered the phone you hung up" . . . "They gave me the wrong Mr. Durante each time," Gunther explains. "I was trying to reach a friend of mine who flew in from Moscow—Walter Duranty."

12 P. M.: "Thurman Arnold, Assistant United States Attorney General, is all set to return to his teaching post at Yale," a Washington official states at Tony's. "His job already has been offered to another person" . . . "Joseph Littau, conductor of the WYNC concert orchestra, will resign this week," a band leader declares at Fefe's Monte Carlo. "Littau will become the official conductor for the World's Fair Symphony Orchestra" . . . "Yes, I'm going to visit my daughter, who has a job in Hollywood," the Ranee of Sarawak confesses at the Tavern. "No, I won't accept any acting jobs. But if I did—there'd at least be one good actress in the family."

1 A. M.: "We had a dance-trio here named the Mistecos," the manager relates at the Havana-Madrid. "They got homesick for Mexico, returned there, and worked at the Teatro Lirico. After a few days, the Mexican Government assigned them to work in the new show, 'Mexicana,' which opens on Broadway this week" . . . "Milton Berle," a producer reports at the Swing Club, "has been hired to headline the new show at the International Casino" . . . "There's a great story in this," a reporter advises at Bert Frohman's. "Calixti, former Commander of the Haitian Army, went into voluntary exile. He's now living at the Harlem Y. M. C. A."

2 A. M.: "Amen subpenaed an Assistant District Attorney, regarding a $700 item in his bank account," a politicai leader informs at the Chateau Moderne, "and he couldn't explain it to the Grand Jury. Then he was recalled, and said he remembered—it was a $700 loan, borrowed from his deceased brother. He'll be indicted this week" . . . "Lord Dalhousie, on whose estate in Scotland J. P. Morgan and Bernard Baruch do their grouse-hunting, just returned to London, to make his second speech before the House of Lords," a colleague relates at El Morocco. "His first speech was on the topic 'The Super-Abundance of Deer in Scotland'" . . . "This was unprecedented," a jurist reveals at the Paradise. "Last Wednesday, the Appellate Division judges visited Station WNYC, and listened to recordings, in connection with a case."

3 A. M.: "So I told Dali, the surrealist painter, that I didn't like his portrait, showing a woman with her head cut off," a socialite confides at the Persian Room. "He said he'd explain it. "Now, you a woman, often have complained of a splitting headache. Well' said Dali . . . "Well, what? I asked him . . . 'Well,' he replied, pointing to his portrait, 'that's it'" . . . "The next big fight in the Democratic ranks," a publicist declares at La Cava, "will be in Nassau County." . . . "I'm going to Hollywood next month, to play the Ray Bolger role in 'On Your Toes,'" Eddie Albert reports at the Famous Door. "I've never danced before, and I'm taking lessons now."

4 A. M.: "Yes, I met Diego Rivera in Mexico," William Saroyan, author of "My Heart's in the Highlands," relates at the 18 Club, "But wotthehell—Rivera is there, so are his paintings, I'm up here, so is my play—we're all observers. Once I met Sibelius, the composer, and asked him complex questions. He kept saying only 'Dring more Scotch.' I guess I irritated him" . . . "What! That columnist lives at a hotel here?" Dorothy Parker asks at the Kit Kat. "From the way he writes I thought he lived at the Taj Mahal" . . . At the Taj Mahal," Paul Streger reminds, "they don't give press rates" . . . "As a press stunt," an agent informs at Jimmy Kelly's, "Bob Burns has been asked to name his expected baby Franklin or Eleanor. He wouldn't go for it."

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., April 18.—The Omaha municipal budget for the world premiere of "Union Pacific," April 27 to 29, has been upped from $50,000 to $200,000 to be sure the city gets the biggest splash. William Jeffers, president of Union Pacific, has made plans for 75,000 visitors. The picture will be shown in three theaters simultaneously. And they're bidding $30 apiece for the tickets.

HOPPER

I've been invited to go along and am hoping I won't get the same reception I had the last time I played Omaha. They gave me a tornado. But with the DeMille luck, nature just might turn on another one.

Willie Wyler's colored boy walked in during dinner the other night saying, "Well, boss I'se afraid I got to leave you."

"But why, after five years?"

"I'se just got to go off to war."

"But we're not in a war."

"Well, what do you call that thing Mussolini's doing to all my friends down in Alabam?"

My son, De Wolf, brought home this story from "Light Horse Harry" where he's working with Bert Wheeler and screwball Marie Wilson. A group of actors were discussing the possibility of concentration camps in America. "Well," chirped up Marie, 'Hollywood needn't worry. They've never found anybody here who could concentrate!'

Bruce Manning insists that Hitler got his idea for the swastika flag from the National Biscuit Co.

Speaking about the Nazi gang, managers of Madison Square Garden say there's no truth to the report that Warner can't rent it for the opening of the spy picture. That idea came from the Bund. But don't let anyone scare you away from seeing that one.

You may have noticed that Joan Crawford is releasing records of her songs. I understand the story behind that is that they were all recorded for "Ice Follies," and, not good enough for the picture, were snipped out. But evidently Joan thinks they're good enough for the public.

Before Paulette Goddard started in "The Cat and the Canary," she made wardrobe tests of 25 costumes, none suited, all bored Paulette. She found a little $15 model belonging to her mother at home, and that's what she's wearing in the picture. The test cost the studio $2,000.

You may have heard of Jack Barrymore's blackboard trouble in pictures. You know, when he can't remember his lines, they hold the blackboard with 'em on, for him to look at! Well, bless me, he's having the same difficulty remembering his lines on the stage. Has a prompter standing in the wings who shouts the line to him. If Jack doesn't get it, he says, "Louder, please. I can't hear it," and the audience roars. So they've left it in as the best gag in the show. Long Live King Barrymore!

Broadway used to call Jed Harris the boy wonder. Some years ago Hollywood thought so, too. Until he wanted stars and moon, with the sun thrown in, for one picture. But now he's done "Our Town" which got the Pulitzer prize and is a play you can't afford to miss. So both Hollywood and Jed are angling for a picture deal. This time he may make it. Frank Craven, star of "Our Town" is about to sign a movie contract, too.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, April 18.—Time out for young Douglas Fairbanks to buy a ruby engagement ring for Mrs. Mary Lee Hartford, his bride-to-be, and the plain gold band with which they will be wed. I say time out because Doug, jr., walked right out of Universal as soon as he finished "The Sun Never Sets" and right into "Ruler of the Sea" at Paramount. His honeymoon will be spent at Catalina, at the Isthmus, where exteriors for this sea epic will be shot by Frank Lloyd.

LOUELLA PARSONS

The very first wedding present young Doug received was a new, three-year-contract from Harry Edington's famous productions. "Atlantic Cable" will be his first and, incidentally, the first that Edington, erstwhile agent, will make for Universal. Just as soon as the young Fairbankses are wed and feted by their families on Saturday, they will head for Catalina.

Saw the very personable John Wayne in the crowd at the Louis-Roper bout and that reminded me of Republic's promise to do right by the young actor who achieved recognition in "Stage Coach." Today I made inquiries and was told that "David Cook of the Rockies," a novel by Edwin V. Westrate and William R. Collier, had been bought for John and will be made under the working title of "Colorado." David Cook, known as "the Pinkerton of the Rockies," made a reputation by protecting convoys of wagon supplies during the Civil War. Republic, who has stepped out of the quickie class, is spending some real money on this one as a follow up to "Man of Conquest" which has received glowing reviews.

Lots of whispering on the Warner lot over "Grapes of Wrath," John Steinbeck's new and interesting novel. If it's possible to film it, Jack Warner will plank down $25,000 in cash for the screen rights. He wants it four Paul Muni and it is dramatic and different enough to intrigue even the erudite Paul, who is very choosey about his movies (that's why he makes good pictures). The Steinbeck story is that of a migrating Oklahoma farming family who make the long trek to California to find a plot of ground that they can call their own. It's stark tragedy and pitiful but so well written.

Three new faces within a week in important movies is a record even for Hollywood, where the search for fresh boxoffice bait is on hot and heavy. Take Helen Gilbert, the pretty blonde cellist who played Jeanette MacDonald's songs. She was taken out of the studio orchestra and put into the romantic lead in "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever." A few years ago I don't care how pretty a girl was she wasn't started off in a leading role. She goes into "Hotel for Women." Then, last but not least, there's Brenda Joyce, born Lebuc, who gets the prize of Fern in "The Rains Came."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mary Brian and Nino Martini an unexpected twosome at the La Maze; Jean Chatburn Orsatti flew in from Reno today all divorced from her agent husband; Valerie Whiting and Antonio Moreno have taken up where they left off a few weeks ago; that was Virginia Langdon with Frank Parker at Victor Hugos; the Jack Bennys, Gracie Allen, George Burns, Joseph Schenck, the Charlie Feldmans, the Bob Hopes and many others went from the fights to Grace Hayes Lodge, where there was impromptu acting by the customers; J. Ross Clarke 3d with a new girl friend at Neville Fleeson's; Mandalay until the wee sma' hours; Sue Vidor, bride of a few months, with her bridegroom, Earl Armstrong, celebrating at the Ball.

The Adolph Zukors sailed Saturday and are due on the coast later in the month; John Payne's birthday gift to Ann Shirley is a toy dachshund as big as a minute; the two violins Heifetz uses in "Music School" are insured for $325,000 and $150,000; Kitty Carlisle and Charles Grayson were an attentive twosome at the Beverly Derby; Clarence Brown's secretary said she hadn't focused her eyes on the fight when the battle was over; there will be no movies made on the life of Philip Musica because of his family's threatened suit; Gregory Ratoff is entertaining a few of his friends at a party Thursday night.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

What is the strange appeal that "Wuthering Heights" holds for women?...

Here is a picture strangely different from all others! A picture that holds a compelling fascination . . . an all but fearful attraction . . . for women!

Ask any woman who sees it . . . just what in this brooding yet glorious love story swept her emotions, tore her heart?

Is it because "Wuthering Heights" was written by a woman who poured out all the fierce repressions of a live young girl held fast in the net of Victorian manners?

Is it because Merle Oberon as Cathy is the very incarnation of a woman who must fight against herself to conquer a love beyond reason, beyond hope?

Is it because somewhere deep in the heart of every woman lies an attraction for a man like Heathcliff . . . brooding, brutal, handsome, commanding?

All I know . . . is this! That I sat in the theatre and felt myself pulled straight into another world of emotions as the stirring scenes of "Wuthering Heights" held my eyes and my heart! And as I left the theatre I sensed that other women, too, had felt as I had . . . had been in the presence of something that held them with a hypnotic and almost terrible interest.

I know why Eleanor Roosevelt, in her "My Day" column, said:

"It will be hard for anyone seeing this picture not to lose themselves."

And I think I understand why columnist Hedda Hopper said:

"What a man! When Olivier says: 'Come here, you're mine,' how gladly you'd go. And even suffer a third-degree burn and love it, when he puts his hand on your arm."

Bonura's 3-Run Homer Helps Giants Win

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Philadelphia, April 18.—If you can unscramble it, here's low-down on the Kentucky Derby in the race-track jargon of Clocker Bob Massey, who has been unhorsing the King's English for nigh onto 50 years now. Hist: "Looks like a pipe for the Horning thing. Might take the track and never let go of it. I'm tossing out the Irishman's ticket. None of them Sweeps like the distance and I don't figure he'll have the nerve to send him to the post. They always chuck it. Come slop, that thing out of the Flamingo can be dangerous. He's a solid sort. I ain't worried about that brown out of Schaefer's barn."

POVICH

Without mentioning the name of a horse, Massey made himself perfectly clear to horsemen in the picturesque language of the race track. The clockers and stablemen don't go in much for names. With a new crop of steeds coming along every year, it's too much bother. If a horse can be identified by its name, why that seems preferable.

In plain English, what Massey was saying when he said it should be a pipe for the Horning thing, was that the Derby looked like a cinch for Porter's Mite, trained by Tom Horning, and never letting go of the track means, in his language, never letting go of the lead.

Chesapeake Will Give Line on Derby

In "tossing out the Irishman's ticket," Massey was saying he was more than mildly contemptuous of the chances of El Chico, the pre-derby favorite. The Irishman in the case is Matt Brady. Massey goes far back for a reason when he says "None of them Sweeps likes the distance." The grandmother of El Chico happens to be a mare by Sweep, which is cause enough for the fellow to dislike the favorite's chances over the mile and a quarter of the Derby. That kind "chucks it."

And "that thing out of the Flamingo" Massey was talking about can be easily identified as Technician, which won the $30,000 Flamingo at Hialeah during the winter. Until he wins another big stake he will forever be known to Massey and his pals as that thing out of the Flamingo. Slop, of course, is mud, and the brown out of Schaefer's barn is, of course, Lou Schaefer's highly respected Challedon.

Down at Havre de Grace they'll tell you much more about the May 6 Kentucky Derby after the running of the $15,000 Chesapeake Stakes on Saturday. That will be the big test for a sizable contingent of the Derby entries, and on two occasions the Chesapeake winners have followed up with Derby victories.

Whiskery tacked a Derby triumph onto his Chesapeake score back in 1927 and 10 years later War Admiral came along to score the same important double. The fact that a pair of "W" horses turned the trick holds out no hope for hunch players, however, as there isn't a steed entered in the Derby whose name begins with that letter.

The Chesapeake is over a mile and a sixteenth, three-sixteenths shorter than the Derby, but it will be the first distance-running test for the star 2-year-olds of last season. And the horse that wins it will be considerable horse because already here on the grounds pointing for the stake are such as Challedon, Porter's Mite, Volitant, Sun Lover and Day Off.

Reason for Massey's Fondness for Porter's Mite

There's reason for Massey's fondness for Porter's Mite. The Porter colt won the Belmont Futurity, prize 2-year-old stake of last year, and his failure in the Santa Anita Derby is easily discounted. Porter's Mite didn't like the hard track on the coast and the handlers frankly admitted it before they sent him to the post. But back in the East, he may be a potent package.

The Millsdale Stable's Sun Lover is the great unknown of the Chesapeake field, and may be the medium of the moon-shooters' betting. Sun Lover comes up to the Chesapeake as an also ran in the New Orleans Derby, but two days before the New Orleans race he broke the track record for a mile and an eighth in a workout with an exercise boy up. Sun Lover left his derby race on the track that afternoon. He'll be better handled for the Chesapeake.

The nag that may go to the post as a favorite in Saturday's Chesapeake is George H. Bull's Volitant, which will be prepping for the Preakness inasmuch as the stable is passing up the Derby. Don Meade will be astride Volitant, which won't hurt his chances.

Meade will be astride Volitant despite the fact that at this time he is still very much suspended for life on the Maryland tracks. But by Saturday Meade will be in good standing in Maryland. On Friday he will apply for reinstatement and the Maryland racing commission, following the lead of the New York Jockey Club, will tell him have care, be a good boy in the future, and all will be forgiven.

As Bob Massey would say it, "Meade will get well" when the commissioner hears his case.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, April 18.—Farmer Considine's baseball almanac:

April—This is the ideal month to trim wisteria and Phil Wrigley . . . Opening games at various 77-B ballyards will be played in blinding rainstorms, but thereafter at the slightest hint of moisture—including a locker boy's sneeze—games will be postponed on account of wet grounds and a double-header will be played the following Sunday . . . Fanciers of morning glories will be faced with the customary blight for toward the end of April all the morning glories who bloomed in spring training camps will wither under the heat of curve ball pitching.

CONSIDINE

May—Open season on rainbow trout and Tom Yawkey . . . Messrs. Connie Mack and Clark Griffith are requested to quit shoving . . . On May 6 Buck Newsom, of the Browns, will pitch a 1-hit game against Detroit and lose it, 7-4 . . . U. S. immigration authorities will open quiet investigation of Washington Senators . . . Dodgers will drop their "build for 1940" plans and begin building for 1941.

June—Nine obituaries on Lou Gehrig will appear on June 4, after he goes up to the plate "19 for 0." . . . On June 5 Lou will hit four doubles, a triple and a homer, and play his 2,165th consecutive game . . . Cleveland and Pirates will take 9½-game leads in the two leagues.

JULY—Washington Nationals deported back to Cuba on eve of July 4 double-header . . . Earl Averill hitting .798, Johnny Rizzo .943 and Jeff Heath 1.024 . . . Cleveland and Pittsburgh begin building bleacher seats for world series . . . Newsom pitches no-hit game against the Yankees, loses 14-2 on walks, balks, errors, hit batsmen, catcher's balks, running out of baseline, glove-thrown-at-ball decision, etc . . . Dodgers start building for 1942 . . . Time to prune roses, and, if possible, the players' salaries . . . 24,319,867 fans demand right to vote for players they want to see in the all-star game . . . Owners reject appeal . . . Fans so sore that more than 100 of the 24,319,867 boycott the game.

AUGUST—Judge Landis, upset over way his pictures at the All Star game came out, declares Cyril C. Slapnicka a free agent . . . Beware of Japanese beetle and a newspaper series on "My Life and Letters," by Bobby Feller . . . Indians and Pirates hit three-game losing streaks, reducing league leads to 17¾ games . . . Oscar Vitt stoned in Cleveland hotel lobby and replaced by Babe Herman . . . Pie Traynor given one more chance, after severe reprimand . . . To make some of his more elderly players feel more at home, Larry MacPhail replaces electric floodlights with kerosene lamps.

SEPTEMBER—A team called the Yankees says "boo!" and takes a 29-game lead in A. L.—Allen comes down with sore arm . . . Feller arrested by truant officer . . . With Grover Whalen as the new president, Dodgers begin building for the world of tomorrow . . . Six N. L. clubs, tied, back cautiously toward pennant . . . Dizzy Dean wins fourth game of season . . . Photo of the N. L. finish shows the first triple dead-heat in the 100 years of baseball history . . . Giants, Cubs and Reds form an all-star team to meet the Yankees in series . . . Plan widely hailed as a long needed method of stopping the Yankee monopoly.

25,496 See Dodgers Get 7-to-3 Defeat

Zeke Also Hits Two Singles; Bill Jurges, Frank Demaree Each Bat in One Run

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn April 18.—The batting power imported by the New York Giants over the winter, headed by Zeke (Bananas) Bonura, the former American League "playboy," got off to a flying start today in downing the Dodgers, 7 to 3, in the local big league opener.

Before a crowd of 25,496 who sat through threatening weather and occasional raindrops, Bonura belted a three-run homer and two singles, while Bill Jurges and Frank Demaree, received in trade from the Cubs, contributed a run-batted in each to the cause.

This dynamiting display was part of a 13-hit barrage Bill Terry's terriers fired at three hurlers to support the nine-hit pitching of Harry Gumbert, who repeated his 1938 opening day victory over the Dodgers. Dolph Camilli, the Dodgers' slugging first-sacker, tagged him for a homer in the seventh.

The game was delayed several minutes between halves of the third inning when Umpire Dolly Stark wrenched his right knee. He had to retire from the game and Bill Stewart got behind the mask and chest protector to call balls and strikes, leaving Babe Pinelli to handle all decisions on the basepaths.

The Dodgers, starting off in typical daffiness fashion, gave the Giants a run without a hit in the second inning to ruin some otherwise pretty fair elbowing by Rookie Russ Evans. This came about on two walks, the first of two errors by Player-Manager Lippy Leo Durocher, and Jurges' fly. The Dodgers came right back in their half to tie it up on two singles and an infield grounder.

That, however, was the last time Brooklyn was in the ball game. For, after Jo Jo Moore singled and Mel Ott doubled in the third, Bonura belted his four-bagger into the leftfield stands.

Four Major League Games Attract 118,923 Fans

By the Associated Press.

Even without its biggest drawing card, the New York Yankees, major league baseball attracted a total of 118,923 fans to the four games that got by the weather man on the two-day opening program.

The Yanks were rained out in Washington Monday and at home Tuesday, thereby keeping an expected 90,000 fans from passing through the turnstiles. With the Yanks, Athletics and St. Louis Browns in the American League and the Chicago Cubs in the National slated to open Wednesday, it is possible the total first-game attendance will go over the 200,000 mark, thereby surpassing the 1938 figure of 193,055.

Tapp, D. C. Boy, Wins A. A. U. Bout

Philadelphia, April 18 (AP).—Willie Tapp, 118-pounder from Washington, provided one of the outstanding upsets in first round matches of the National Junior A. A. U. boxing tournament here today when he defeated Johnny Beaton, Trenton, N. J.

In scoring a decision over his New Jersey opponent Tapp dealt the lad his ninth setback in more than a 150 bouts.

Lightweight Bertram France of Washington, was defeated by Johnny Noce, of Philadelphia, while Gilbert Mayo, Alexandria 135-pounder, lost to Frank Dobinson, of Oil City, Pa.

Nats Will Try Again Today To Open Baseball Season

DeShong Scheduled to Pitch Against A's In Philadelphia; Series Cut to 2 Games

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 18.—Determined to open their 1939 campaign, the Nats will have another try at it tomorrow with the kind permission of the weather man who has been something of a nuisance to the baseball scene the past two days.

Balked by a steady rain in Washington on Monday, and washed out by a drizzle here this afternoon, the Nats will attempt to play a game of ball against the Athletics at Shibe Park tomorrow afternoon.

As they boarded a train in Washington en route here this morning, the Nats suddenly learned that there would be no game today with Philadelphia reporting rain. Off the train climbed Clark Griffith, who will board another tomorrow. The athletes, with their uniform trunks already in the baggage car, were ordered to move on to Philadelphia despite the postponement.

Making no change in his pitching plans, Manager Bucky Harris tonight announced that Jimmy DeShong was still his choice as the opening-game pitcher.

If they play a ball game tomorrow, the Nats will face the knuckle ball pitching of George Caster, a two-year veteran of Connie Mack's staff. Mack originally named Buck Ross as his opening game pitcher, but suddenly switched his nomination to Caster, who in the past has

Myers to Leave Hospital Today

Cincinnati, April 18 (AP).—Billy Myers, Cincinnati Reds' shortstop who suffered head injuries when struck by a thrown ball on Monday's opening game with the Pirates, will return to his team by the week-end, his physician said today.

Dr. Reed Shank said X-ray examination disclosed only a slight concussion. Myers, who was allowed out of bed this afternoon, will leave the hospital tomorrow.

Whether he joins the Reds in Chicago is problematical, Dr. Shank said, adding "he should be able to play by Thursday, but it's up to him."

Griffith to Speak At Club Meeting

Clark C. Griffith, owner of the Washington Nationals, will speak tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. at a meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton Hotel in commemoration of the centennial of baseball. Walter Johnson and Sammy Rice, both prominent on the local baseball scene of yesterday, will also attend. President Edmund O. Carl will preside.

High School Lad Wins Every Event In Track Meet

Unadilla, Nebr., April 18 (AP).—High School Coach G. A. Bruce thinks he has a "pretty good" track prospect in Norman Masters. He won every event in a freshman class meet.

Besides the mile which he ran in less than five minutes, young Masters breezed through without extending himself to win the two dashes, quarter mile, half mile, broad jump and high jumps, shot put, discuss and pole vault.

Pawson Choice In Grind Today

Boston, April 18.—Ideal weather conditions appeared all that was necessary for the finest field in the 43 years history of the famous Boston A. A. marathon to force the winner to break the record of 2:31:01 3-5 tomorrow over the hilly course from Hopkinton to Boston.

With a forecast of mild temperatures and a light wind, the chances of Leslie Pawson, the Pawtucket, R. I., alderman, were raised a few notches tonight over the other five favorites in the field of 215, which includes five former winners, the first 12 of the 1938 finishers and a threatening Canadian delegation of 29 experienced plodders.

Brooklyn Sends Reiser to Farm

Brooklyn, April 18 (AP).—The Dodgers today sent Harold (Pete) Reiser, rookie sensation of the Florida spring campaigning, to their Elmira (N. Y.) farm in the Eastern League.

The Brooklyn club also announced the singing of George Jeffcoat, right-hand pitcher, to a one-year contract.

Reiser was taken to the spring camp by the Dodgers and proved his statement that he could "hit any right-hander" by batting over .400 during the exhibition season.

Cards' Rally In 7th Beats Pirates, 3-2

Gas House Gang Makes Blades' Managerial Debut a Success

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, April 18.—The St. Louis Cardinals made Ray Blades' major league managerial debut a happy occasion this afternoon by surging from behind in the old gas-house fashion to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 2, before an opening day crowd of 15,783.

Big Bob Weiland received credit for the triumph, although he left the game in the seventh for a pinch-hitter with the Buccaneers ahead, 2 to 0.

The Cards counted their runs in the seventh. Jimmy Brown coaxed a pass out of Bob Klinger, Gutteridge lucked a hit to the infield and Slaughter's single filled the bases.

Hitless until then, Joe Medwick uncorked a two-run single, Slaughter skipped to third and scored on Mize's short fly, which Rizzo returned poorly.

Carhart Re-elected Warrenton M.F.H.

Warrenton, April 18 (AP).—Amory S. Carhart was unanimously re-elected master of fox hounds of the half-century old Warrenton hunt here today.

Richard J. Kirkpatrick was re-elected honorary secretary at the annual meeting at North Wales Club and William B. Street was named honorary whip.

The officers reported an excellent season with the weather generally favorable for the three-times-a-week hunts.

Archibald Defeats Rodak To Take Title

Disputed Featherweight Crown Assumed by Rhode Island Boxer

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., April 18.—Joey Archibald, 25-year-old home town product, became the undisputed featherweight champion of the world tonight by beating Leo Rodak, veteran Chicago contender, in a close but none too exciting 15-round bout in the Rhode Island Auditorium here. Archibald weighed 123¾ and Rodak 125.

Archibald won the decision of Referee Tim Ferrick largely because he was the aggressor virtually throughout, landed the most punches and stood up under the punishment Rodak handed out in several spirited rallies.

The boys went into the fifteenth and final session on even terms. Little Archibald charged out with both fists flying like well oiled pistons to beat down the attack of the game Chicagoan and win the deciding round.

Mingled Cheers, Jeers

The score card showed seven rounds for Archibald, six for Rodak and two even.

Mingled cheers and jeers greeted the verdict. Rodak, who was a 5-6 choice in the betting because of his height, reach and crafty ring style had many supporters in the house who gave both Archibald and the referee the "Bronx" cheer when Ferrick raised the victor's hand.

Nate Lewis, manager of Rodak, told newspapermen Archibald hit low repeatedly and should have been penalized several rounds under the rules of the Rhode Island Athletic Commission.

Ferrick called one round (the eleventh) even because of fouls committed by both fighters.

Situation Cleared Up

The bout clears up the muddled featherweight situation. The division has been without a ruler since Henry Armstrong surrendered the title last year because of weight trouble.

Rodak, champion in Maryland, also was No. 1 contender of the National Boxing Association. Archibald was recognized as champion in New York State. Both bodies agreed to put their stamp of approval on tonight's winner.

Gov. William H. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island and Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, headed a gallery of 5,500 that turned out for the first championship fight ever held in Rhode Island. Promoter Manny Almeida estimated the gross receipts were only slightly more than $10,000.

Thomson to Play in All-Star Exhibition at Congressional

JIMMY THOMSON

Snead and Guldahl Paired Against Jimmy, Wiffy Cox

Wiffy Cox yesterday signed Jimmy Thomson as the fourth member of the all-star exhibition match at Congressional May 21, after a long distance telephone call to Atlanta.

Cox will pair with Thomson, long-distance king of the pro golfers, against Sammy Snead, leading money winner of last year, and the two-time National Open winner, Ralph Guldahl.

The match looms as one of the greatest shows ever put on here as Snead, Guldahl and Thomson are the names uppermost in the minds of every golf fan, and Cox's presence is a drawing card for the District golfers.

Guldahl has not played here since the last National Capital Open, while Thomson played here last year at Kenwood in a match that

Tigers Clinch Game In Third; Dykes Is Chased for Protest; Greenberg Stars

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 18.—Brilliant pitching by Tommy Bridges, 32-year-old right-hander, enabled the Detroit Tigers to open their American League schedule today with a 6-to-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox. A crowd of 47,000 braved the elements to witness the affair, shivering in a wind-whipped rain.

Bridges, who was troubled by an arm ailment early last season, allowed but seven hits and only in the seventh when the Sox scored did he permit a runner to get beyond first base. He did not walk a batter and struck out five.

The Tigers collected 12 hits off John Rigney and Bill Dietrich, both of whom had trouble with their control. Rigney pitched the first seven innings and gave up 11 hits and five runs. He walked six batters and hit another, while Dietrich issued three passes in the inning he worked.

Detroit scored two runs, enough to win, in the third inning when Hank Greenberg singled with the bases full, sending Barney McCosky and Fred Walker over the plate.

Chicago counted its lone tally in the seventh on Gerald Walker's single, a hit-and-run play, and Mike Kreevich's long fly.

In the Tiger half Detroit scored three runs with the aid of three scratch blows and line singles by Greenberg and Rudy York. Dietrich's wildness was responsible for the final Detroit run in the eighth.

Manager Jimmy Dykes, of the Sox, was chased by Umpire John Quinn for protesting the decision at first base on Bridges' hit off Rigney's shins in the seventh.

Eagles Play W. Maryland Nine Today

American University's nine travels to Westminster this afternoon to meet Western Maryland in the first of four games in six days scheduled for Staff Cassell's Eagles.

Saturday A. U. will engage Johns Hopkins at Baltimore in a game not on its original schedule; Monday the Eagles play Wilson Teachers on the latter's field, and on Tuesday they tackle Georgetown in a return game. The Eagles lost to Joe Judge's strong nine in their opener.

Moe Brown, versatile athlete who will captain both the football and basketball teams at A. U. next year, has been nominated by Coach Cassell for the starting pitching assignment against Western Maryland today. Should Brown need relief, it will be provided by Pete Sitnik, who has been placed in the outfield because of his batting power.

The American University tennis team will meet Georgetown on the courts tomorrow at the Hilltop.

School Wrestling To Begin Today

The gym of Anacostia High will be the grappling grounds of about 100 youthful wrestlers today and tomorrow, as the initial bouts of the fifth Annual Interscholastic Wrestling Tournament are run off. Open to all junior and senior high school boys, the tournament starts moving this afternoon at 3 o'clock and is continued at 7 p. m.

Winston Guest's Drudgery Wins Feature at Havre de Grace

Churns Way ThroughMud To Triumph

Ocean Roll Second And Infidox Third In Camera Finish; Double Pays $21.70

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 18.—Carrying 116 pounds, the high weight of the party, Drudgery, owned by Winston Guest, of polo fame, churned his way through deep mud to win the Mayfield Handicap, top event of a dreary day at the races. With "Moose" Peters in the saddle, Drudgery bounced along and did not give his opponents a chance to wear him down. Washington fans packed up the crumbs of second money when Ocean Roll, owned by John A. Manfuso, of the Capital City, headed the favorite, Infidox, out of second money via the camera.

Having stopped rather abruptly in his most recent start at Bowie, Drudgery was only a lukewarm proposition in the betting ring and he produced a $10.50 payoff for the faithful. A gathering of 8,000, augmented by the fact the Nats-Macks game was rained out in Philadelphia, installed Infidox as the favorite in the field of six going a half dozen furlongs.

The sun made a feeble attempt to penetrate the mist just before the card started, but the day became darker as the program progressed and the muddy track retained all its moisture.

Drudgery hopped to the front at the starting bell and it was "Kitty bar the door" from that point to the end. Ocean Roll might have been closer but Jockey Johnny Adams, who has not ridden a winner at the meeting, got in close quarters nearing the final turn and had to pull up.

Challamore, J. W. Y. Martin's son of Challenger II, won at the first asking, leaving eight Maryland-bred 2-year-olds in his wake as he splashed 4½ furlongs in the opening event. Howard Bruce's Ponemah gave the winner a stout struggle most of the way, but was a length and a half short of a dead heat at the end. Good Reception was third. It was a two-horse race between Challamore and Ponemah from the break, with Jockey Stevenson ending the head-and-head battle by applying the whip to the Challenger II colt in the final stages. The winner paid $4.90.

A short daily double of $21.70 was paid when another public choice scored in the second race. The Bomar Stable's Billy Bee, frequent stake entry last year, came out for his 1939 debut and came home two lengths in front of The Lake, with Odessa Lad third in a field of a dozen going 6 furlongs. Placed on the outside of the field because of bad post actions, Billy Bee pressed the pace and won easily when put to pressure in the last sixteenth. He paid $5.90.

Twice beaten at Bowie, Phara Belle found this track more to her liking and won at an $8 mutuel in the third race contested at 6 furlongs. General Mowlee, of the favored Wicks-Bruce entry, was second, with Banner Girl third. Nine 3-year-olds with claiming tags attached were in action. Phara Belle took command early, was headed by Banner Girl in the stretch and then came out nearing the finish line. Vinny Polk rode the A. C. C. Stable ally.

—At The Post

Havre de Grace, Md., April 18.

Dear Al:

W. L. Brann's Challedon gave the early arrivals yesterday a peek at him in a workout over the muddy track. The son of Challenger II broke in front of the stand and soon left Challephen, his stablemate, far in the rear. The Derby hope was clocked for a mile in 1:44 3-5, being taken up during the final eighth. He appeared in excellent condition and took to the mud in a manner that boosts his stock on an off track for either the Derby or the Preakness. Challedon will go postward Saturday in the $15,000 added Chesapeake Stakes. Porter's Mite was out earlier in the day, going three-eighths in 0:37 3-5 before he was waved down. Golden Clown worked a half in 0:50 3-5. This colt is a lot better than that race last Saturday suggests and is well worth remembering. He is eligible for the Derby. P. O. Markey, half owner of the Bomar Stable, will visit this track Saturday. To Mac—Walter Haight didn't bet on High Hedge in either of those Bowie victories. I'll give you the line-up of Elliott horses in the next few days. To K. L. D.—The best you get is the worst of it. My advice is to throw away all losing tickets. They only serve as reminders. To B. D.—Billy Kelly ran second in the 1919 Derby won by Sir Barton. On Watch was third to Paul Jones in 1920. Don't hesitate when you have Derby questions. Let's have them. El Chico, Eight Thirty, Technician, Impound, Day Off and Ciencia are supplementary entries in the Preakness. The Derby doesn't have this means of entering horses. When the list closes for the Derby it remains closed. To Bessie—The old-timers believe that Havre de Grace's track is faster when the tide is out and slower when the tide is in. However, the oval is many feet above the adjacent Susquehanna River and the tide thing is a fallacy.

BILL.

First race—Apprehend, in the clever hands of Guy Bedwell, indicates a return to form from his Bowie races. He is well placed in this event and should win. Waugh Pop couldn't threaten when made favorite over a similar field at Bowie but may redeem his poor showing today. Chain Wick drops down after dull races last year.

Second race—Rumba Gus was much the best of his field when he won the Kindergarten Stakes at Bowie and stands out as the best bet of the day with this mediocre field. Miss Maker was an easy winner over a shifty field of juveniles at Bowie and figures next best. Air Stream should improve after his fourth to Cockerel opening day.

Third race—Mystery Miss was unextended when she whipped a similar field of 3-year-olds by four lengths at Bowie in the mud. If she runs back to that heat she should win this by like margin. Grand Pageant ran a good race behind Nicholas S. and has the edge over the others. Cousing raced well last year.

Fourth race—Light Chatter was beaten a head by Dizzy Dame at Bowie after winning her previous start and will be on edge for her best effort. This one moves up on muddy track. Paisey Begone was successful in Florida and gets a high rating. Sun Victor will be dangerous if he shows early foot.

Fifth race—Ace Call ran over the top of a classy field of 3-year-olds opening day and is real good right now. Should have no trouble here if he likes the track. Hanis has lots of class but recent races at Santa Anita have been poor. Can win it on best effort. Trailer has a money chance if fit.

Sixth race—Gerald was used up setting the pace for Hypocrite in his last heat. This one has plenty of speed, likes the track conditions, and should be ready for his best. Piccolo raced Hypocrite to a head his only start here and may prove hard to beat. Irish Moon was second to High Hedge at Bowie and must be considered.

Seventh race—Macsloud will like the muddy going and appears to be back in form after his third to better grade platers at Bowie. Catamar was fourth to Hypocrite opening day and is dropping down in this event. He gets a good figure. Bewitched can better a poor recent effort behind Invermark.

Best bet—Rumba Gus.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALLAMORE, $4.90, $3.90, $3.00; PONEMAH, $3.30, $3.30; GOOD RECEPTION, $3.40.

CHALLAMORE, off alertly and hard ridden from start, withstood repeated challenges of PONEMAH and drew clear after being shaken up at sixteenth pole. PONEMAH forced pace on outside of leader and closed willingly under pressure. GOOD RECEPTION dropped back soon after break, closed some ground to midstretch and weakened. CORSICA tired badly in final stages. The others were never prominent.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place same. Went to post 3:01. Off 3:09. Winner, Bomar Stable's ch. h. or br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILLY BEE, $5.90, $4.70, $4.20; THE LAKE, $18.60, $10.70; ODESSA LAD, $6.80.

BILLY BEE, fractious at post and started from outside stalls, was keen forward factor on outside from start, responded to strong handling to take command inside eighth pole and won easily. THE LAKE was sent to front under hustling tactics in evening furlong and was being taken up at end when beaten. ODESSA LAD was forced to race on inside throughout and weakened in final eighth. TRICKWICK, away slowly, gained steadily throughout the running. SACHEM improved position steadily to show good effort. MANEMOND could not keep up. VOTE BOY went wide. LULA KHAYYAM flashed early speed.

Daily Double, Challamore and Billy Bee, Paid $21.70.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:38. Off 2:39½. Winner, A. C. C. Stable's b. f. †W. P. Wicks—H. Bruce entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PHARA BELLE, $8.60, $4.80, $3.00; GENERAL MOWLEE (entry), $4.20, $2.80; BANNER GIRL, $3.80.

PHARA BELLE had speed to assume short lead going to turn, shook off MADFOOT, was rated until challenged by BANNER GIRL in midstretch and responded to pressure to hold GENERAL MOWLEE safe. GENERAL MOWLEE could not keep up in early running and closed with good energy. BANNER GIRL was hard ridden, came to inside to gain lead between calls, but was weakening at end. GREEDAN went evenly. MODERN AGE had speed in spots. MADFOOT was through early.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:13. Off 4:13. Winner, Winston Guest's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DRUDGERY, $10.50, $5.60, $4.50; OCEAN ROLL, $5.10, $3.70; INFIDOX, $3.30.

DRUDGERY, first away, set good pace and was not seriously threatened at any stage while winning easily. OCEAN ROLL raced in close quarters along rail to turn, was taken up when ridden close by HIGH HEDGE on swing to stretch, saved ground thereafter and closed gamely under intermittent punishment. INFIDOX was hard ridden throughout. DRIFT ALONG was slow to begin and failed to be serious factor. HIGH HEDGE stopped badly. CACODEMON could not keep up.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:40. Off 4:43. Winner, H. Western Nine Defeats Anacostia, 9 to 2, Behind Nance

'Lefty' Hurls Six-Hit Ball For Winners

Southpaw Fans 13, But 4 Unearned Tallies Are Big Factor in Victory

By Bill Burnett.

Anacostia and Western High baseball teams began their final week's grind yesterday in preparation for the opening of the interhigh series Friday, the Anacostians booting away a 9-2 decision in a game played in ankle-deep mud at Fairlawn.

Errors, bases on balls and several freakish breaks whipped the Indians, as well as the six-hit ball pitched by Western's brilliant lefthander, Carmel Nance. Three pitchers were used by Anacostia, and between them they were able to match Nance's record, at least as far as base hits were concerned.

The break and error that might have been blamed for or credited with the victory occurred in the first half of the initial inning. They accounted for four Western runs and caused a disastrous case of jitters on Anacostia's part.

Withers Walked

Joe Withers, Raider leftfielder and second man at the plate, reached base with Jack Burrough's first base on balls, and Byron Trummell shoved him up a notch on a bingle that Joe Soresi juggled. Hal Mitchell, Western's shortstop, followed Trummell and hit a clean single over Soresi's head. Another single off the bat of Larkin Sarbacher, Western's ace batsman, followed, and a few minutes later when Sarbacher attempted to steal second, Catcher Joe Hayes' heave bounced off his shoulder and Sarbacher and Mitchell scored.

For the next four innings Anacostia held the Raiders scoreless, though the first Indian run didn't come in until the third. That solitary score was the result of consecutive singles by Burroughs and Johnny Placos—and a long fly by Leukhardt.

Nance's slow, easy windup and efficient slants sent most of his opponents to the bench with the third strike against them or after an ineffective pop into the infield. Two more singles, this time by Bob Gordon and Hayes, gave Anacostia its second run in the eighth. Nance, besides the scarcity of hits off him, turned in a record of 13 strikeouts over the nine innings, and allowed only four walks.

Western scored single runs in the sixth and eighth, and in the ninth got to Substitute George Dyer for three more tours of the bases. Outstanding of Anacostia's hurlers was Art Faircloth, whose four-inning work, between the fifth and eighth innings, gave Western a single hit, six strikeouts and only two bases on balls.

'Low' Grades Hit Anacostia Nine

Forced to meet the defending interhigh champions, Eastern, in the first game of the series Friday, Anacostia High will depend almost entirley upon second stringers. Scholastic marks released recently retired Coach Roland Lund's whole first-string infield to the bench for six weeks. The casualties were Farr, catcher; Scott, first base; McLaughlin, second; Smith, third, and Seaman, shortstop.

Irish War Veterans Play Practice Game

The Irish War Veterans, newcomers into Washington softball circles, will play a practice game tomorrow evening at Fairlawn with Carley's Tavern. The "Irish" will open the Sunday Morning League season Sunday at Gonzaga Field with American Linen Service. They desire twilight games for April 27, May 4 and 11, with teams having grounds. Call Morris Bealle, National 5045, during the day, Georgia 5683 at night.

Track Major Sport At G. W. Next Year

Track, as well as baseball, will be added to the list of major sports at George Washington University next season, Max Farrington, director of athletics, announced yesterday. This will increase to four the number of major sports at the G street school. Tennis will remain a minor sport, Farrington said.

Devitt Prep, Bethesda Play 8-8 Deadlock

Suburban Pitcher Ties Game With Triple With 3 On

In a hitting spree that often took on aspects of a track meet, the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School and Devitt Prep yesterday played a ten-inning deadlock at Garrett Park, Md., that ended 8-8 when the game was called on account of darkness.

Trailing, 8-5, in the first half of the eighth inning, Bethesda was put back in the game when Granville Custer, pitcher, stepped to the plate with two men out and the bases full and slammed out a three-base hit to tie the game.

Both nines went scoreless in the ninth and tenth innings, and officials, influenced by the poor light and the soggy field, called the game.

Devitt, getting 15 hits off Custer, scored in every inning until the fatal eighth. Coppla, catcher, led the hitting for Devitt, getting four hits out of six times at bat, including a triple and a two-base hit. Custer led the Bethesda batsmen with four hits out of five times at the plate. Stevens, pitching for Devitt, gave up 12 hits.

Bethesda High will play Eastern High School today at 3:30 p. m. on the Eastern diamond.

Call Radio Cagers Win Merrick League

Flailing fists climaxed the Merrick basketball league last night as Call Radio cagers defeated the Northeast Boys Club, 34-31, in a hard-fought contest at Merrick Gym, Sixth and C streets northeast.

Lead changed back and forth several times during the game, and at the final whistle players mixed it up freely until officials stepped in. The Call players will receive gold basketballs. Chick DiGiulian led the winners, scoring 10 points, while Lombardy, with 8 points, was high man for the losers.

Redskins Deny Ticket 'Sellout'

Upset lest the cash customers put credence in a rumor that no more season tickets for the Redskin's 1939 campaign are available, officials of the football aggregation yesterday drafted a strong protest, saying, in effect, "Tain't so." There are about 15,000 left, it was said. Approximately 4,000 have been sold so far this year, as compared with 3,400 during the entire advance sale period last year.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

We were recently in a restaurant that employs ladies to wait on the customers, and we overheard a thick-necked, well-dressed fellow at the next table directing what we deemed somewhat familiar remarks to the lady attending him.

RUNYON

He spoke in a jocose tone and with a big grin on his broad map and he had the outward aspect of a jolly chap whom dogs and little children would trust. Still, we thought his remarks to the lady were mighty familiar and even a little ribald.

We rather took it for granted that the lady knew the customer, though it struck us that the smile with which she greeted his remarks was weak and her responses feeble, and that she seemed in a hurry to get away from him, so when he finally picked up his check and left with a parting crack at her that we felt transcended the bounds of good taste, to say the least, we called her to our table.

"Is that fellow a friend of yours," we inquired.

"No," she said. "I never saw him but once or twice before. Why?"

"Well," we said, "his conversation with you was so personal, we thought you must be on good terms with him. Didn't you feel like hittting him on the head with a plate?"

"With a plate?" she said. "No, not with a plate. With a bottle of ketchup. Something that would be sure to crack his skull. Something that would hurt him so bad he would never again open his mouth to a person in my position."

Line of Business

"Well, why didn't you?" we asked, "His chit-chat was really insulting, now that we think it over."

"I'll tell you why I didn't," the lady said. "It was because I need this job. I've got a sick mother to take care of, and a sister to put through school, and if I had obeyed my normal impulse and resented that fellow's remarks, I would have been fired.

"I wouldn't have had to hit him with anything to get fired, either," she continued hotly. "All I would have had to do was ask him not to be so fresh. He would have gone right to the boss and reported me as discourteous and that would have finished me here."

"But you could have told the boss what he said," we suggested. "The boss wouldn't fire you if he thought you were justified, would he?"

"Yes, he would," she said shortly. "He knows he can get all the waitresses he wants, but he can't get all the customers he wants, and he would figure it was easier to sacrifice me than the customer. Besides, that fellow would have said he was only kidding with me, and in a job like this you are supposed to take what comes under the head of kidding, no matter how insulting it is to you."

Well, we had quite a long talk with that lady, business being a little slack at the time in the restaurant, and she said we would not believe what a waitress had to endure in the way of small talk from some customers. She said these customers seemed to think that just because a lady was in a waitress uniform they had a license to go as far as they liked with her by innuendo and open nastiness.

She said mature fellows and even married men were much worse that way than the kids. She said the kids could be easily repressed, but that the older chaps were persistent as well as experienced and vile. She said they always covered their remarks with a hail-fellow manner, like that thick-necked chap, to make it more difficult for the lady to take offense and to provide that "kidding" alibi in case she did.

She said the only way for a sensitive lady to handle that kind of customer was to serve him as quickly and as smilingly as possible and then get away from him, under pretense of tasks elsewhere. She said she envied her sister-waitresses who had developed the knack of keen repartee that could put those fellows in their place without giving them excuse for taking offense, but she thought even those rapid-fire responders get pretty sick of having to cross lingual words with the pests.

Some Compensations

She said that probably 80 per cent of the waitresses of today had been brought up in nice homes and had been well schooled and could take their places in any society if they had the opportunity, and that it was a shame that they had to endure the affronts of low-lifes like that thick-necked chap, and we were inclined to agree with her.

She said there were compensations, however, in the many customers who treated the waitresses with all kindness and respect, and that closed the interview, though we could not help wishing as we departed that she had tried out a ketchup bottle on that thick-necked fellow's head, just to see which broke first.

Golden Terror Risks Villian Title Tomorrow

The Golden Terror, masked villain of the wrestling ring, will find himself in the embarrassing position as the people's choice tomorrow night when he will grapple with Jack Hader, the Kansas problem child, at Turner's Arena.

Irked no end by being in the ring with a man hated more than himself by the cash customers, the Terror will doubtless seek to regain his standing as the ring's No. 1 villain in the 90-minute battle.

Hader aroused general dislike last week by butting the head of Rosy Red Ryan against a ring post. Tomorrow night's card, beginning at 8:30 p. m., will bring together Kazinmirz (King Kong) Symkowski, a 7-foot-2 Pole, and Louis Bacigalupi, of California; George Pencheff, Australian flash, and Alonzo Woods; Rosy Red Ryan and David Mayor, a newcomer, and Jum Clinstock and Ernie Powers.

Sets of 130,160,111 And 2-Pin Handicap Take Bowling Prize

Fred Murphy put together games of 130, 160, 111 and a handicap of two pins last night for 403 first place in the Columbia Heights League Sweepstakes at the Arcadia Alley. Second to Murphy in the impromtu tourney which was arranged as a climax to the league's completed season was Nick Chaconas with 138, 109, 143 and an 8-handicap for a total of 398.

Mike Vitale, aided by a 14 handicap, rolled 140, 109, and 105 for 369 and third honors. The three winners received cash prizes.

Capital Transit

Bowlers of the Northern Bus team of the Capital Transit League, Class C Division, took the lead last night with a high set of 1,698, as 23 teams, competing in seven divisions, opened the twenty-ninth annual Washington City Duckpin Association's tournament at Columbia Alleys, Fourteenth and Monroe streets northwest.

With a set of 1,640, members of the Primary Control team of the R. F. C. League, Class D, took second place, and Cartographic No. 2 team moved into third place in Class E with a set of 1,598. Bob Garner, of the Northern Bus team, rolled the highest individual set, scoring 375. The tournament will close May 9 with awarding of trophies and cash prizes to winning teams.

Lutheran (Men's)

Harry Mertz, of Keller No. 1, rolled high individual game, 151; Al Zammer, St. Paul No. 1, high individual set, 393; Trinity No. 1, high team game, 588, and St. Paul No. 1, high team set, 1,681.

Lutheran (Women's)

High individual game was won by Gladys Broeker, Zion, and Ruth Heyser, Mount Rainier, with 113. Rhoda Hennig, Trinity No. 1, posted 317 for high individual set. Atonement won both high team game and high team set with 528 and 1,445.

Russell Motors Nine To Stage First Drill

Made up of some of the city's former high school greats, and under the direction of "Huck" Hilleary, former Western athlete, the Russell Motors baseball team of the Industrial League will stage its first workout today on the South Ellipse. Players have been asked to be present at 5 p. m. sharp.

Plaza Nine Practices

Joey Silva 7-5 Favorite Over Al Reid

Coast Puncher Must Weigh In Today at 129 Lbs.

Mexican Joe Silva, cross-eyed Los Angeles puncher, will enter the ring at Turner's Arena tonight a 7-to-5 favorite over Al Reid, ninth-ranking featherweight from New York, in a ten-round bout that promises to furnish plenty of action.

The tough little Mexican, who appears to be looking in a half dozen directions at once, will have one eye trained on a shot at the winner of last night's championship fight between Leo Rodak and Joey Archibald—a match promised by Promoter Joe Turner to tonight's winner.

Under the watchful eyes of Matchmaker Goldie Ahern and Manager Jack Laken, Silva underwent a strenuous ten-round workout yesterday at the National Capital Gymnasium. At the end of the session Silva weighed 130 pounds, 1 over the limit demanded by Sammy Goldman and Charlie Ross, Reid's managers.

Silva must weigh 129 pounds today at 2 p. m., when the fighters weigh in at the District Boxing Commission. Reid completed his training session yesterday in New York and boarded a train for Washington. Laken said Silva will meet the weight requirements today and would make things "mighty hot" for Reid tonight, who is expected to weigh at between 123 and 126 pounds.

Reid and Silva both carry plenty of steam on their punches and both refuse to give ground in the ring. Reid, in his appearances here, has defeated Ray Ingram, Tony Dupre and Paul Lee. Silva, in his only appearance here, scored an impressive victory over Pete Galiano.

The card, opening tonight at 8:30 o'clock, includes a six-pound semi-windup with Billy Banks, local colored lightweight, meeting Henry Blackwell Silva's stablemate; and Sid Silas and Sam Bacala, of Baltimore; Nick Manfredo and Wild Man Marino, and Pee Wee Walker and Billy Hatcher, in four-rounders.

Eastern Plays Bethesda Today

Though its first start this week was canceled yesterday because of over-moist grounds, Eastern High baseball team gets into action today when Bethesda's improving nine comes to Eastern to visit. The game is listed for 3:30.

It is the only major high school engagement of the city today and will furnish a proving ground for several of the Lincoln Parkers' prospective hurlers. The school begins defense of its 1938 public school crown Friday, hoping for another championship to add to the eight garnered in the last ten years of competition.

District Reformatory Nine Seeking Games

The District reformatory's baseball teams, the "Blues" and the "Browns," have several open dates in May and June, E. J. Welch, deputy superintendent at Lorton, announced yesterday. Games may be schdeuled by writing Welch at Box 25, Lorton, Va.

Down in Front

With Richards Vidmer

New York, April 18.—Rain fell so hard, or had fallen so hard or threatened to fall so hard, that most of the major league cities which were ready to celebrate the opening of the baseball season today put their flags away, ordered the bands back to their quarters and notified the leading citizens that they could stop practicing pitching.

But not Brooklyn.

They have a reputation for being different over there, and they lived up to it when they refused to yield to the weather and went right ahead with the opening day ceremonies. The Yankees and Red Sox were supposed to open the season at the stadium, just across the river, but the Yankees and the Red Sox agreed that it was no day for baseball and postponed the gala occasion until a more fitting occasion.

But not Brooklyn.

The Dodgers and the Dodger fans had been waiting for this opening for a long, long time. In fact, it was last April that they started saying, "Wait until next year." And now that next year had arrived they refused to wait any longer.

The fact that the Dodgers had been beating the Yankees in a series of exhibition games during the last week or so may have been a contributing factor in their eagerness to get started on the regular season. Perhaps they felt that they were hot.

But they cooled off very quickly as soon as the regular campaign got underway. Almost immediately the same team which had been conquering the champions of the world, the club that has been hailed as the greatest ever assembled in the history of baseball, reverted to type. They began doing things that were famously familiar and bore a dis-

Silver Spring Golfers Beat Army-Navy

Manor Leads D.C. Women's Team Play

Chevy Chase Trails Washington Club by Single Point in Team Competition

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Indian Spring's defending champions virtually eliminated Army-Navy's dark-horse entry from further title consideration in the Women's District Golf Association first-team matches yesterday, scoring a 9½ to 2½ victory at Washington Golf and Country Club.

Meanwhile Manor, playing one of the weaker teams in the ten-club circuit for the second straight week, went ahead with 22 points out of a possible 24, blanking Argyle, 12-0, aided by a forfeit in the last match. The hosts, leaders last week, defeated Beaver Dam by a surprising 9½ to 2½ count to take second place with 20½ points.

Chevy Chase, that has played the strongest teams of any of the three leaders, was but a single point behind Washington after scoring a 10 to 2 triumph over Columbia, the team that scored 5 points against Indian Spring last week. Congressional completed the day's play with a 9-3 triumph over Woodmont, after losing all 3 points in the No. 1 foursome. Mrs. Myron Daly and Mrs. J. O. Rhyne did not play for the Congressional team.

Outstanding Players

Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. Walter Stokes, of the Indian Spring team, played the best golf of the day, including the former's back nine of 39, in defeating Mrs. David Clark and Mrs. T. J. Johnson, of the service club. The Four Corners team lost but ½ point in the first three foursomes against the Army-Navy club octet, and gained an even break in the fourth.

Marion Brown and Mrs. L. G. Pray led Manor's shutout triumph over Argyle. After Mrs. W. R. Bush and Mrs. V. Teal, of Congressional, dropped three ponts to Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith and Mrs. Henry Goodman, of the Woodmont combination, the remainder of the team scored a shutout for the 9-3 triumph.

Sally Whipple, teen-age member of the Washington team, and Mrs. R. N. Sutton lost the first nine to Mrs. Oram Emge and Mrs. Florence Godfrey, of Beaver Dam, but Miss Whipple shot one of the best nines of the day coming back as she and Mrs. Sutton captured two points, and the hosts showed a margin in every other match but the second, that was tied.

Stay Among Leaders

Mrs. Bishop Hill and Mrs. Landra Platt scored two and one-half points to one-half for Mrs. Brundage and Mrs. Crisp, of Columbia, as Chevy Chase stayed among the leaders. Mrs. J. R. DeFarges, second team captain, in a substitute's role, and Mrs. B. M. Giles scored Columbia's other points in the last foursome.

Second-team matches at Army and Navy were postponed as the rainy weather left the course in an unplayable condition, while the third-team matches will not be renewed until May 9.

Gonzaga Loses To G. W. High Golf Team

Gonzaga, defending champion in the Metropolitan Scholastic League, was handed a rude jolt by George Washington High's first year entry in the school team matches in the form of a 7½ to 1½ defeat yesterday at Congressional.

Tech blanked Anacostia in the opening match of the public high school play for the Dawes Cup, at Washington Golf and Country Club. Matches between Bethesda and Devitt and Western and Wilson were not played.

Minus Buddy Sharkey, schoolboy champion, and four other members of last year's champions, Gonzaga was no match for the Alexandrias, Fitzgerald turning in the lone victory.

Tech, next to last in the 12-team circuit last year, apparently has an improved combination as it shut out the Anacostians by a decisive score in every match. Burgess was best for both teams with an 84.

G. W., 7½; Gonzaga, 1½

P. Drury (G. W.) defeated G. Beuchert, 1 up; Lipps (G. W.) defeated C. Cullen. Best ball—George Washington, 3 and 2.

J. Fitzgerald (Gonzaga) defeated J. Taylor, 4 and 3; W. Wickham (G. W.) defeated G. Rita. Best ball, all even.

C. Smith (G. W.) defeated J. Quinn, 3 and 2; Apperson (G. W.) defeated R. Smith, 5 and 3. Best ball—George Washington, 7 and 6.

Tech, 9; Anacostia, 0

Bland (Tech) defeated Herbey, 6 and 5; Burgess (Tech) defeated Tawney, 5 and 4. Best ball—Tech, 6 and 5.

Crockett (Tech) defeated Leonard, 5 and 4; Boswell (Tech) defeated Miller, 4 and 3. Best ball—Tech, 5 and 3.

Loveless (Tech) defeated Mann, 8 and 6; Waller (Tech) defeated White, 3 and 1. Best ball—Tech, 7 and 6.

Navy Nine Plays Temple Today

Annapolis, April 18 (AP).—Navy baseball players eyed the dripping skies today and wondered if the weather man would let them cross bats with Temple University tomorrow.

Indications were that Max Bishop, Navy coach, would call on Jerry Bruckel, his star moundsman, when the Middies go against Temple, weather permitting.

Terp Golfers Defeat Franklin-Marshall

Maryland University golfers defeated Franklin and Marshall, 5 to 4, yesterday at Indian Spring. The Terps won the best ball in two of the three foursomes. Each team won two singles matches and two finished all even.

Brownell (Md.) defeated R. Baher, 5 and 3; W. Fitzhugh (F. and M.) defeated Bill Rea, 3 and 2. Best ball—Maryland, 4 and 2.

S. Feeser (F. and M.) beat R. Harmon, 3 and 2; Julian Murphy (Md.), all even with J. Pickett. Best ball—Franklin and Marshall, 2 and 1.

Bill Bryant (Md.) defeated Bill Stadis, 2 up; Bob Burns (Md.), all even with Ed Dossinger. Best ball—Maryland, 2 up.

drew 5,000 fans. Snead has never played on a District course.

The match will be one day before the sectional qualifying rounds for the National Open. Guldahl and Thomson are automatic qualifiers, while Snead will leave that night for Philadelphia, where he will attempt to win a place in a tournament that he will be no more than 6 to 1 to win. Cox will attempt to qualify over his home course.

Congressional's lengthy layout will be a perfect scene for a tee-shot battle between Snead and Guldahl, while Cox's knowledge of the course will balance the odds for the match.

Bill Ackerman

on Fishing

William C. Neville, division of scientific inquiry, United States Bureau of Fisheries, who has been working in and with representatives of the New York and Long Island area, both sport and commercial, informs us of the passage of a law in New York State, and its signing on April 4, to make illegal the taking, the sale, or the possession of striped bass under 16 inches, measured from the nose to the fork of the tail.

ACKERMAN

This might seem of little moment to Chesapeake Bay fishermen, but it is of really vital interest, both to commercial men and sports fishermen.

Of interest to commercial fisheries because the New York market takes a very large part of their total catch. Dealers in Fulton Market are for restrictions, but only if they are uniform along the whole Atlantic coast, otherwise feeling they have every right to deal in any size fish if they are legally taken.

Uniform Laws

Therefore it is directly up to Maryland and Virginia to pass laws in line with other Atlantic coastal States, which have made the minimum size limit on striped bass 16 inches, so that their commercial men and sports fishermen can enjoy equally with the market men the increased production which will result from this protection.

In noting this law we also have the recommendations of Elmer Higgins and Robert A. Nesbit, in charge of experimental tagging operations of the division of scientific inquiry, collaborating with Mr. Neville for the conservation of striped bass along the Atlantic Coast, wherein they say "all striped bass under 16 inches (measured to the fork of the tail) should be protected by appropriate legislation."

Their findings took into consideration the experience of California in dealing with the same species, the reports of Dr. Daniel Merriman, of Connecticut, who last year followed the spring migration from North Carolina to Massachusetts, and Dr. V. D. Vladokov's findings from years of study in our own Chesapeake Bay.

Finally it should be pointed out that these recommendations have been designed to increase the annual crop taken commercially. This of course in accordance with the assumption that the bass, like most other marine species, is capable under proper management, of yielding more fish than are needed by anglers and that to limit exploitation to the comparatively small quantities taken for sport would constitute wasteful under-utilization.

Pet Theory Changed

This size limit recommendation changes one of our pet theories that striped bass should spawn at least once before they are caught, if the species is to endure. There are good reasons for this size of 16 inches—of that we'll go into in more detail in another column.

We hope Maryland and Virginia does fall in line with an adequate law but only if they legislate the proper gear at the same time that will avoid the capture of small fish, or provide for their return to the water unharmed, for nothing of value is accomplished if small fish are merely kept from the markets.

We also hope for the wholehearted support of bay fishermen, for anything less would nullify the benefits to them, and sportsmen as well, of legal protection. For if small fish are destroyed not only will the potential gains from growth be lost but also the present market value of such fish.

Norfolk, Va., April 18 (AP).—Bill Boyd, protege of Jack Dempsey, won over Murray Kanner, of Washington, D. C., via the technical knockout route here last night. Referee Elder Craft stopped the bout and awarded the fight to Boyd after 30 seconds of the second round.

124 Tee Off In Miller Golf Tomorrow

Helen Dettweiler Won't Defend Title In Memorial Event

A field of 124 players will start play at 8:10 tomorrow morning in the annual Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial tournament at Washington Golf and Country Club. The opening event of the women's card honors the former secretary of the Women's District Golf Association, and is sponsored by the host club.

Helen Dettweiler will not defend the title she won last year, but Marion Brown and Mrs. Betty Meckley, who tied for low gross, are among the large field.

Mrs. Henry Pratt, Mrs. Phelps Adams and Mrs. R. C. Nicholson, of the host club, will start the play, while the last threesome will leave the tee at 11:35, according to the pairings released by Mrs. R. E. Hotze, of Washington.

Mrs. Myron Davy and Mrs. Leo Walper, with games sharpened by play in several winter tournaments, will be strong contenders for the top prize, while the field includes usual list of low-handicap players.

Visiting caddies are permitted.

Nats to Open Season Today Against A's

given the Nats no little trouble with his knuckler.

Speaking of knucklers, Harris will confront the A's with his own knuckle-ball artist tomorrow when Dutch Leonard is scheduled to face the Mackmen in the last game of the series, shrunken by rain to two games.

The second consecutive postponement was a bit welcome to the Nats. The two ailing regulars, Rick Ferrell, with his split finger, and Buddy Lewis, with his throat trouble, will profit from the delay and both are now expected to take the field tomorrow.

In Philadelphia there is little enthusiasm as the start of another season nears for the Athletics. One local baseball writer, hailing the inaugural game, wrote this morning:

"Philadelphia keeps its annual rendezvous with hope and disillusion today."

Four rookies will be introduced by Connie Mack to the Philadelphia public when his team trots out on the field. In contrast to the opening game of 1939, when the A's went on the field for the 1935 inaugural, First Baseman Nick Etten was in Jacksonville, Fla., Outfielder Dee Miles was in Chattanooga, Second Baseman Joe Gantenbein was in Toronto, Third Baseman Bill Nagel was in Little Rock, and Shortstop Skeeter Newsome was in the hospital with a broken skull.

In contrast with the grandly planned opener in Washington, a crowd of no more than 10,000 is expected at Shibe Park, where, if the ceremonies are according to custom, the march to the flagpole will be staged to the beat of canned music from a recording device.

The first man they sent to the plate, Goodie Rosen, tripled, and there were howls of glee from the packed pavilions. But like other Dodgers of memory who have opened innings with triples, Goodie was left stranded on third base while the next three batters were retired by Harry Gumbert, who was selected for the distinction of pitching the Giants' opening game, an honor usually accorded Carl Hubbell.

It was observed that Gumbert was wearing his pants lengthwise, in the peculiar Hubbell manner, which caused someone to murmur that it looked asthough Harry not only was filling Hubbell's shoes but also his pants.

But to get back to the game, there were other incidents besides Brooklyn's opening rally that died in the making, which seemed reminiscent of other Brooklyn ball clubs. Leo Durocher, the new manager, made two inexcusable errors and both resulted in Giant runs, but Dodger fans are ever loyal and when some stranger from New York jeered at these mistakes, one of them said, "Well, that's the first error a Brooklyn manager has made in the field since 1913 if you want to know it."

This seemed hardly believable until a check up was made and his statement was found to be entirely correct. None of the Brooklyn managers between 1913 and the present season have exposed themselves to fielding errors; they have run their clubs from the bench.

But the most typical Dodger doing occurred when Rosen tried to confuse Zeke Bonura, the new first baseman for the Giants, and was himself confused instead. Rosen was on first base when a high foul was hit near first base and the uncertain Zeke zig-zagged his way to get under it.

But this one he caught. Perhaps he was a little surprised, but Rosen sought to further befuddle him by suddenly dashing off first base as though he were going to make a break for second. This maneuver was designed to make Bonura throw the ball and perhaps throw it wildly, but there was one fault with the strategy; Rosen didn't know that Danning, the catcher, was streaking down the baseline to cover first, and Bonura's throw to him, instead of second, caught Goodie off the bag.

Gen. Electric Quarter Net Tops Year Ago

Profit Is $7,373,431 26 Cents on Common 25 Cents a Year Ago

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 18.—The General Electric Co. reported today for the first three months of this year a net profit of $7,373,431, equal to 26 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $7,073,739, or 25 cents a share, in the first quarter last year.

B. F. Goodrich Co.

David M. Goodrich, chairman of the board of B. F. Goodrich Co., told stockholders at their annual meeting ttoday that the company had made a profit of $650,000 in the first three months of the year compared with a loss of $1,600,000 in the like period of 1938. He said the labor situation in Akron had improved, but thta the management "constantly is studying decentralization."

"Naturally, decentralization is to be regretted in many ways," said Goodrich. "We have not gone into it as far or as fast as the other large companies."

Johns-Manville Corp.

Johns-Manville Corporation and subsidiaries, makers of building products, for the first 1939 quarter today reported net income of $128,-118 after charges, equal to $1.67 a share of the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock. This compared with net loss of $239,475 in the opening 1938 quarters.

"While sales of $10,397,408 for this year's first quarter were slightly less than last year's $10,435,119, the net income is somewhat better because of economies we have been able to effect through our continuing program of cost production and expense control," Lewis H. Brown, president, said.

International Paper

International Paper and Power Co. for 1938 today reported net income of $124,075 after charges, equal to 13 cents a share on the comulative 5 per cent preferred stock. This compared with net income of $9,154,701, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.47 a common share in 1937.

"Tonnage sales were off 23 per cent from the record levels of 1937," Richard J. Cullen, president, told stockholders in the annual report.

N. J. Public Service

Newark, N. J., April 18 (AP).—Public Service Corporation of New Jersey had a net income for the first three months this year of $6,709,000, compared to $5,595,000 for the same period of 1938, the stockholders were informed at their annual meeting today by Thomas N. McCarter, president. "This year started off well," he said, "and although it is dangerous to predict, especially during these times, indications are that the common stock will earn about $2.60 a share in the present year.

"Tentatively we have put this common stock on a $2.40 annual basis. Maybe we will be able to better that basis, but I cannot say so at this time." Earnings on the common stock were $2.34 a share last year.

Caterpillar Tractor

Chicago, April 18 (AP).—Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill., reported today net income of $928,118, for the three months ended March 31, equal to 42 cents a common share, compared with $807,906, or 36 cents a share for the first three months of 1938. Net sales for the quarter were $13,059,288, compared with $11,284,-697 in 1938.

E. W. Wakelee Heads N. J. Public Service

Newark, N. J., April 18 (AP).—Edmund W. Wakelee, of Demarest, was elected today as president of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, which ranks among the first half dozen of the Nation's utility corporations. Wakelee succeeded Thomas N. McCarter, president of the corporation since it was founded 36 years ago.

In line with recommendations he made to the board of directors at its meeting last month, McCarter was named to the newly created post of chairman of the board.

Small Traders Apt to Be Wrong, Brookings Says

By the Associated Press.

A study issued today by the Brookings Institution indicated that the small stock market trader tends to guess wrong on trends of share prices. He buys on declines and sells on advances, "but buys and sells too soon."

"Market movements tend to continue in the same direction for a substantial time" after the little fellow acts, the report said.

During the years 1920 to 1936, inclusive, principal odd-lot concerns of the New York Stock Exchange sold 73,000,000 shares more than they bought. (An odd-lot concern buys and sells stocks in blocks of less than 100 shares.) The institution expressed belief that the bulk of the 73,000,000 shares went permanently into the hands of relatively small buyers.

On the average, the small trader accumulated six shares of stock by buying 106 shares and selling 100. The fact that the net balance of stock permanently retained by the small buyers is always a small part of total turnover indicates, the report said, that a large part of odd-lot trading is speculative.

The study was made by Dr. Charles O. Hardy in co-operation with three large odd-lot firms. These firms do 97 per cent of the business transacted in less than hundred-share lots on the New York Stock Exchange.

C. & O. Drops Young From 2 Committees

Richmond, Va., April 18 (AP).—Robert R. Young, chairman of the Alleghany Corporation, was dropped from two Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. committees today shortly after stockholders re-elected the board of directors, which included three members whom Young had asked to resign.

The directors, who were named for new terms without opposition but without the vote of the Alleghany Corporation stock, named R. C. Gifford, of Louisville, Ky., and J. B. Hollister, of Cincinnati, Ohio, on the executive committee in place of Young and H. B. Erminger, jr., of Chicago, Ill.

Homer L. Ferguson, of Newport News, Va., replaced Young on the finance committee, the only other change in the personnel of the committees.

The action came a few hours after the common stockholders had re-elected ten members of the board, including Hollister, J. L. Dickinson, of Charleston, W. Va., and Earle Bailie, of New York, the three members whose resignations Young had sought.

After the directors' action was announced, the three issued a statement in which they said that "in view of the results of the stockholders' and directors' meetings," they had nothing to say in answer to Young's demand.

Daily Oil Output Up 46,860 Barrels

Tulsa, April 18 (AP).—Production of crude oil in the United States increased 46,860 barrels daily during the week ended April 15 to a total daily average of 3,492,057, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma production was off 15,-775 barrels daily to an average of 436,475 and East Texas dropped 36 barrels to 447,000, but the State of Texas was up 44,684 to 1,435,095. Louisiana dropped 1,000 barrels daily to 284,855, California jumped 8,550 to 629,250 and Kansas was up 16,150 to 169,950.

Auto Industry Emerges From Slump of 1938

First Quarter Sales 58 Per Cent Over Same 1938 Period

By the United Press.

Detroit, April 18.—The automobile industry, usually a reliable barometer of general business trends, definitely has pulled itself out of the doldrums of 1938, a survey showed today. Automotive manufacturers do not anticipate an unusual boom in spring sales but reports from the major companies show that the industry has left Depression II far behind.

The Automobile Manufacturers Association disclosed that factory sales of automobiles and trucks in the United States and Canada during the first quarter of 1939 were 58 per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1938. The motor makers produced 1,055,787 cars and trucks during the first three months of this year as compared with 668,346 last year.

W. F. Hufstader, sales manager of the Buick division of General Motors, said that Buick sales in the first quarter of 1939 were the greatest in the company's history. Buick delivered 46,675 cars during the first three months, breaking the old record of 44,935 cars sold during the corresponding period in 1926.

Chevrolet retail sales in March were the highest in 18 months. This General Motors division made a gain of 41.3 per cent over March of 1938.

C. P. Simpson, Pontiac sales manager, said that in the last ten days of March his company sold 40 per cent more cars than during the same period of 1938.

Oldsmobile Record

Oldsmobile built approximately 100,000 cars during January, February and March—as many as were built during the entire 1938 model year. "Our sales for March were 48 per cent higher than last year," D. E. Ralston, sales manager, said.

Cadillac-LaSalle sales during the final ten days of March were the best for such a period in 20 months, Sales Manager D. E. Ahern said.

Studebaker sales gains in March were 152 per cent over last year. Sales for the first quarter were 94 per cent over 1938.

Ford retail sales in March were 56 per cent greater than in March a year ago. R. J. Davis, of the Ford company, said this volume was the largest since July of 1937.

Automotive News, a trade publication, estimated that total production for April would be more than 325,000 cars and trucks, a substantial gain over 238,139 units built in April, 1938.

Phoenix Mutual Reports 39% Gain

With sizeable gains for each month of the year, the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., reports a 39 per cent increase in paid business for the first quarter of the year, according to L. H. Riggles, of the local agency. Mr. Riggles stated that the March gain in this respect was 26 per cent.

Insurance in force, considered the most important measure of progress shows a first quarter gain of $7,250,000, which is almost double the increase recorded in the first quarter of 1938.

Prices Drift Lower in Dull Session Traders Await European Moves U. S. and High Grade Bonds Firm

New York, April 18.—Trading groups withdrew still further into the background today and financial as well as most of the commodity markets drifted in desultory fashion. Share prices were marked down 1 to 3 points in the dullest stock exchange session since February 14 and bonds were exchanged in lightest volume since September 8, 1938. Foreign exchanges were quiet and about unchanged. Cotton quotations firmed a little while wheat was inclined to ease after a day of inconsequential fluctuations.

The influences which accounted for the intensified caution of both investor and speculative groups were, as usual, born of the European situation. Attention was focused on news of the German fleet maneuvers, announcement of British defense plans and, at home, the conference called by President Roosevelt to consider steps to cushion the shock of war, should it come. Wall Street is fully war conscious, as evidenced by vocal arguments in board rooms at all times of the day, and the stream of comment in brokers' letters to clients.

Auto News Good

Dispatches from the domestic front contained some optimistic material which otherwise might have influenced the buying side. News from the automotive industry, for example, was particularly good. A survey of the whole Detroit area disclosed maintenance of sales and schedules. Chrysler reported new car sales at the rate of 20,000 and used car sales around 30,000 monthly. General Motors report of March sales outside of the United States disclosed that despite disturbed economic conditions in principal customer countries, deliveries for the month and first quarter were higher than a year ago. Chrysler, however, sold off nearly 2 points and General Motors was down more than a point, both on a fairly brisk turnover.

Merchandising shares, while weakest of all divisions, were not sold heavily, price changes occurring for the most part on small dealings. Steels were next hardest hit, steel common closing 2 points lower at 43 3-8, while Bethlehem dropped 2¼. Tickers carried particulars of some fairly good awards, including heavy products, to leading steel concerns.

Some Groups Resistant

Oils, utilities and rails exhibited most resistance to the generally downward trend. Statistics on oil production, refinery operations and stocks of petroleum products, which were announced late in the day, were less favorable than in recent weeks, although they were nothing to worry about considering the industry is just entering its season of large consumption.

Among stocks which gave up 1 to 2 points were Allied Chemical, Union Pacific, Texas Co., Sears Roebuck, Du Pont, Chesapeake & Ohio, Anaconda and American Smelting.

Commission houses reported that quite a few orders have been placed for stocks at levels somewhat below today's prices, indicating presence of bargain buyers. Utilities, it is said, are being favored over many of the industries and rails. Continued activity of leading stocks was interpreted as pointing to their use by short-term buyers and sellers. In less active issues, it is emphasized, the uncertain state of markets precludes even trading positions.

Prime Bonds Firm

High grade listed bonds remained firm in an idle market today, but the speculative issues resumed their downward drift. Turnover was only $4,000,000, of the smallest aggregate since last September 8 for a full session. Selling pressure in the rail, foreign and other speculative groups never amounted to much, but hardly any buyers appeared and the result was a long series of small declines. Few issues managed to resist the trend, other than the better grade investment media.

Long term United States Treasury obligations showed gains of 1/32 to 7/32 point. This sufficed to place some bonds within striking distance of previous highs. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations also were firm. Top-flight utility, railroad and industrial bonds were quiet at former levels.

Secondary railroad liens drifted slowly lower, with few exceptions. Losses were mostly fractional, but occasionally exceeded a point. Borderline and default carrier bonds were dull and irregular. Holding company and share privilege issues naturally moved downward in line with related equities. Among the local tractions, Manhattan Railway bonds improved because of the court decision on the I. R. T. lease, but others moved lower. Amusement bonds and other special groups followed the line of least resistance.

Raw Silk Prices Rise to Highest For Eight Years

New York, April 18 (AP).—Raw silk prices soared to an eight-year high in the commodity futures markets today as result of a "tight" supply situation and rising levels in the Japanese markets.

At the opening of trading here most futures contracts were 9 to 10½ cents a pound higher, bringing the quotation for April to $2.43 cents and for July to $2.26½. These figures are the highest since November, 1931.

A short cocoon crop last fall and heavily increased consumption by both Japanese and American mills were assigned as causes for the steady rise in prices of the raw commodity that began early in January. While prices of silk hosiery were advanced in February, it was understood today some manufacturers were considering the advisability of another boost.

Further curtailment of silk fabric output was looked for, mill men reported.

Westinghouse Gives Bonus to 45,000

Pittsburgh, April 18 (AP).—A 3 per cent adjusted compensation bonus in April for 45,000 employes was announced today by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. as the result of increasing profits in the first quarter.

The bonus compared with 2 per cent in March and 1 per cent in February. It was based on net profits of the last three months, $922,-186 in March; $615,833 in February and $613,129 in January.

Public Debt Rises To Another Peak

Federal expenditures exceeded income by $2,864,097,714 in the first nine and one-half months of this fiscal year. The Treasury said yesterday that from July 1, 1938, to April 15, 1939, expenditures totaled $7,188,131,365 and revenue amounted to $4,323,133,551. This compared with spending of $5,889,508,-382 and receipts of $4,046,802,567 in the comparable period of the previous fiscal year. The deficit sent the public debt to a new high of $40,043,345,123—about $2,500,000,-000 larger than a year ago.

Wheat Prices Dip With Rains In Spring Belt

Europe Also a Factor Largest Drop ½ Cent Corn Prices Higher

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 18.—Widespread rains and snows that were particularly welcome in the spring wheat belt caused some selling in the grain market today, lowering prices fractionally.

Trade was quiet, however, with most dealers awaiting new developments in Europe and sellers timid in view of serious political situation. September wheat contracts, which can be satisfied by delivery of spring wheat, bore the brunt of the selling, some of which represented spreading against purchases of May contracts. September futures were off as much as ¾ of a cent at one time while May and July showed losses no greater than ⅜ of a cent.

Helping to restrain selling of wheat, corn prices rose as much as ½ cent to the best level in more than a month due largely to good commercial demand for actual grain. Handlers advanced bids on white corn to arrive 1 to 1½ cents, attracting about 25,000 bushels, but the country showed little inclination to sell.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower compared with yesterday; May, 68¼@68; July, 67¼@68; corn, ¼-⅜ higher; May, 48¾; July, 50⅛@50¼; oats, ⅛ off to ⅛ up; rye, unchanged to ⅛ up; lard unchanged to 2 cents higher.

Retail Advertising Maintains 1938 Level

Chicago, April 18.—For the first 14 weeks of 1939, through April 8, the volume of newspaper display advertising used by retailers in 80 major cities was equal to 99.5 per cent of the 1939 volume, during the same period, Advertising Age reported today.

Total retail display advertising in these cities so far this year is 282,-885,942 lines. For the first 14 weeks of 1938 it was 284,147,029 lines.

C. & O. May Purchase More Pere Marquette

Cleveland, April 18 (AP).—Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, railroad circles heard today, is considering buying 27,500 shares of Pere Marquette Railway common stock now held by Chesapeake Corporation, in process of liquidation.

C. & O. already owns 313,900 of 450,460 shares of Pere Marquette common, and much of its preferred.

Steel Firm to Move Ohio Plant to Japan

Youngstown, Ohio, April 18 (AP).—The United Engineering & Foundry Co., large steel mill equipment manufacturer will soon move its Wooster, Ohio, machine shop to Japan, President George T. Ladd, of Pittsburgh, said today. Ladd said that dismantling will start soon. He said it could be used "to better advantage" in Japan and was not being sold to Japanese interests. Besides its main plants at Youngstown and Pittsburgh, United has an English plant.

May Cotton Futures Close 9 Points Higher

New York, April 18 (AP).—With the May delivery as bellewether cotton futures closed unchanged to 9 points higher in brisk trading today. The spot month was lifted 33 points above Saturday's low.

First notice day for Many contracts is only five trading days off, certificated stocks are small, and there is little probability of any loan cotton being released in the near future.

Consequently, cotton analysts said, longs showed no inclination to liquidate with a resultant scarcity of offerings. Shorts were forced to bid prices up and this, together with some speculative buying and trade demand, steadied the entire list.

Bombay dealers believed to have the largest interest in the near delivery, disposed of only relatively small lots despite the advance. Most of the day's offerings came from South American hedging sales, commission house liquidation and ring selling on the upturn.

Business Loans Gain For Fifth Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of banks increased in the week ended April 12 for the fifth consecutive week.

Banks in 101 leading cities reported their business loans were $14,000,000 larger than in the preceding week and totaled $3,852,000,-000. New York City banks alone had an increase of $14,000,000 while banks in other parts of the country had offsetting gains and losses.

ICC Plan Would Erase C.&N.W. Stock

Examiner Suggests Cut of $100,000,000 In Capitalization

An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended yesterday reorganization of the Chicago & North Western Railway Co. with sharply reduced capitalization and fixed charges.

Examiner J. V. Walsh suggested a capitalization of $450,000,000, a reduction of $100,000,000, and fixed annual interest charges of $3,394,987. In addition, his proposal calls for contingent interest charges of $5,972,742.

Fixed interest charges averaged $13,779,320 for the five-year period, 1926-1930. The commission called for exceptions to Walsh's report by May 29, with replies to exceptions due by June 19. The commission will hear oral arguments June 29.

Walsh recommended that present stockholders of the North Western receive nothing for their holdings. "From a consideration of the entire record, the earnings and prospective earnings, and especially the impairment in earning power of the properties, the commission should conclude and find that the equities of both classes of stockholders have no value," Walsh said.

"From 1931 to 1938, the earnings have been and contemplated earnings will be, wholly insufficient to pay interest stipulated for the outstanding bonds and other indebtedness."

Reich Replaced By U. S. in Machine Sales in Japan

By the Associated Press.

The Commerce Department said yesterday that the United States has doubled its sales of metal-working machinery to Japan because Germany, Japan's axis partner, needed most of its machinery output for its own purposes.

Germany formerly was the principal shipper of machinery to Japan, but last year the United States, with sales of $23,811,408, sold 67 per cent of all the foreign metal-working machinery Japan bought. In the previous year Japan bought only $17,450,440 worth of American machinery.

"It is quite probable," a department release said, "that imports (into Japan) from the United States may be larger in 1939 than in 1938, since the statistics for the past six months show that the trade has been at the rate of about $2,285,000 per month."

900 Picket HOLC, Ask Easier Terms

Homeowners From 4 States Invade D. C., Buttonhole Lawmakers

About 900 home owners from the Bronx, Brooklyn and points in New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and a few other States came to Washington yesterday and sought to convince the Administration of a need for more liberal Home Owners Loan Corporation policies. The measures they took included:

Picketing the HOLC Building at 101 Indiana avenue northwest, where they carried signs reading "Save America's Homes" and sang snatches of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Home Sweet Home."

Buttonholing members of the House Banking and Currency Committee in the morning and attending en masse a hearing conducted by the corresponding Senate committee in the afternoon.

They demanded extension of the amortization period from 15 to 20 years, reduction of interest rate from 5 to 3 per cent, elimination of deficiency judgments, the right to redeem homes already foreclosed, creation of a legal division within the HOLC to handle foreclosures and provision of a two-year moratorium on principal payments where home owners are paying interest and taxes.

In a letter on the demands, most of which are embodied in bills to amend the HOLC act, HOLC Chairman John Fahey told Senator Wagner, chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, that the program would cost the Government $50,000,000. He said that less than 5 per cent of HOLC borrowers have lost properties through foreclosure.

Adieu Champion Quits Town Today; Can't Fathom D. C.

James A. Fitzpatrick, the man whose tear-drenched voice has lamented "and so we bid a fond adieu" to some 130 various scenes which he has made into movie Traveltalks, today is going to voice "a heartfelt farewell to Washington, the City of I Don't Know Yet."

FITZPATRICK

On account he hasn't decided how to characterize Washington, which he has just made into one of his famous travellogs. He says that the inspiration "will suggest itself when the editing process gets underway."

Women Observe 150th Anniversary of Constitution

It's Here, Folks, Stupendous! And No Mud, Circus Promises

It's here, folks, "The Mighty Monarch of the Tented World," the Johnny J. Jones Exposition, with a new bearded lady, free circus acts, colossal, stupendous; death defying ladies with iron jaws, peanuts, the smell of fresh canvas.

Miss Patsy Morgan (she defies death and "I marvel more and more as I see her," said the press agent) sat in the cook house over a cup of coffee, saying: "I just don't know . . . what should I say of it? . . . well, I don't know, only it must be like coming down in a parachute, only I never jumped in one of those."

"It's on the jynx apparatus," said the press agent, a stout, confiding fellow. "It amazes me, but I watch it, saying: 'Poor Vera Spriggs. She originated it.' I think of Charleroi, Pa., and the tragedy."

"But take Miss Morgan, and the Hollywood Thrill Girls. They rise 75 feet in mid-air; grasp the iron rings in iron jaws and descend in a mad rush of human, hurtling bodies through the air to the ground below where property men catch them in nets! How does it feel when you land, Miss Morgan?"

Miss Morgan sipped deeply of coffee. "It jars me," said Miss Morgan. She fidgeted reminiscently.

The press agent led the way from the cook tent and into the midway—"absolutely there's none like it from coast to coast. Everything new, see the canvas, the New York World's Fair fronts on everything; this mud absolutely, positively, will not be here tomorrow. Tons upon tons of sawdust and aces of cinders will be spread. Look it over, the shows, I mean, as you traverse the ground; everything booming, humming, ready for Ripley or the World's Fair. Now take the bearded lady, Franches the bearded lady who stands there combing her beard in the sun . . ."

The beard, a flaming red, was being groomed off with a double-sized comb when a trailer arrived bringing the star of the show. She is Priscilla, the hairy girl, who ten weeks ago gave birth to a hairy baby, the pride of herself and husband, Emmett, the alligator-skinned man. Many show folks of the lot ran to greet them and the talk was furious while the tractors rolled the mud away, the tents leaped upward, the peanut venders yelped and the smell of hamburgers, hot rolls and coffee issued from the cook house nearby.

Britain Broke Faith in Palestine, Says Sen. King

Nealy 1,000 Washington Jews last night heard Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, charge Great Britain with breaking faith in her obligations to Palestine, as set forth in the Balfour declaration.

Senator King held that the extent of the Arab problem had been exaggerated. He said that before Jewish colonization a few years ago the land of Palestine had been sterile and the country generally economically unproductive. He praised the Jews for bringing the land fertility.

The meeting was sponsored by the Washington Hadassah.

Master Builders Vote to Refuse Union Demands

Members of the Master Builders Association last night unanimously adopted a resolution stating that they "are not disposed to grant any increase in wages, shorter hours, or other changes in agreements that would increase the cost of building."

Contractors belonging to the association, meeting to discuss demands from trade unions for increased wages and fewer hours, paid attention to demands presented by carpenters and laborers, although marble-setters and slate-roofers are also involved.

Anti-Nazi Bloc Gains in Strength, Refugee Asserts

Nazi secret police would imprison 50,000 Germans the day war is declared, Dr. Adolf Sturmthal, author and journalist in pre-Hitler Austria, last night told an audience of 100 at the Friends' Meeting House, 2111 Florida avenue northwest.

The anti-Nazi underground movement numbers about 10,000 active workers within Germany, Dr. Sturmthal said, but commands the sympathy of "millions" of Germans. Strength of the movement is great enough to be "a powerful brake on Nazi war plans," he asserted.

Death of Former Lady's Maid Ends Epic of a Great Love

New York, April 18.—The romance of a young lord who renounced his claim to an old title for love of a lady's maid in the 1830's had a final chapter today in her death.

Eliza Sheldon Harrison Drummond, for whom Viscount Forth, grandson of the fourteenth Earl of Perth, relinquished security, station and wealth, died at 89 in the house in Brooklyn where she had lived for many years with her daughter, May.

Her death recalled a romance that withstood parental opposition, poverty and illness. The young man who would have been the fifteenth Earl of Perth, eloped with the lady's maid in Liverpool, and after the marriage they sailed for America.

He worked as a handyman and she as a servant in the same household. Then he fell ill, of tuberculosis. For awhile they lived in a shack near Brookhaven, N. Y., where the villagers called him "Lord Drummond, the fisherman."

At 31, in 1837, "Lord Drummond, the fisherman," who might have held one of the oldest titles in Europe, died and was buried in Trinity Courtyard under his full name, "George Essex Montifex Drummond, Viscount Forth."

In the years after the elopement, his father, the Earl of Perth, never relented, and refused to send him a penny.

There were four mouths to feed when "Lord Drummond" and his wife lived in a hut on the marshes. They had a son and a daughter. They eked out their living by hunting and fishing, and sometimes went hungry.

A few years later they returned to New York. He worked as a salesman and porter for a clothing store, and she as dressmaker.

More hardships came. Their son died, the clothing firm failed and the viscount, jobless and ill, went into a decline.

His widow was known by her Brooklyn neighbors of recent years only as "Mrs. Drummond."

Oregon Residents Flee Forest Fire

Hillsboro, Oreg., April 18 (INS).—Families in the Pumpkin Ridge area of northwestern Oregon abandoned their homes tonight as a forest fire roared toward them from surrounding parched hills.

All available fire fighters were summoned after the fire, unchecked since Monday, suddenly gained momentum.

Four dwellings and several farm buildings went up in smoke as the fire burned over a 800-acre area.

Flag Ceremony Set at Quantico

All persons having claims against said corporation are hereby warned to present said claims to said receiver on or before MAY 15, 1939, provided a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post, first publication to be not less than thirty days before said return day. April 3, 1939. JOSEPH W. COX, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By R. PAGE BELEW, Assistant Clerk. 19,26,3

SOLOMON H. FELDMAN, Attorney, 631 E Street Northwest.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. George Pappas, plaintiff, vs. Magdalene Parker, defendant. No. 1818, Civil Action. The object of this suit is to remove a cloud upon the title to real estate known as "Lot numbered Forty-nine (49) in Robert M. Colburn and others' subdivision in Square numbered Four Hundred Ninety-six (496) as per plat recorded in Book 25, page 63, in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia, and improved by premises No. 607 Fourth street southwest," and to appoint a trustee to execute a quit claim deed. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 18th day of April, 1939, ordered that the defendant, Magdalene Parker, cause her appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default, provided a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. JOSEPH W. COX, Justice. Attest: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By JOHN O. BOWEN, Assistant Clerk. 19,26,3

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

HERE is a call to those Federal girls with beauty and brains—a combination that's not so rare in the service—to get a loving cup from The Post and a free trip to the New York World's Fair. The free trip, which will bring the winner to New York on Government Employes' Day, is to be afforded by the American Federation of Government Employees. Beauty and brains is a combination that should please everyone, including Senator Ellender, so let's all pitch in and find the girl. Send her photo to the contest editor, care The Post. The deadline is May 5. Every girl should have a chance!

FEDERAL employes will be interested to know that the lovely gardens of Dumbarton Oaks, famous estate of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, 3101 R street northwest, will be opened to the public from 2 to 6 p. m. Saturday. The proceeds from the nominal admission fee will benefit the Home for Incurables. The gardens are open only twice a year.

JOBS: The CSC announces an open competitive examination for the job of alphabetic card-punch operator at $1,260 a year. Applicants must have had at least two months of full-time paid experience in the work; must be 18 and not more than 53 . . . Also, the job of leverman, Engineer Department at large; $1,860 to $2,040. Applicants must have had at least a year's experience in the deck force of a pipe line dredge, of which six months must have been as leverman, or as mate standing relief watch at the levers. The top age limit is 50, the deadline is April 26.

WITH considerable to be attended to in its own building, U. F. W. A. Local 12 intervenes in international affairs by adopting a resolution expressing "its full support and approval of the action taken by the President of the United States in placing severe restrictions on trade with Germany."

THE Agriculture Department Athletic and Recreation Association sponsors a last dance of the season Saturday evening in the patio of the Administration Building . . . The West Virginia State Society also gives its last dance of the season tomorrow night at the Raleigh Hotel. Meyer Davis' Orchestra will play . . . In the excess column of the Civil Service Commission's apportionment for the week ending April 15 were Massachusetts, Missouri, Washington, Colorado, Montana, Vermont, Minnesota, Kansas, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Virginia, Maryland and the District . . . The National Park Service announces a tour for April 20 to Colonial Historical National Park and Williamsburg Restoration, Virginia. Leaving Washington at 6:30 p. m. on the S. S. District of Columbia, the tour will include visits to historic Tidewater Virginia by bus and return to Washington by boat in time to go to work on Monday, May 1 . . . The Agriculture Solicitor's Office will hold its spring dance in the Rose Room of the Washington Hotel tomorrow evening. The hours are 9 to 1 . . . General Land Office Lodge 153, A. F. G. E., will hold an entertainment and dance in Stansbury Hall, Georgia and Colorado avenues northwest, Saturday night. The entertainment will be from 9 to 10 p. m., followed by dancing until 1. Profits from the affair will be used for the benefit of the sick among the membership.

HOW about the I. D. R. A. picking out some of its beauties as possibilities in the beauty and brains contest? There's a good chance for a winner there.

Bob Burns Says—

I'm the kind of a fellow who asks a lot of questions about everythin'. It ain't that I'm nosey, but I like to find out the reason for things. I'll bet I've asked fifty big business executives what the one big qualification is that they insist their men must have before they entrust them with a responsible position. To a man they all said, "A man must be able to size up a situation and make a decision quickly in any emergency."

When I look back now I guess that's the reason my Uncle Snod was promoted to foreman over a gang of 125 workers. There was a man who could figure things out in any emergency. Just last summer he ran up against a situation that would've stopped most anybody but him. One of his men came to him and said, "Foreman, I dug that hole like you told me, and I put the dirt back like you said, but all the dirt won't go back in. What'll I do?"

I don't think Uncle Snod studied over 20 or 30 minutes before he says, "I don't think you're cut out for this business. Why, there's only one answer to your problem. You'll have to dig the hole deeper."

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Some players have unusually fine results with pre-emptive bids. They use them frequently, and so mix their shots that the adversaries are undecided whether to double or risk a set by overcalling. Others never seem to have any luck with shut-out bidding; either they find the remainder of their suit bunched badly against them, or they learn that their sacrifice is in vain, as their partner has all the missing aces and kings, and he is hopping mad to be so blocked out of the bidding.

A Matter of Temperament

The only conclusion, therefore, is that pre-emptives are a matter of personality and that some should use them freely and others should leave them alone. Somehow shut-outs seem best suited for the optimistic, aggressive personality and ill become conservatives. This leads us to two questions on the point submitted by contributors. The first is from R. A. B., whose partner apparently "wasn't the type" for pre-emptive bidding.

R. A. B. says:

"Four spades were bid immediately with this hand, and my contention is that with no part score by the opponents and neither side vulnerable, it was hasty bidding."

♠ A Q J 8 7 5 4 3
♡ None

The hand is so close to a four-spade bid that a player cannot be severely criticized for opening with four on it. However, three spades would serve the purpose almost as well and keep the loss, if one is to be maintained, lower. If a pre-emptive bid is not made on this hand, the only alternative is a pass.

A Bull in a China Shop

Today's hand registers a little upset in a family bridge game that scored a 1,700-point loss against one-half of the mixed foursome.

It was one of those ghastly part-score situations which occur when both sides are vaulnerable and neither wants to give up. Unfortunately for the peace of the group, East and West got their signals mixed and the hand has been presented to us for arbitration.

We have no quarrel with East's take-out double; under the circumstances she would be justified in doubling on less. We would have preferred a bid of two hearts to one no-trump from West—a suit bid is generally better defensively, particularly for pushing purposes, and East undoubtedly is prepared for that bid.

However, the real trouble did not come until later. East's bid of three diamonds was courageous if hazardous. It might get by without being doubled and then again it might not; but alas, West precipitated matters by the very foolish bid of three no-trump which he should have known was bound to be doubled.

East's flight to four diamonds showed complete lack of confidence in West's bidding, which was partly justified by his heavy-handed no-trump calls.

Duke's First Visit - Royal Wedding Were Big Events of 1920-21 Period

Elizabeth Was Bridesmaid for Future Relative

By Lady Cynthia Asquith

Chapter IX.

EVEN when at last peace did come, it brought no immediate outward change to the Strathmores' lives. For some months they continued to entertain Australian and New Zealand officers who, for various reasons, were unable to return to their far-distant homes. The hospital, too, remained full until late in 1919, and long after the last of the wounded had said good by, Queen Elizabeth went on helping the soldiers by finding them work and assisting their families through the difficult days of demobilization.

Queen Elizabeth was then 18 years old. In spite of her inherent gayety, it is not surprising that she was in many ways serious and thoughtful for her age.

Assumed Responsibility

After her sister, Lady Rose's marriage in 1916, she became, as the only unmarried daughter her mother's right hand, sharing all the duties as well as all the anxieties of those very difficult years.

In normal times Queen Elizabeth would no doubt have passed the years between 14 and 17 in equipping herself for the future, preparing for life rather than actually living it. Reality would scarcely have claimed her. But as her girlhood coincided with the years of the Great War, no such postponement of experience was possible.

Her natural sense of responsibility—a cheerful, not a self-righteous one—was fostered both by her upbringing and by the war. A sense of responsibility is undeniably a burden, and the fact that she never tried to shift any weight from her young shoulders explains why, at the age of 18, for all its gayety, the observant saw on her face a look of experience beyond her years.

Toward the end of the war Queen Elizabeth was gradually seen more in London, chaperoned either by her mother or by her sister, Lady Elphinstone. The fringe of her childhood still remained, but the long thick plait had now become a close brown knot.

Pomp and splendor marked the ceremony of the marriage of Princess Mary to Count Lascelles at which Elizabeth was a bridesmaid. Later she was to be the central figure at a similar ceremony.

Gradually there were more friends, more frocks, more engagements, a fuller today and tomorrow.

The close circle of things intimately known expanded, the horizon widened. The present became entrancing; the future an iridescent shimmer.

Ungrudging of both her time and her energy, she was always ready to spend herself without stint; never too tired or too busy to respond to any local claim.

Girl Guides Directed

The gay spirit with which she ran the Forfarshire Girl Guides was long wistfully remembered. After her marriage she still took a great interest in them, but the encouragement of her constant fellowship was much missed. "The Duchess used to make it all such fun!" was the universal lament.

Early in the year 1919, Lady Elizabeth came to London, where a surface cheerfulness was now blossoming into pageantry. She saw the first postwar Lord Mayor's show, President Wilson's triumphant drive and Marshal Foch's great ovation, and on July 19, deeply moved, she watched the great victory procession pass through the streets, Marshal Foch and Gen. Pershing riding at the head of the French and American contingents, followed first by our navy and then by our army, with Lord Haig at its head.

Meanwhile, there was a great deal of entertaining at Glamis, and a large party was given for the Forfar Ball. For a few weeks the Queen's sister, now Lady Rose Leveson-Gower, came home from Malta, where her husband was stationed, and all the old gayeties were revived—singing, dancing and dressing up. Many visitors of that summer cherish a specially vivid recollection of how lovely the Queen Elizabeth looked one night in a rose brocade Vandyck dress and pearls in her dark hair.

Duke's First Visit

It was at the end of this August (1920) that our present King, then Duke of York, paid his first visit to Glamis, where a large party came to meet him. The young Prince was shown all over the great castle by his future wife. This important occasion was the first time he had seen her since she had made so unfading an impression on his 11-year-old heart at Lady Leicester's children's party.

In the spring of 1921 Lady Elizabeth made one of the silver and white bridesmaids at Princess Mary's wedding. This was her first public appearance in the abbey where before long she was to be the central figure at another royal wedding, and where she was to be crowned Queen of England.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PULL ME—I'LL NOT RUN!
NONE OF YOUR—GOOD HEAVENS! IT'S NED BRANT!
TELL ME, MY BOY—YOU MUST HAVE DONE THIS FOR SOMEBODY ELSE
YOU SEE THE TROPHIES BACK IN THE CASE, DON'T YOU? AND YOU CAUGHT ME LEAVING BY A WINDOW
SON, YOU LEAVE ME NO OTHER CHOICE—I'LL HAVE TO TAKE YOU TO PRESIDENT DONALDSON
WELL, LET'S GO

YOU'RE CRYING! THEN THE OPERATION WASN'T SUCCESSFUL! GO ON... TELL ME! I'M PREPARED FOR THE WORST.
BUT ARMY.. IT ISN'T THE WORST... IT'S THE BEST!
THESE ARE TEARS OF HAPPINESS, MY BOY! DR. VISHION SAYS YOUR MOTHER WILL SEE THE FLOWERS YOU BRING HER NEXT SUNDAY.
GEE... I... I CAN'T SAY ANYTHING, BUT I MUST FIND DR. VISHION AND TELL HIM...
YOU CAN'T TELL HIM... YOU'LL HAVE TO WRITE HIM. HE SAILS FOR HOME AT NOON, TODAY.
BUT... HIS FEE?
THAT'S SOMETHING ELSE TO BE THANKFUL FOR. HE REFUSED TO TAKE A CENT—SAID THE OPERATION WAS ONE OF A RARE SORT HE'D ALWAYS WANTED TO PERFORM.
I'M SORRY HE HAD TO LEAVE SO SOON!
—AND BEFORE THIS WEEK IS OVER, ARMY WILL REGRET BITTERLY THAT DR. VISHION IS NOT IN AMERICA!

Statistical Board Asks Longer Life

Experts May Leave For Other Agencies, Congress Is Told

Facing the problem of retaining a technical staff of 45 which other Federal agencies are ready to absorb "within 48 hours," the Central Statistical Board moved yesterday to prolong its official life beyond its June 30, 1940, limit.

The board asked Congress to repeal the 1940 death sentence contained in its organic act. Proposed legislation was referred to the Senate Commerce Committee and Committee on Expenditures in the House.

Ten Government bureaus have entered "bids for first call" of statistical research experts should they leave the board, it was learned. Board members said the experts needed the assurance of continued employment to stay with the board.

Action to extend the board's existence was taken, with Budget Bureau approval, after officials despaired of passage this session of a large-scale legislative program continuing the agency and establishing its permanent functions.

Mrs. Oliphant And PardoeNamed To Chest Posts

Mrs. A. Chambers Oliphant, past president of Junior League and the Y. W. C. A., and Edward S. Pardoe, Capital Transit engineer and Kiwanis president, yesterday were appointed vice chairmen of the metropolitan unit for the Community Chest campaign.

W. W. Wheeler, unit chairman, announced Mrs. Oliphant would be in charge of five areas in Northwest Washington, while Pardoe will direct the campaign in Northeast, Southeast, Southwest and downtown business districts.

Wheeler also announced appointment of the following area chairmen:

Mr. and Mrs. Waldron Faulkner, who will lead the campaign organization in the Cleveland Park-Chevy Chase area; Mrs. Louis Kalichstein, in the Petworth-Sixteenth street area; J. Louis Gelbman, in the Southeast section; Aaron Goldman in the downtown area; Daniel Patridge 3d, directing the West End-Dupont area, and George A. Ford, in the Columbia Heights area.

The history of gasoline in relation to the development of the motor car will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. H. C. Dickinson, chief of heat and power division, National Bureau of Standards, at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Commerce Department Auditorium. The lecture will also deal with possible fuels of the future.

Tydings to Serve as Judge Of U. S. 'Beauties With Brains'

Senator Agrees To Help Pick Belle For World's Fair

Another member of Congress with particular interest in Government workers has announced his willingness to serve as one of the judges in The Post-A. F. G. E. "Beauties With Brains" contest.

Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland, represents a State which probably contains more Government workers than any other. Since Maryland is also famous for her belles, the presence of Senator Tydings on the list of judges is particularly appropriate.

Whether from Maryland or any other State, the winner of this contest will be the belle of the New York World's Fair, according to assurances from the A. F. G. E., which is making the arrangements with World Fair authorities to give the lucky girl the time of her life on the Government Employes Day visit to the Fair in New York.

SENATOR TYDINGS

Entries Until May 5

The contest started last Monday. Entries may be made until and including May 5. They should be addressed to the Contest Editor, The Washington Post. All Government women in Washington and vicinity are eligible. Send in your entry now.

All you need to do to enter the contest is (1) pick out the best looking picture of yourself, whether snapshot or cabinet photo, (2) write your name, address and Government bureau on the back, (3) fill out an entry blank, using the coupon in The Post or one obtained at The Post's front counter, 1337 E street northwest, (4) attach the entry blank to the picture, (5) bring or mail it to The Post, (6) sit back and hope you are one of the 25 who will get into the semifinals.

To Appear May 9

The semifinalists will appear before the judges in person on the stage of Loews' Capitol Theater May 9. The six selected in this test will appear on The Post's Umbrella Court program on WMAL, May 12. The winner will get an all-expense trip to the New York World's Fair from the A. F. G. E., will be the guest of honor on Government Employes Day at the Fair, and will receive a loving cup from The Washington Post.

Here's your chance to win glory, a cup and the trip of a lifetime. Don't pass it by! Send in your photo today.

Tobacco Wage Scale Set for U. S. Contracts

32½ Cents Per Hour, 40-Hour Week, Fixed By Perkins

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of Labor Perkins issued a finding yesterday that the prevailing minimum wage in the tobacco industry which manufacturers must pay in bidding on Government contracts is 32½ cents an hour for a 40-hour week.

The Secretary's wage determination, made under authority of the Walsh-Healey public contracts act, affects 34,524 employes.

The minimum wage determination covers only that portion of the tobacco industry engaged in the manufacture of cigarettes, chewing and smoking tobacco, and snuff. It does not cover the manufacture of cigars.

A study of wage data upon which the Secretary made her finding disclosed, she said, that tobacco stemming is the low-wage occupational group in the industry.

Of the stemmers covered in the survey, she added, 24.64 per cent fall into a classification below 35 cents an hour, while only 4.32 per cent of the employes in the preparation department and 1.21 per cent in the fabrication department fall below the 35-cent level.
